Hanna Updates Antrim On Power Dam Repairs

The following letter was written by Charlevoix City Administrator Thomas Hanna to the Antrim County Board of Commissioners relative to the city's efforts to repair the Bellaire power dam.

"Gentlemen:

"This letter is to up-date you on the present status of our hydro dam at Bellaire, Mich. The water level was lowered approximately four feet at the [illegible] this fall and additional information gathered relating to the dam. It is now three feet below normal, and will be maintained at this level throughout the winter. We have enlisted the services of the W. A. Porter Company of East Jordan to make repairs on the easterly overflow structure. This is being done to safeguard the structure, should heavy spring run-offs necessitate it's use. These two measures are being taken to safeguard the properties downstream and avoid, hopefully, the removal of any of the dam structures and the resulting return of the Intermediate River to it original channel.

These are temporary measures which it is felt will eliminate any hazard and will allow time for the development of a permanent, satisfactory solution. Should you have any questions regarding this matter, please do not hesitate to contact our office.

Yours truly,
City of Charlevoix
Thomas G. Hanna
City Administrator"

Residents upstream of the Bellaire dam have complained that the lowering of the mill pond level has left wide mud flats on the banks of Intermediate Lake.

The City of Charlevoix purchased the dam property and the power generating plant 54 years ago. It presently supplies the city with about 1/20th of its electrical power.

In November, residents voted to sell the facility if a buyer can be found.

In the meantime, the city is refurbishing the badly deteriorated easterly overflow structure. Scott Engineering of Alpena has recommended that the dam either be repaired or removed to prevent a washout, with resulting damage to property downstream.

Library notes

By Eleanor Ratigan

During the sacred Christmas holiday season, the Library would like to extend a very special invitation to all of our patrons – both children and adults – to make a special point of visiting the Library. There are special displays of Christmas books for the youngsters, a section on handicraft, with instructions for making tree decorations, toys, personal gifts and how to handle outdoor lights.

There are candy cookbooks and cookie cookbooks and chocolate cookbooks and party cookbooks, and cookbooks with new ideas for gift-giving.

There are Christmas records – from Rudolph the Red-Nose Reindeer to the Mormon Tabernacle Choir with sacred carols.

There are picture books and story-hour books to be taken home and read as a family group.

It is a particularly appropriate time to read again one of Dr. Harold Kohn's inspiring books – each one filled with the quiet philosophy of nature and the lessons we can learn from the woodland creatures.

We would like to suggest that our patrons take home some of the magnificent over-sized art volumes to display, for a few days, in their own homes. Of special interest is the set of "Great Museums of the World" which were donated to the Library by Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Young to commemorate their 55th wedding anniversary. Here, in 13 volumes, are colored plates of the masterpieces to be found in the fine art centers of the world.

And only for the Christmas season, the Library will display the very rare copy of the New Testament, translated into the language of the Ojibwa Indians and published in 1856. It is possible that this is the only copy in existence. It was donated to the Library by Mr. Junius Dixon, the grandson of one of our first pioneers, John Dixon. As a companion piece to this remarkable Bible will be a small hymnal of Chippawa and English hymns, donated to the Library by Jay Oliver. They are not to be read, of course – just admired and remembered.

The staff of the Library extends holiday greetings to all our patrons and the hope that we will see all of you soon and often.

'Quiet Areas' Set Aside In 16 Michigan Parks

Parts of 16 state parks and recreation areas have been designated as "quiet" areas, and reserved for such gentle and silent recreation as hiking, cross country skiing, snowshoeing, and winter bird watching, Orie Scherschligt, chief of the Parks Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources announced. The designation prohibits travel by off-the-road vehicles, including snowmobiles, on 75,312 acres.

"Our department is responding to a new trend in the lives of those who love the out-of-doors," explained Scherschligt. "More and more people, young and old alike, have been telling us they want to enjoy nature as it is, hearing only the sounds of snowbirds and woodpeckers, or the chattering of a squirrel. They say few things are more enjoyable than watching the wild things of the forest which can be seen in the quiet of a remote and untroubled area."

The 45,280 acres in the Porcupine Mountains, now designated a wilderness, is the largest of the quiet areas. Tahquamenon Falls has 4,686 acres in the U.P. and the 5,000 acres in Hartwick Pines includes all lands east of I-75 and north of M-93.

Other quiet areas in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula are: Wilderness, 2390 acres; Silver Lake, 295 acres, fronting on both Lake Michigan and Silver Lake; Petoskey, 295 acres, and Tawas Point, 80 acres.

Nine of the 16 areas are in the industrialized, populous area stretching across the southern part of the state. In order of size, they are: Waterloo, 5,686 acres, north-east of Jackson; Pinckney, 3,900 acres northwest of Ann Arbor, Highland, 1400 acres west of Pontiac; Warren Dunes, 1350 acres near Bridgeman in the southwest corner of the state; Fort Custer, 1300 acres near Battle Creek includes Whitford-Lawler lakes and Jackson Lake and lands fronting on the Kalamazoo River; Yankee Springs, 1200 acres west of Hastings; Proud Lake, 1100 acres near Pontiac; Muskegon, 665 acres; and Warren Woods, 312 acres near Warren Dunes.

All of these areas, with the exception of Warren Woods, also have large areas open for snowmobiling.

Scherschligt issued a request to the public visiting any of the listed parks to ask the park manager for guidance to the quiet or to the snowmobile areas.

DNR to Cut, Burn 20,000 Acres for Deer

More than 20,000 acres in the northern Peninsula are scheduled to be treated for deer during the current fiscal year under the Department of Natural Resources stepped up deer habitat program.

Begun last year with funds earmarked from the increase in deer hunting license fees, the program is aimed eventually at cutting or burning about 40,000 acres annually in the state to provide a better food supply for deer. About two-thirds of the acreage will be in the northern Lower Peninsula and the remainder of the Upper Peninsula.

This year's goal of 20,000 acres plus in the northern Lower Peninsula compares with 12,000 acres treated in the region last year. In the year before the license fee increase, funds were available to treat only 4,000 acres.

"If we get good burning weather in the spring," we might manage to treat as much as 24,000 acres in the region, double last year's total," said Nels Johnson, jr., Roscommon, Regional Wildlife Biologist for the DNR.

Cutting and burning open up the deer range and allow new vegetation to come in, providing deer with food that otherwise would not be available.

The habitat improvement program is carried out throughout the year, but it is stepped up in the winter, when deer benefit from the additional food provided by the tops of newly cut trees.

Some of the cutting is done by crawler tractors equipped with shearing blades. The DNR has five of these in the northern Lower Peninsula and another on order. Rubber tired skidders equipped with huge new mechanical shearers also are used in cutting. The shearers are being employed this year for the first time by the DNR, which will have two of them in operation this winter.

Other cutting is done by chain saws operated by hired help or under contract with private loggers.

The number of workers involved in the program in the region will vary from 50 to 100 throughout the winter.

Johnson said nearly all of the work is done on state lands, although a small amount of acreage is treated on federal lands in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service.

At the same time, he said, deer are getting a boost from the private sector through commercial logging operations, thanks in part to a good market for pulpwood and pallet bolts.

The huge new Mead Corporation mill in the Escanaba area will stimulate a big increase in logging and will help the deer herd, particularly in the Upper Peninsula but also in the northern Lower Peninsula, which will provide some of the wood to feed the mill.

Johnson said it is too early to measure the full impact of the new program of habitat improvement upon the deer herd, but added that deer are known to be making good use of the areas that are being treated.

Takes Course In Outboards

Philip R. Gregg of Beaver Haven Marina on Beaver Island recently completed the two-week factory service school program at the Johnson Outboards complex in Waukegan, Ill.

He was part of a class, drawn from Johnson dealerships throughout the world, which explored the finer points of the Sea-Horse line of outboard motors.

Not all of the students' classwork was devoted to theory, however. Included in the curriculum was Johnson's "trouble-shooting" course, with expert instruction on how to quickly diagnose and repair outboard problems.

Johnson's service school, staffed by a faculty of 15 experienced "outboard doctors," is the largest of its kind in the world.

Ostling Learns Ropes

State Rep.-Elect. Ralph Ostling (103rd District) was indoctrinated for his new job at an orientation session for the 27 newly-elected state representatives in Lansing December 18th and 19th. The two day meeting was aimed at introducing the incoming members to the legislative leaders and staff people making up the working scene that will be their life for the next two years.

"As one of the 25 members coming to Lansing for the first time in the capacity of a legislator I know this training session will be very productive and rewarding," Ostling said. "With the elections over my next duty is to become better acquainted with the workings of our legislative process. This I feel is essential if I am to serve the people of our area and to accomplish the goals I set down in my campaign."

House Republican Leader Clifford Smart (R-Walled Lake) and the Democratic Speaker of the House gave the opening talks to the gathering. The agenda covered the legislative organization, the committee system and the operating legislative rules and the procedures of the Legislature. Of great importance to the new lawmakers was instruction on the procedure for drafting and introducing bills and offering amendments.

The two days of hard work was climaxed by a mock legislative session which showed the legislators the parliamentary procedure they will be operating under in the lower chamber.

Sport Tags Still Good

Holders of Michigan's current sportsman's license are advised by the Department of Natural Resources that they may continue to fish on that license through Sept. 30, 1973.

The statement was made to eliminate confusion which may stem from the fact that the state's regular 1972 fishing licenses and stamps expire on December 31, 1972.

Sled Dogs

Sled dog races will be held at Kalkaska Jan. 27 and 28, sponsored by the Great Lakes Sled Dog Association and the Kalkaska County Chamber of Commerce.

59,000 Whitetails Nailed this Season

Michigan's firearm deer harvest for the 1972 season has been pegged at 59,000 whitetails under a preliminary estimate of the Department of Natural Resources.

The figure, down about 3,000 animals from a year ago, is based on the DNR's highway traffic survey, which covered Michigan's major north-south arteries within the past Nov. 15-30 season.

This season's preliminary kill estimates will undergo possible figure refinements next spring when the DNR completes its annual mail survey of licensed firearm deer hunters.

As the DNR's best reading on the season now shapes up, Michigan hunters took 49,500 bucks and 9,500 antlerless animals.

In 1971, they killed 48,190 bucks and 13,700 antlerless deer.

This season's antlerless figure, about 31 percent below last year, largely reflects a virtual ban on anterless deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula, and a 50-percent cut in the anterless quota for northern Lower Michigan.

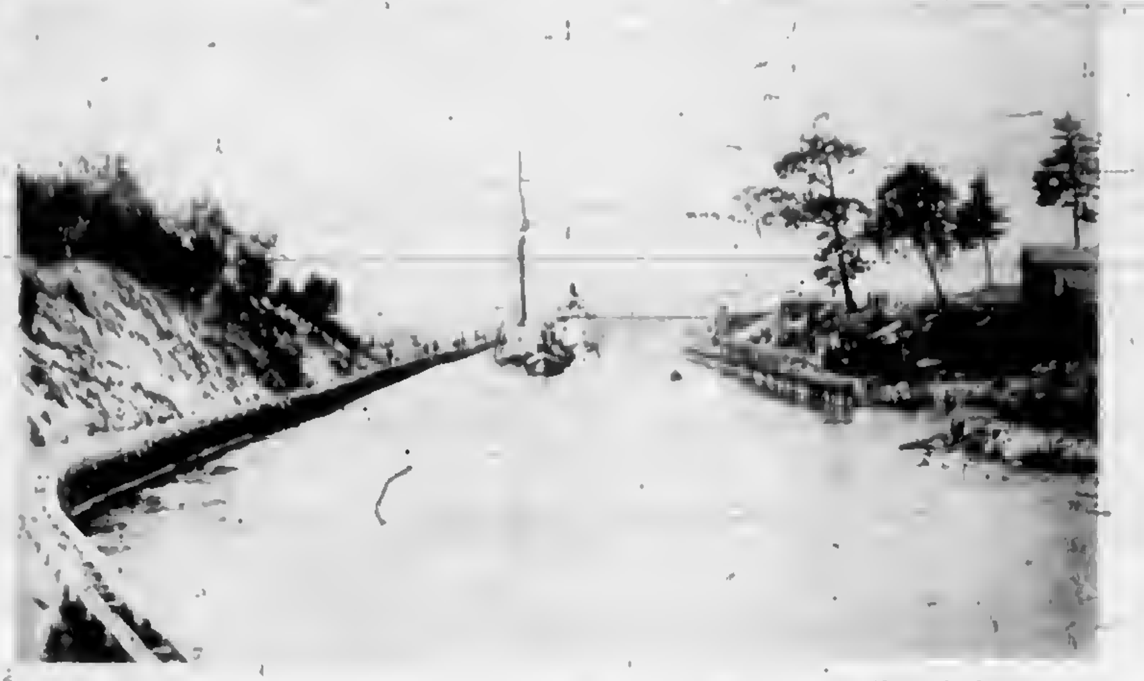
Results of the DNR's traffic counts indicate that Upper Peninsula hunters harvested 10,000 bucks and 500 antlerless animals this season. Their buck kill was about 1,000 shy of the 1971 mark, while the antlerless take for the Upper Peninsula was some 3,200 animals below a year ago.

All of the region's antlerless harvest came from the southern part of Menominee County below Highway US-2, with the rest of the U.P. limited to bucks only hunting.

The DNR's preliminary estimate places the 1972 harvest for northern Lower Michigan at 27,000 bucks and 4,500 antlerless deer. During the 1971 season, hunters in that part of the state took an estimated 26,840 bucks and 6,230 antlerless animals.

Compared with a year ago, southern Michigan hunters fared the best with their shooting success, taking an estimated 12,500 bucks and 4,500 antlerless deer. Their 1971 harvest stood at 10,290 bucks and 3,810 antlerless animals.

As in the past, this season's traffic survey did not include a count of deer hunter numbers. The size of the state's deer hunter army for 1972 will come into focus after the DNR receives a more complete return on firearm license sales from local dealers.



THE ABOVE photo of Pine River Channel was taken sometime before 1884 by Charlevoix photographer Dave Bradbeer. It shows how wave action has eroded the north bank east of the seawall, much the same situation that exists today at the end of the sheet piling revetment. The photo is owned by Russell Barnett of East Jordan and was submitted to the Courier by Frank Kubicek, 707 Grant-st. Below is a photo of the channel taken from about the same spot Dec. 29, 1972.

'Ad' Will Continue Until Peace Arrives

The following postcard was sent to the Courier by E.M. Bridge, 707 Woodwin-st., Sweeny, Texas, last week:

Puerto Rico,
21 Dec. 72

Mr. Clock:

Sir, I address these two questions to the person (s) responsible for the placement of the Henry Kissinger "Peace is at Hand" weekly ads:

1. What is the intended purpose of this ad?
2. How does this ad best serve the interest of we, the readers, and our country?

E. Bridge

Frankly, we're glad somebody noticed.

The weekly notice on the Courier Editorial Page announcing the number of weeks it has been since Henry Kissinger announced that peace was imminent is not an ad. It is a public service announcement and no one is paying a dime to have it printed.

The idea was suggested by Mrs. Charles (Margaret) Duerr of Charlevoix and we thought it was an excellent way to remind Courier readers — week after week — that the most ignoble war that the United States has ever been engaged in is still going on. In fact, the tempo of the air war has increased alarmingly in recent weeks, with greater losses of planes and crews than ever before in the long conflict.

Administration spokesmen insist that the flurry of peace activity just before the national election was not politically motivated. But we're not so sure.

We feel that President Richard Nixon has it in his power to end the war now — today — without any further bombing, killing or injury to our national spirit, which is perhaps the most devastating effect of our involvement in Southeast Asia.

We feel that President Nixon has knuckled under to the wishes of President Thieu of South Vietnam long enough.

We feel that it is time the United States started calling the shots.

And we intend to run Mr. Kissinger's peace prognosis until peace is, indeed, "at hand."

"Peace Is at Hand,"

Henry Kissinger,

City's Historic Homes Should be Preserved

By Bernice Wexstaff

Everybody and their great-aunt wants a new house to live in, or so it seems. But, for the life of me, I can't see what is so wrong with the old homes. As Edgar Guest once penned so succinctly: "It takes a heap of living' in a house to make it home."

The old homes had the marks of that kind of living that made America great: The old homes were sturdy – nothing was skimpy from the foundation to the roof – lumber was plentiful and cheap as dirt before the real estate boys changed cheap dirt into expensive sub-division plots.

And the old homes still retain the spirits of Christmases Past as well as Independence Day picnics in the front yard and lemonade and cookies on the front porch when the preacher came to call on a hot summer's day.

The old homes housed integrity not only on themselves but so often in their inhabitants: Witness for instance, the Charlevoix landmark that sits atop the northside bluff overlooking Round Lake harbor. Built by John Nicholls when he organized the Charlevoix Lumber Co. in 1891 the Nicholl's place still stands at 108 Dixon – a monument to pioneer perspicacity dear to the heart of Charlevoix townspeople for almost a century.

Another fine example of the durability of pioneer building materials is the stately home of pioneer John Dixon, now owned by Mrs. Selma Withers, at the intersection of Mercer-blvd. and the railway depot loop.

Still another example of historic interest is the brick home at 108 Petoskey-ave. which was occupied for many years by Charlevoix's first medical doctor, Levi Lewis, whose son, Will Lewis, followed in his father's footsteps and served the Charlevoix sick until his death.

There are many more including the "government" house now owned by Dr. Walter Hoffman at 103 Park-ave., the Dr. LeFever home at 105 Park-ave., now owned by Mrs. Ted Pearl, and the Sear's house at 225 Park-ave. now owned by Alfred Aerne, to name a few, although there are many more which should be preserved as mementoes of early Charlevoix history.

While we note the city's historic buildings we should not fail to note also the Rex Beach birthplace on Rex Beach-rd., on the southern perimeter of Charlevoix County. Much is made of the Hemingway association with Charlevoix, while Rex Beach, who was born in our area, has been sadly neglected, although he won literary honors not to be despised either in his day or our's.

Rex Beach wrote many best-sellers such as the "Silver Hoarde" the theme of which was the salmon industry in Alaska as well as the "Spoilers," which exposed, governmental bureaucratic chicanery back in 1905.

Rex Beach wrote of robust men in robust areas, such as Alaska of the early 20th century and many were made into motion pictures. The Beach birthplace as well as our city's historic homes should become historic sites and with the help of the Historic Society, may soon attain that desired status.

Lottery Fattens Treasury

Question: Now that the State Lottery has been active for awhile, are there any figures on the amount of money it has brought in for the state?

Governor: During the first five weeks of operation, the Michigan State Lottery averaged sales of five million tickets per week, with the largest volume of sales – 5.9 million tickets – coming during the first week of operation. As of this writing, the State Lottery has taken in $9.85 million, with $4.2 million going in prizes, $400,000 going to the agents who handle sales and about $5.2 million going into the state's general fund. My office estimates that over the period of one year, the State Lottery should bring a total of about $60 million into the state treasury.

Question: I have read that traffic crashes caused by alcohol among 18 to 20-year-olds have gone way up since the Age of Majority law was adopted. Why isn't anything being done to cut those crashes down?

Governor: It is true that alcohol-related traffic crashed among young adults have risen substantially during the past year. However, it is important to recognize that this problem is not confined solely to 18 to 20-year-olds, but is the number one traffic safety problem among all age groups. National estimates maintain that more than 50 percent of all traffic fatalities are linked in one way or another to the consumption of alcoholic beverages, and we have experienced an increase in alcohol-related traffic crashes among all age groups in Michigan this year.

Michigan has taken a number of steps to alleviate this critical problem, including lowering the maximum blood alcohol level in drunk driving cases from .15 per cent to .10 per cent and activating special enforcement forces in several communities throughout the state. Additionally, I am currently in the process of revitalizing my Task Force on the Drinking Driver Problem and charging it with developing additional solutions to this pressing problem. However, about and beyond the steps that state government can take, each and every driver in Michigan bears a personal responsibility to help reduce the tragic toll of alcohol-related traffic crashes. As we near the New Year's weekend, it is particularly important that all drivers recognize the tragic interrelationship between alcohol abuse and traffic deaths, and accept responsibility to their loved ones and those who share the road with them.

Question; Now that the Legislature is done for the year, do you have any reaction to its performance?

Governor: In my judgment, the 1972 session of the Legislature was the most fruitful I have seen since I first came to Lansing as a State Senator in 1961. Of the 20 major pieces of legislation which were vehicles for programs promoted by me, 18 were passed, including vitally needed improvements in transportation, housing, the juvenile code, and environmental protection. We also saw adoption of a statewide construction code, no-fault automobile insurance, a presidential primary and the Equal Rights Amendment to the United States Constitution – all of which were supported by me. All in all, I believe that the leadership and membership of both houses deserve special commendation for 1972's fine record of bipartisan accomplishment.

Question: I am a hunter and fisherman living in the northern part of the state. I understand that Michigan now has some kind of a special license which would allow me to hunt and fish for anything on one license. Can you tell me a little about it?

Governor: Since 1971, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has offered for sale a unique "Sportsman's License" which permits the purchaser to engage in all hunting, fishing, and trapping activities in the state, except beaver and otter trapping. This special license is available to all residents of the state who are 17 years of age or older, and is good from September 1 to the following August 31 for hunting, and until the following September 30 for fishing. The Sportsman's License sells for $18.50, as opposed to the $34 which would be charged if all hunting, fishing and trapping licenses were purchases individually. In 1971, the DNR reported sales of 56,096 of these licenses, and estimates that more than 80,000 have been sold during 1972. The 1972-73 Sportsman's License is now available at nearly all of the 2,900 licensing agencies throughout the state.

Straight Furrows

By BOB CLOCK

It would be interesting to be able to come back to Planet Earth in the year 2072 just to learn what historians have to say about the administration of the late President Harry S Truman.

We are confident he'll rank right up there with Lincoln and Washington, although most modern historians place him on the second rung of the presidential ladder, along with Presidents Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

For our money, Harry Truman made some of the toughest decisions any American president has ever been called upon to make, and, for the most part, they were so bold and so imaginative that they shaped the course of world history for years to come.

What worries me is that future historians won't know what it was like to live in this country during the administration of Harry Truman. I think we were unified then as we have never been since. We might have been childish, immature and boastful after our exploits during World War II, but we were one people, trying to build a better world.

We were Boy Scouts, and old "Give-'em-Hell Harry" was our Scoutmaster. If he fought with organized labor, organized labor deserved to be fought with; when he traded punches with old Joe Stalin, we rooted for the hometown boy.

When he refused to assist Chiang Kai-Shek, it seemed the "right" thing to do. And when he committed American troops to Korea he was on equally firm ground.

Maybe we weren't too bright, but Mr. Truman had us in his hip pocket – and he knew it. And so did we.

No one over 40 will ever forget the day President Roosevelt died and how Harry Truman moved ever so humbly into the presidency. It may seem strange to the young people of today, familiar as they are with the bombastic mouthings of Spiro Agnew, that the vice presidency a quarter century ago was a rather insignificant job.

In fact, few people could recall on April 12, 1945, who the vice president was. True, Henry Wallace had been dumped the year before, and you had to snap your fingers two or three times to remember the name of the obscure little senator from Missouri who had been elected on the same ticket with FDR.

I was in high school at the time, and remember sitting in English class listening to President Truman's swearing-in ceremony over the school P.A. system. He spoke with a high-pitched midwestern twang that made you wince and when he asked the notion to pray for him in his new role, believe me, we all prayed. The suave, polished Franklin Roosevelt was a hard man to follow, and no one knew it better than Harry Truman.

The office of the president carried some awesome responsibilities in the spring of 1945. There was a war to be won. There were peace treaties to be drawn up and ratified. There was a new world-wide organization aborning – The United Nations – which, hopefully, would prevent another global catastrophe.

And there at our feet lay the bleeding ruins of Europe and much of Asia in need of rebuilding.

Few people in the country in those days thought that Harry Truman was big enough for the job. But he was all we had.

However it didn't take President Truman long to come into his own. At first he followed the pattern laid down by President Roosevelt, but in a few weeks he was making the jack-hammer, no-nonsense decisions that became the hallmark of his administration. And nine times out of ten he had the people in his corner because most of them would have done the same thing if they had been in his shoes.

I suppose that is why there was such an outpouring of grief and affection when they buried President Truman last week in Independence, Mo. He was a fellow the average man could relate to. He washed bottles in a drugstore when he was a boy. He farmed. He tried his hand at business, but he couldn't quite make a go of it. When his haberdashery folded, Mr. Truman spent more than a decade paying off his debts – but they were all paid eventually.

Although he arrived on the scene long before the era when presidential candidates are packaged, promoted and sold like chewing gum, President Truman had the best press agent in the world: His mother. She lived through the first two years of his administration and loved to tell reporters that Harry could plow the straightest furrow of any farmer in Independence.

We listened and we laughed and we knew that mothers tend to exaggerate when talking about their kids. But we also knew that any fellow who could plow a straight furrow behind a balky mule in Missouri would also plow a pretty straight furrow in world politics.

We elected him to a full four-year term in 1948 when all the pollsters had given Tom Dewey the election hands down.

Under Mr. Truman, there was no pretense and very little pomp to the presidency. Mrs. Bess Truman, who was everybody's next door neighbor, didn't particularly like living in the White House, which she likened to a "goldfish bowl." She would rather have been back in the rambling old Truman home in Independence and made no bones about it.

When President Truman stepped aside in favor of Adlai Stevenson in 1952, she was the happiest woman in the country.

I am glad that President Truman and his missus had 20 years of retirement together back in their old home town. Few couples are so fortunate.

Although he was 88 years old, I will miss not having Mr. Truman among us. His homespun values may seem quaint to the Now Generation, but it is unlikely that any future president will ever plow such straight furrows into the hearts of Americans.

Peace Is at Hand

By Jim Fitzpatrick

The man on TV said the U.S. had just dumped a record number of bombs on North Vietnam. Not a record for the Vietnam war, he said, but on all-time, one-day record for all wars, anywhere, anytime.

The date was Dec. 19, about two months after Dr. Kissinger assured us "peace is at hand." Over four years and two campaigns after President Nixon said he had a plan to end the war. And just six days before Christmas.

Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

Country editors have no pipeline to the White House. I don't even have an uncle in the Pentagon business. I'm just like you; I don't understand what the hell is going on. I thought the boys were going to be out of the trenches by Christmas. But I guess that was another war.

I do know that a bunch of stuffed shirts have been having "peace talks" in Paris for many years. What do you suppose they talk about everyday?

What must two fathers say to each other before they can agree it's stupid for their sons to kill each other?

I don't know any Washington big shots, intelligent men who could undoubtedly give me some terribly sophisticated answers to that question. But I do know two young men who can't walk because of the Vietnam war. I know their parents. And I know my country has not accomplished anything in Vietnam that is worth what has happened to these families and to thousands of other families whose sons came home crippled, or in a box.

I do know no one is shooting at Dr. Kissinger or President Nixon. No one is dropping bombs on those stuffed shirts who smile and make polite chit-chat as they go to their daily peace meetings in Paris.

I do know several American planes have been shot down since bombing was resumed. How would you like to lose your son or husband – or your own life – in the last weeks of a war your country admitted it couldn't win four years ago?

How would Dr. Kissinger like to be one of those rice paddy peasants who has been blown out of his home dozens of times and doesn't have the slightest idea why he is bleeding?

I know these are simplistic questions, not worthy of an embassy gardener. But lord, how this country is aching for a simplistic answer, such as:

"There'll be no more killing, ever. We've agreed it is counter-productive, even uncivilized. From now on all disagreements will be settled with words only. No fair throwing sticks. Any big shot who threatens armed force will be immediately drafted into the infantry as a rifleman."

It'll never happen. The smart big shots won't allow it, for fear someone might think they are dumb little shots. Instead, the bombs will keep setting records – in Vietnam or somewhere else – until there is no one left to keep score.

Onward and Upward? Phooey.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Certain events in Jenny's life taxed even a mule's comprehension of human intelligence, such as the time Uncle Charlie started out buzzing wood and wound up with the first car wash.

Jenny hauled the buzz rig into position and, not being adept with tools, left the removal of the Model T fender to Charlie's talents. The front wheels were blocked, rear wheel jacked up, and the drive belt slipped over the tire and pulley of the saw mandrel. The engine was started, the emergency brake eased forward and the saw began humming.

When Charlie diverted his gaze to the accumulating pile of winter fuel the saw struck a hefty knot, setting off a chain reaction. The belt jumped off, the jack gave way and the power plant went jouncing across the pot holes and hummocks until it came to rest midway across the creek west of the barn.

In his exasperation Charlie misinterpreted Jenny's cooperative effort in retrieving the wayward vehicle. Docilely she permitted herself to be hitched to the rear axel and waited courteously until Charlie was behind the controls. Ignoring his "gid-yap" she backed against the car urging Charlie toward the far shore. His "whoa-whoa" and other vehement instructions were still echoing in the distance swamp when the strange safari negotiated the opposite bank.

The first freeze being too far in the future, Charlie had no alternative but to build a bridge for the return journey. Again, to Charlies surprise, Jenny willingly hauled the stringers and poles to share in the pride of their joint engineering achievement.

This new crossing for the pigs and cows was very much to her liking for, after all, who wants their spa polluted by dirty hooves? She became a staunch ecology advocate when she gazed raptly into the crystal clear mirror of the stream to admire the smartest and, with becoming, maidenly modesty, the prettiest mule in the whole U.P.

Safety Valve

QUESTION: What is the recommended way to make proper turns with a motor vehicle? N. T. U., Alpena

ANSWER: The Highway Traffic Center at Michigan State University recommends these five steps to make proper turns:

1. Check traffic, your rear view mirrors and blind spots;
2. Signal well in advance;
3. Get into the proper lane of traffic;
4. Turn smoothly; and
5. Sight down the center of your new lane.

If you avoid sudden moves and turn properly, you'll help your vehicle, as well as others, moving smoothly.

QUESTION: Is it illegal to leave my car's motor running, to keep the car warm in this cold weather, as long as I lock the doors, while I run into the grocery store for about five minutes? Mrs. V. R. B., Roscommon

ANSWER: If you're parked in the store's private parking lot you probably wouldn't have any trouble. Be sure your key to unlock the door isn't on that same ring with the ignition key that's still inside. Be sure, too, the brakes are set, so the car can't suddenly roll and cause damage to other property for which you might be held liable.

However, "No person having control or charge of a motor vehicle shall allow such vehicle to stand on any highway unattended without first effectively setting the brakes thereon and stopping the motor of said vehicle and when standing upon any grade without turning the front wheels of such vehicle to the curb or side of the highway."

Remember, too, that some local ordinances forbid leaving keys in the ignition of an unattended car.

Repairs Nearly Complete

Things are looking up on Pine River Channel.

Three weeks ago, wave action washed away more than 200 feet of bank on the north side of the channel, rupturing one sewer line serving the north side and toppling a huge concrete manhole.

This week, the manhole is back in place, the ruptured line has been flushed out and it is ready to be hooked up, a 25-foot Coast Guard barge has been sunk in front of the electrical manhole to prevent further damage and several buoy anchors have been placed along the bank to secure it until permanent measures are taken.

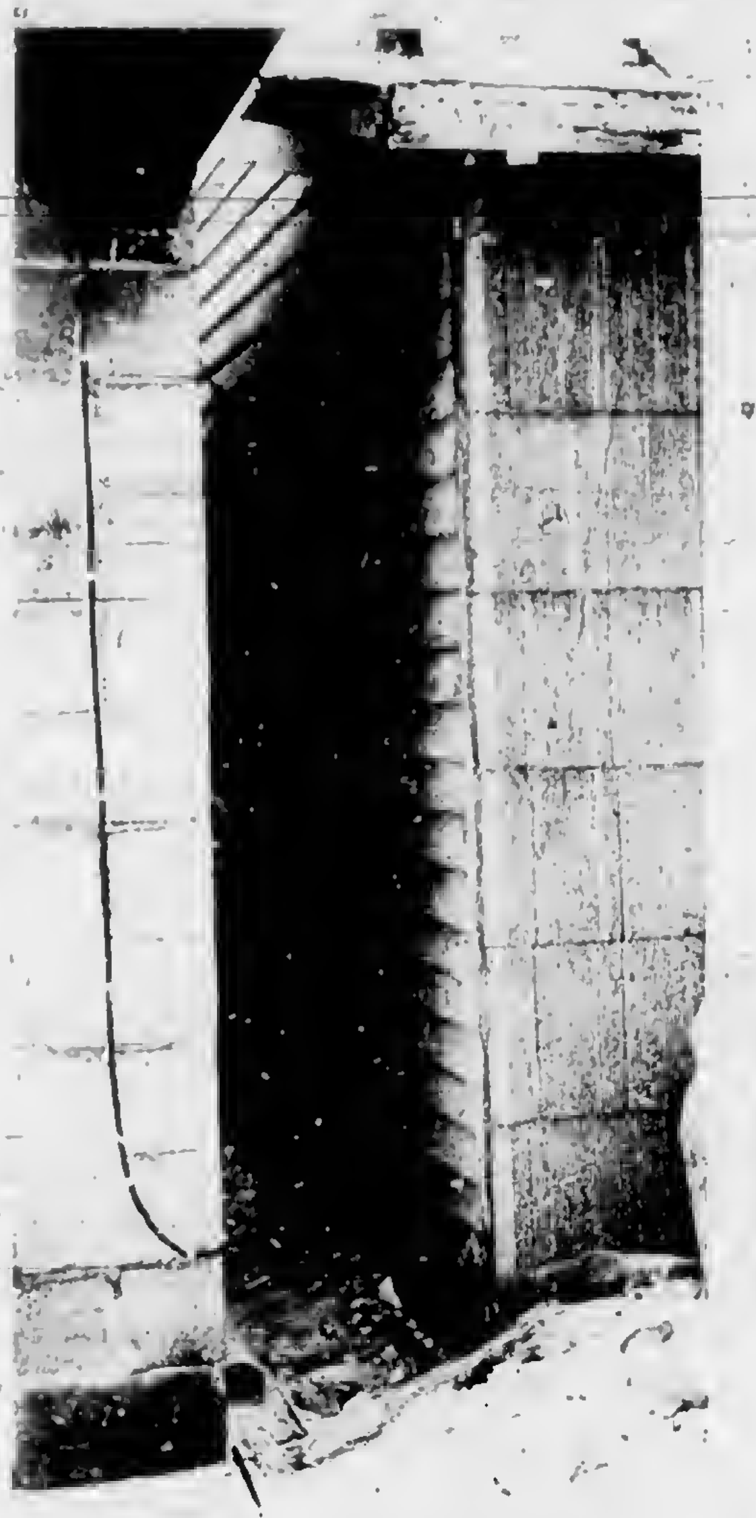
Most of the work has been done by the W. A. Porter Co. of East Jordan, with an assist from the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, according to Thomas G. Hanna, city administrator.

The cutter placed the buoy anchors and will move several large concrete pile caps from the pierheads to the scene of the damage as soon as the weather permits this week.

Hanna hopes the temporary measures will hold the bank until the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is able to come up with a plan and funds to save the bank.

The city has asked the Corps for $50,000 in emergency funds for channel improvements.

Meanwhile at Bellaire, the Porter Co. is continuing to rebuild the easterly overflow structure at the Charlevoix-owned power plant and dam pond.



A SKINNY thug in cowboy type boots slipped through this narrow passageway at the rear of Hess Furniture sometime last Wednesday night to gain entrance to the building through a tiny window. The file-safe had been tampered with, but no money or merchandise was reported missing. Police are continuing their investigation.

Icy Roads Shut Schools

Charlevoix schools started 1973 with a "down day" on Tuesday.

A mini-blizzard Friday, followed by rain Saturday and Sunday, followed by sub-freezing temperatures New Years Day left country roads ice covered and virtually impassable.

School was canceled until road crews have an opportunity to work their magic with sand and salt.

Monroe Creek Dam Approved by Court

After nine months of deliberation, former Circuit Judge Charles Brown has given Frank Shelden of Detroit the go-ahead to proceed with construction of a dam across Monroe Creek, the key to a 1,500 homesite development in South Arm Township.

Shelden was taken to court early last year by Dr. John Tanton of Petoskey and others on grounds that the dam would degrade the quality of Monroe Creek as a trout stream and speed up the aging of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

In his landmark decision Judge Brown dissolved a restraining order issued Dec. 8, 1971, prohibiting construction of the dam, and gave Shelden the green light to start clearing this winter while the ground is frozen.

However, the judge stipulated that the court will retain jurisdiction over all phases of the proposed development, including:

–Land clearing operations.

–Siltation control in Monroe Creek waters prior to and during construction of the dam.

–Actual dam construction, including the revision of the dam design to include and install at least three multi-level dam outlets.

–Control of the flow of waters in Monroe Creek during dam construction, the filling of the impoundment, and after the impoundment is filled.

–Appropriate sodding and or other devices to restrain the flow of surface waters within the proposed subdivision.

–Adequacy of any water and sewage disposal systems in the subdivision, and --Suitable and adequate access roads and public access to the lake.

The court's assumption of control over the entire project underscores the importance of the lawsuit, which was initiated under Michigan's new Environmental Protection Act.

Judge Brown said the 54-page decision was the longest he had ever written in his long years as a circuit judge. He retired Dec. 31, the day after the decision was signed.

Supervision of the project now apparently will be up to Judge Edward Fenlon, who was elected Charlevoix-Emmet circuit judge in November.

The lawsuit was initiated by Dr. Tanton in December, 1971, after the Natural Resources Commission voted, on the recommendation of its director, the late Dr. Ralph MacMullan, to issue Shelden a permit to construct the dam and to exchange public fishing easements on Monroe Creek for comparable property in Wilson Township.

Tanton, who was later joined in the suit by Trout Unlimited and the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council, contended that construction of the dam would destroy a small game habitat and adversely affect the quality of Monroe Creek.

The lawsuit also contended that the state (DNR) did not receive full value for the Monroe Creek easements, since the success of Shelden's entire venture hinged upon acquisition of state-owned land through which the creek passes.

Judge Brown heard the case March 6 through 10 at the Charlevoix County courthouse and heard the final summation by attorneys for the plaintiffs June 9 in Traverse City. Findings of fact and conclusions of law were filed by attorneys for both sides last July and Judge Brown has spent the intervening months preparing his decision.

One of the basic issues in the case was not whether or not the proposed dam will be harmful to the environment but whether Dr. Tanton had any right to initiate the lawsuit in the first place, since he was not threatened with personal injury.

Judge Brown wrote: "Plaintiffs contend that the Environmental Protection Act established standing and authorized any person, firm, corporation, association, etc., to start an action in the Circuit

Decision On Appeal Pending

Dr. John Tanton of Petoskey said Monday that he has not decided whether to appeal Circuit Judge Charles Brown's decision on Monroe Creek.

Throughout the trial last year, Judge Brown said repeatedly that he hoped his decision would be appealed – regardless of how he ruled.

Meanwhile, Associated Press in Detroit reports that Monroe Creek developer Francis D. Shelden intends to press a $400,000 counter-claim against Dr. Tanton, who challenged the advisability of construction of a dam across Monroe Creek on environmental grounds.

In his decision, Judge Brown called the trout steam a "negligible or trivial resource when viewed from an over-all perspective."

Presently assistant vice president of the National Bank of Detroit, with headquarters in Farmington, Hollow and his family plan to move to Charlevoix in the near future. For the time being they will live in the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clark Coulter on Park-ave.

A native of Detroit, Hollow was graduated from the University of Detroit High School, received his B.A. in business administration for U. of D. and his M.A. in business administration from the University of Michigan.

He served three and one-half years with Air Force Security during the Korean War and joined the National Bank of Detroit after his discharge from service 20 years ago.

Hollow has been active in civic affairs in Farmington and Livonia. He is a member of the Livonia Board of Education, has served as treasurer of the Farmington Goodfellows and is a member of the Farmington Exchange Club. He also has served as chairman of Dearborn's United Foundation campaign.

MORE THAN 100 persons attended an open house at the home of Clarence Rabach Saturday afternoon honoring Mrs. Floyd Ikens who celebrated her 90th birthday Jan. 9. Mrs. Rabach is Mrs. Ikens' daughter. The former Matilda Curtis was born in the Deer Lake area of Antrim County Jan. 9, 1883, and came to Charlevoix as a girl. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and taught at the Robinson School near Boyne Falls. She was married April 4, 1906, to Floyd Ikens, who was elected sheriff in 1932 and served 22 years. During his tenure, Mrs. Ikens was jail matron. He died in 1956. Mrs. Ikens had six children, Mrs. Rabach, Mrs. Ralph (Dorothy) McRae of Charlevoix, Harold of Vanderbilt, Glenroy of Chester, W. Va., Carlton and the late Mrs. John (Helen) Norton.

Zoning Election Approved

The Charlevoix Board of Commissioners agreed last week to hold an election on county-wide zoning before Sept. 1, 1973.

The commissioners hope that the election can be held at the same time as an anticipated state election on school financing in order to cut down on costs.

The election was requested in petitions circulated by the Citizens Information Service challenging a county-wide zoning ordinance which went into effect in unzoned portions of the county last October.

In other business, the commissioners elected Ira L. (Bob) Davis is chairman and Harry Griffin as vice chairman for 1973.

They also heard a report by County Surveyor Mary Feindt that developers' plats referred to the drain commissioner often disappear for months at a time. Drain Commissioner Ronald Geer said he needs more time to review plats. The question was referred to the salary committee.

Vote This Year Likely On High School Addition

Charlevoix School District voters probably will be asked to approve bonds for additions on the High School some time in 1973.

At Monday night's Board of Education meeting, George Richards of the architecture firm Manson Jackson Kane, Inc., Lansing, submitted three proposed construction time schedules, calling for an election on funding in either April, June or October.

The board decided that April is too soon and will pick an alternate date at a later meeting, if it decides to go ahead with the expansion program.

Richards said the project has been divided into two phases, one to meet short term needs and the other to meet long term needs. Phase 1 would handle Charlevoix's projected High School needs for the next ten years.

Although the firm hasn't come up with a price tag on the project, Richards said the board could make an educated guess by multiplying the number of square feet to be added by $26, the current square footage cost of school construction. About five percent should be added for site development, plus architects' fees and bonding fees.

Phase one would add 32,000 square feet, pegging the cost at about $832,000. The work would include connecting the two main buildings, expanding the Instructional Materials Center and the cafeteria, construction of a multi-purpose room and a team locker room, speech and music rooms, arts and crafts remodeling, addition of a metal shop, electronics and home economics rooms and new business and science classrooms.

Phase 1 would add 11 new teaching stations to the High School, enabling the school to house from 590 to 865 students at 100 percent capacity or from 472 to 692 students at 80 percent capacity.

The firm has come up with two alternatives for Phase II (after 10 years). One calls for converting the High School into a Middle School and construction of a new high school on a new site. The other calls for construction of a new Middle School and construction of additions to the High School, including an auditorium, swimming pool and 10 new teacher stations. In either case, the present Middle School would be retired.

In other business the board:

–Approved procedures for evaluating coaches, club sponsors, class sponsors and others engaged in supervising extra-curricular activities.

Only 99 Babies Born In County Last Year

For the first time since pioneer days, the number of babies born in Charlevoix County in a given calendar year dropped below 100.

County Clerk Clarence Rabach reports that there were only 99 births in the county last year. As recently as the mid-1960's, Charlevoix regularly recorded 200 or more births a year.

However, the birthrate has been dropping steadily in the past few years, although the county's population has grown.

In 1970, the county recorded 131 births and in 1971 114.

Observers attribute the decrease to improved birth control measures, principally "The Pill", and to increased awareness of over-population problems.

By the same token, the county's death rate has remained fairly constant. Some 134 deaths were recorded in 1972, compared to 135 in 1971 and 126 in 1970.

Aside from births, the big surprise in the clerk's year-end report was a dramatic rise in the number of divorces.

Sixty-nine Charlevoix County couples received divorce decrees in 1972, compared to 48 in 1971 and 33 in 1970.

Deputy Clerk Etta Howell attributes the big increase to Michigan's new no-fault law which went into effect last year. The new law simplifies the divorce procedure.

Miss Howell says she already has 92 divorce cases on the Circuit Court docket to be heard this year.

The number of marriage licenses issued by the county in 1972 also showed an increase. The 1972 figure was 186, compared with 159 in 1971 and 168 in 1970.

All of which means that the county had one divorce for every 2.7 marriages in 1972. In 1971, there were 3.3 marriages for every divorce and the 1970 five marriages for every divorce.

Bloodmobile To Visit City On Jan. 17

The Red Cross Mobile Blood Collection unit will set up shop again in Charlevoix Jan. 17 from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church on Petoskey-ave.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 can qualify to donate.

All residents of the county are covered by the bank, and may draw upon its reserves. The only cost is the charge for administering the blood.

Prospective donors may make appointments by calling Mrs. Vernon Mathews jr., 547-9896.

Goal in the Jan. 17 collection is 100 pints, according to the Red Cross.

The last Bloodmobile visit to Charlevoix last July fell short of its goal.

The Red Cross points out that persons may donate blood every eight weeks, not to exceed five donations per year. It takes about 45 minutes to donate.

Court Sets New Hours

Starting Monday, Jan. 22, newly-elect District Judge Arthur R. Reibel will hold court in Charlevoix at the courthouse Monday and Thursday afternoons.

Court will be held at the Emmet County Courthouse in Petoskey Monday and Thursday mornings.

Small Claims will be heard Friday, and trials and motions will be scheduled Tuesday and Wednesdays and whenever time is available on Fridays.

Topside Seeks Dance Permit

In a brief meeting last Tuesday night, the City Council:

–OK'd taxicab licenses for the Arcade Taxi, owned by Oscar Ward, and Mac's Taxi, owned by Mrs. Betty Deverse. Approval of Mrs. Deverse's license is contingent upon replacement of a front tire.

--Tabled, pending inspection, a request by Edward Corradi and Mrs. Milli Mack for a dance permit for the Topside (Tween Deeks) Lounge, 305 Bridge-st.

–Agreed to meet with David Irish, owner of the Irish Boat Shop in Charlevoix, next Monday night on changes planned by Irish at his Lake Charlevoix waterfront. Before meeting with the council, Irish also is expected to meet with the Charlevoix Township Board.

–Transferred $4,390 from the major street fund to the local street fund and $10,550 from the general fund to the local street fund.

--OK'd waivers for the remodeling of Robert Hoffman's law office on Belvedere-ave. Hoffman plans to build a second office on the lower level of the two-story building.

–Took under advisement a recommendation by Mayor Edward P. Hansen that all resolutions henceforth be submitted in writing to prevent errors in transcription.

–Heard a report by Sam Supernaw on reorganization of the recently reactivated Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission. Jon Campbell is chairman, John Haggard vice chairman and Mrs. Larry Swanson secretary. The group will meet twice a month at noon at the Weathervane Inn. The next meeting is Jan. 12.

–Agreed to review electric power rates at next Monday's committee meeting, on recommendation of Alderman Robert Timms.

–Sent to committee a report by Alderman Richard Fochtman on a meeting Dec. 21 with representatives of the Beaver Island Boat Co. The company would like to remodel and enlarge the city-owned terminal and freight shed, contingent upon a long term lease. The firm also would like to schedule an early morning trip to the island from Charlevoix which would give passengers several hours on the island. Fochtman mentioned that such a schedule might create additional parking problems downtown.

--Authorized City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna to apply to the state Highway Department for work on the highway right-of-way adjacent to the U.S. 31 bridge, if and when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers releases funds for channel bank stabilization. A huge section of channel bank, including some highway right-of-way, recently was washed out by wave action. Hanna said he expects work Wednesday or Thursday on whether $50,000 in emergency funds will be forthcoming from the Corps.

--Learned that attorney George Spiegel of Washington, D.C., has been hired by the Michigan Public Power Rates Payers' Association to fight a proposed increase in electric rates requested by Consumers Power Co. Charlevoix is a member of the association. The association has requested a five-month delay in the rate increase from the Federal

Co. Dems Elect Reps, Back Day Care Centers

At their spring convention Friday, Charlevoix County Democrats elected eight delegates to the state convention in Detroit and went on record as favoring federally-sponsored day care centers for children, a moratorium on funds for the Vietnam War, and elimination of the sales tax on food.

Elected delegates to the state convention, which will be held Feb. 4 at Cobo Hall in Detroit were Mrs. Jean Rosewig, Melrose Township; Mrs. Janis Dietrich, Eveline Township; Clement Wagner, Charlevoix; Miss Jeanine Keeney, Charlevoix; Martin Paul, Boyne City; Charles A. Duerr jr., Charlevoix; and Mrs. Margaret Duerr, Charlevoix.

The same delegates will represent the county at the District 11 convention Jan. 13.

The Day Care Center resolution noted that 33 per-cent of all mothers in the country with children under six are in the work force, most of them to help support their families, and that women are not free to compete for jobs without reasonably priced day care centers available. It also noted that 2½ million other children under six whose mothers are not employed, live in poverty and are badly in need of a pre-school enrichment program.

The resolution asks prompt passage of legislation for federally-funded day care centers, with such care to include educational, medical and nutritional services, based on their parents ability to pay.

The Vietnam resolution endorses the action of the Democratic Congressional Caucus which has urged Congress to authorize no further funds for U.S. military combat operations in or over Indochina.

The group also asked elimination of the state sales tax on food purchases, endorsed the election of Robert Mitchell as Michigan State Democratic chairman and urged that all trucks under 10,000 pounds be exempt from weighing-in procedures for licensing.

Next meeting of the county Democrats will be Thursday Feb. 15 at Boyne City.

Library Notes

By Eleanor Ratigan

The idea for the author's greatest and most powerful novel came to him almost 40 years ago when Alexander Solzhenitsyn was just leaving secondary school. He never parted from the general concept of this book, and he considers all his previous works minor to this. The first part of "August 1914" is set at the outbreak of the First World War, and its moral concern is to establish the responsibility for Russia's defeat in the battle of Tannenberg. The main theme is filled out by a great cross-section of characters, both fictitious and historic, from every walk of Russian life.

The novel is a triumph of historical reconstruction, and it glows with the author's love of his country and his deep concern for ordinary men and women. It's first publication in English is a literary event of world-wide importance.

In "Between the Hills and the Sea," K.B. Gilden, author of "Hurry Sundown," deals with working people during the fifties. The place is a northern industrial town dominated by one plant. The hero is Mish Lunin who belongs to a union local that has cast him aside. The company either wants to co-opt him or fire him, and his wife, University bred and full of idealism, makes things even more difficult. This is an ambitious and distinctive novel that illuminates the tensions of the industrial civilization in which all of us live.

"The Dead of the House" by Hannah Green is a novel about life, the land, time passing, blood ties and relationships that endure. It is the story of five generations of two old American families of English, French and Dutch descent, who settled in Cincinnati in the 1870's. It is a warm, loving story that will reassure many readers who have not lost faith in the family, or the emotions that bind it together.

We are not exactly recommending "The Stepford Wives" by Ira Levin who wrote "Rosemary's Baby." We didn't think much of that one either, but this is new on the best seller lists and lots of people will want to read it and form their own opinions. It is very light, very silly book about a young woman who is deeply involved in the Women's Lib movement, and she wants to involve everyone else in it.

When Charles Jackson wrote "The Lost Weekend" in 1944, he created a definitive portrait of an alcoholic and an enduring best seller. Now, in "A Second-Hand Life," he has etched a woman just as real, as driven and as unforgettable as the tormented Don Birham. Her name in Winifred Grainger, a women with a powerful, excessive attraction to men. Her reputation in the upper New York town where her father is the leading banker is an open scandal. The book is a big one, but it moves along swiftly, and if the plot is sordid, it is at least handled by a master storyteller.

Islander Ends Season

The motor launch Beaver Islander ended the season Dec. 28 after making 266 round trips between Charlevoix and St. James during 1972.

The total number of trips is slightly under the total for 1971 because of down time due to inspection and severe ice conditions in the spring.

The Beaver Islander also missed several days this fall because of high winds.

Bids Low in State Oil Rights Auction

Bids for rights to drill for oil and gas on state-owned lands plummetted from a high of $9.6 million last July to $523,157 during a three-day auction in Lansing Dec. 11-13. Department of Natural Resources representatives, who said the high was more than they had expected and the new bid was below their expectations, attributed the drop to the area in which lease rights were offered.

The December sale of 196,443 acres included 2,162 separate tracts scattered in a belt stretching north and south throughout the center of the state while the July sale, confined to 11 northern Lower Peninsula counties, included 426,370 acres of "current great interest," which sold for an average of $22.61 an acre.

All of the lands offered were subject to State zoning controls.

At the December sale, which averaged $3.13 an acre, 30,000 acres received no bids at all. The highest per-acre bid was $169.68 for land in Sec. 36 of Otsego County.

However, 41 percent of the lands offered were covered by the non-development lease restrictions, designed to insure that local ecology and other factors remain undistributed. In some of these areas, the State owns only mineral rights while the Federal government or private persons own the surface.

The highest bidder, and the only one to reach six figures was Miller Brothers of Allegan. $140,615 for 37,957 acres in 10 counties. Second highest came from the Eason Oil Co. of Oklahoma City, which paid $87,237 for drilling rights to 8,924 acres in six northern counties. There were four successful bids totaling one dollar, two dollars, three dollars, four dollars, and one of eight dollars.

RAYDER DALE ROSS (21) aims for basket over outstretched arms of unidentified Cheboygan players. Cheboygan won the Friday night game in overtime.

Varsity, Jayvees Lose to Chiefs

Following a lively fourth quarter protest by fans over the calling of foul shots, Charlevoix and Cheboygan went into overtime Friday night, with the Chiefs emerging champs by a margin of 64-56.

In the first overtime period, both teams chalked up two points, but in the second overtime, Cheboygan moved ahead with nine while the Rayders rang up only one.

At the end of regulation play, the score was tied at 53.

Charlevoix fans stormed onto the floor to protest the fouls, but were herded back to the stands by officials.

The game was nip and tuck from the start, with Cheboygan scoring 12 points in the first stanza compared to only eight for Charlevoix.

In the second period, the Rayders came back strong with 15, tying the game in the half 23-all.

In the third period, Charlevoix moved ahead again with 20, compared to 14 for Cheboygan, giving the Rayders a 43-37 edge at the end of the period.

However, in the finale, the Chiefs poured on the steam, coming up with 16 points to Charlevoix's 10 and tying the game again at 53-all.

High-scorer for Charlevoix was Steve McClellan with 18, followed by Dale Ross, 14; Jerry Skippergosh, 12; Randy Faust, 9; and Dennis Crain, 3.

Scoring for Cheboygan were Watkins, 23; Smith, 19; Jewell, 8; Lafrinere and Panosso, 4 each; and Towe, Clark and King, 2 each.

The Rayders Jayvees also lost a heart-breaker to Cheboygan, 56 to 52.

The Rayders led all the way until the fourth period, when Cheboygan forged ahead with 22 points, giving the Jayvee Chiefs a four-point edge over Charlevoix.

Charlevoix led during the first three quarters, with scores of 14-10, 32-24; and 46-36.

High man for Charlevoix was Mike Streeter with 16, followed by Keven Stoakes and Ron Kewashken, 10 each; and Dan Green and Dave Martinchek, 8 each.

Big Mac Has Share Of Mishaps

With a few exceptions, 1972 was an average year for the Mackinac Bridge, according to Prentiss M Brown, chairman of the Mackinac Bridge Authority.

The Bridge marked its fifteenth full year of operation on Nov. 1. Perhaps more important, by the end of the year a record number of vehicles will have crossed over the bridge, 2,173,000 (last two weeks estimated).

As usual, there were a number of unusual incidents that took place during 1972. For example, a motorist, driving a camper, lost a motor bike on the Bridge. He was intercepted, notified of his loss, and the motor bike restored to him.

Another motorist had a snowmobile roll off his trailer while crossing the Bridge. He was unaware of it until intercepted several miles north of the Bridge, whereupon he returned to the plaza to retrieve his vehicle.

It is interesting to note that 1356 new homes were transported across the Bridge. Last year there were 1240.

There were the usual cases of patrolmen providing first aid, returning lost property, opening locked cars with keys inside, and notifying motorists at the fare plaza for whom there were emergency messages.

Thanks

Moose Jaw Safari Slated for Jan. 13

The grand daddy of all snowmobile safaries will be held at Harbor Springs, Saturday, Jan. 13, 1973.

Leonard Ward, trailmaster for the event, stated today that trail conditions should be perfect for the 300 machines which are expected to make the 40 mile trip.

Registration will be at the West Traverse Town Hall starting at 8:30 a.m. and free coffee and rolls will be served. The Safari will start at 9:30 a.m. sharp. A coffee break at Larks Lake Bar at 11:00 will provide a "warmup" prior to heading for the famous Moose Jaw Bean Pot at Johnston's Park.

For the 8th consecutive year, Joe Parrow and his crew will be on hand to prepare and serve bean soup, hot dogs, rolls and coffee – free to all snowmobilers.

The 40 mile jaunt will see several new inovations this year – four rest stops will be staged during the trip – an "after glo" at the Larks Lake Bar and four bonfires at Johnston's Park for the benefit of those attending.

The Moose Jaw Safari is recognized as the first sponsored Safari in the state. Started in 1965 with 16 snowmobiles, it has grown to where 300 machines follow the trailmaster.

A free shoulder patch is given to each driver and the event is a project of the Harbor Springs Chamber of Commerce and a good time is assured to all.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russell of Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Ward II.

Approximately 150 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony, performed before an altar decorated with Christmas garlands and poinsettias.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie trimmed with blue velvet ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and white roses in a spray of holly.

Coleen Russell, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debra Marme and Celia Corp. They wore gowns of flocked blue dacron over taffeta.

Bernie Ward III, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsemn were Dale Wilson and Scott Ward, a cousin of the bridegroom. Cousins Nathan Himebaugh and Gordon Himebaugh seated the guests.

After a reception in the church hall, the couple left on a wedding trip to Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward plan to enroll at Ferris State College. The bride plans to take a high school completion course and receive her diploma from Charlevoix High School in June.

OUTGOING District Judge W. Richard Smith (left), whose term expired Dec. 31, reports that he, Phillip Marco (center) and Seberon Litzenburger have formed a law firm of Marco, Litzenburger and Smith, with offices at 300 Park-ave., Petoskey. Smith served as the first district judge in Emmet and Charlevoix counties following his election in 1968. He formerly was Emmet County prosecutor, maintained a private law practice and served as an assistant Michigan attorney general under Paul L. Adams and Frank F. Kelley. He is a lecturer in Real Estate Law for the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business and teaches an evening class in Business Law at North Central Michigan College.

IRS Office To Assist Taxpayers

Taxpayers in the Charlevoix area can obtain assistance with their 1972 federal income tax returns Monday and Friday of each week at the Internal Revenue office in Petoskey starting Jan. 2, 1973, James Young local District Director's Representative, said today.

Internal Revenue Service personnel will be available to provide tax information from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The office is located at the City-County Building in Petoskey.

Young suggested that many taxpayers will be able to obtain answers to their questions by phone on the designated days. The assistance phone in Petoskey is 347-4154.

In announcing taxpayers service days, Young noted that many taxpayers will be able to use the new "short form" 1040A, which the IRS reintroduced this year. The IRS estimates that about 30 million taxpayers will be able to use the half-page form.

Taxpayers using the Form

He also reminded taxpayers that the IRS may be able to compute the tax for individuals if they make less than $20,000, take the standard deduction, and fill in certain portions of the return. The information required is explained in the Form 1040 and 1040A instruction booklets.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1 That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No 380 of P A 1965, as amended.

2 That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3 That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four percent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4 That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non-payment thereof, and that, the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays.

a That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended;

b That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered, of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Mrs. Ross Alexander

The new furnace was installed in the church this week by Novotney and son of Charlevoix and we now hope our winter heating problems are over.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kitely and children have returned home after spending the holidays with the latter's parents in Ponita Springs, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ade have returned to their home in Owosso after spending several days recently with the latter's mother, Mrs. Mark Saunders and Mr. Saunders.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen DeFoe of Lansing are spending this week in their local home on Sweet Brier Lane.

There were nearly a thousand Seagulls on the edge of the ice in front of the William Peck home Thursday afternoon. They must have been hungry and were wondering where the fisherman were.

We had a pileated woodpecker visit our suet station for a few minutes last week. He must of flown over from Oyster Bay as I understand many winter in the woods there. They are a beautiful colorful bird about the size of a crow but more slender. Don't neglect to have bird food out daily while the weather is cold and stormy.

Aliens Must Report

Armand J. Salturelli, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, stated that aliens in the United States will be required to report their addresses to the Attorney General within the near future.

All aliens, with few exceptions, who are in the United States on Jan. 1 each year must report their addresses by the end of that month. Only the following classes of aliens are excused from this requirement

(1) Accredited diplomats, and

(2) Persons accredited to certain international organizations.

Forms with which to make the report can be obtained from any Post Office or Immigration and Naturalization Service Office during the month of January.

Salturelli said that the law provides severe penalties for failure to comply with the reporting requirement.

Bottoms Up

From 5,000 acres of southwestern Michigan vineyards, over two million gallons of fine wines and champagnes are produced each year. Lake Michigan breezes help the grapes reach maturity.

TC Snowmobile Time Trials Set

Time trials for the Fourth Annual TC-250 snowmobile race are fast approaching.

Nearly 100 drivers, of an expected 250, have applied for time trials to be held in Traverse City from Jan. 13 through 20.

The 50 fastest qualifiers will go on to the $17,500 rich, 250-mile event on Jan. 27.

Tom Marks of Traverse City, the TC-250 track record holder, may find his time in danger this year due to changes in the 3/4 mile racing oval.

His speed of 74.14 miles per hour is considered the unofficial world's record for a 3/4 mile snowmobile track. However, race officials think they may set 80 miles per hour in 1973 time trial eliminations.

Entries for the 1973 time trials will be accepted until 9:00 a.m. on the last day of eliminations, Jan. 20, although race officials cautioned drivers that only the first 250 entries will be accepted.

Ice Travel Risky

The U.S. Coast Guard warns that commercial vessel traffic on the northern Great Lakes is expected to continue into February, posing a danger to snowmobilers and other ice travelers.

The Coast Guard will render icebreaking assistance as required to the commercial traffic, meaning the paths of broken or unsafe ice may be encountered well shoreward of the shipping lanes.

"It is wise to carefully check the thickness and condition of ice, especially in the vicinity of 'tracks' left by passing vessels," the Coast Guard said.

Divorces and Births Year-End Surprises

Year-end statistics from the office of County Clerk Clarence Rabach give cause for both rejoicing and sorrowing.

For the first time in living memory, Charlevoix had fewer than 100 births (99) during a single calendar year, meaning the population explosion -- at least in Charlevoix County -- is well in hand.

In fact, if it weren't for an influx of new residents from metropolitan areas, county population would be on the skids, since, since 134 deaths also were recorded during 1972.

The steady drop in the birth rate can only mean that county residents are becoming increasingly aware of the problems posed by overpopulation.

The distressing news in the year-end statistics is the alarming increase in the number of divorces, jumping from 33 in 1970, to 48 in 1971 to 69 in 1972.

And Charlevoix County Circuit Court already has 92 divorce cases pending for 1973.

The grim statistics mean that one out of every 2.7 marriages in the county is ending in divorce, certainly one of the highest rates in the country.

In 1971, one out of every 3.3 marriages ended in divorce and in 1970 the ratio was one in five, which indicates a startling trend only over the period of three years.

Regardless of the myriad causes, it is sad to see so many family units being dissolved at such a rapid rate. It would seem that more pre-marriage and post marriage counseling is sorely needed by many Charlevoix County couples.

Common Cause May Be Worth Your Time

If you're a joiner, we'd like to recommend that you look into Common Cause as an organization that might be worthy of your efforts.

Described as a "national citizens' lobby", Common Cause was founded in 1970 by John Gardner, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, whose main interest is a reordering of national priorities.

Gardner, who knows the inside of our governmental machinery as few people do, is convinced that only an aroused and organized citizenry can revitalize the tired old "System", which he believes is steering the nation on a disasterous course.

Gardner's main weapon is information.

Information about candidates for public office.

Informational about how candidates feel about basic issues and principals.

Information about all phases of the democratic process ad how they can be streamlined and improved to best serve the populace.

Common Cause is aligned with neither the Democratic nor Republican parties. Its members come from both parties and all walks of life. Their main aim is to make political and governmental institutions more responsive to the needs of the nation and the will of its citizens.

Gardner contends that the American people have neglected their political and governmental institutions.

"It is ironic," he says, "that a people who would fight and die for the principle of self-government neglect the instruments of self-government. As a result, self-government is a mess."

Among the goals of Common Cause is an orderly withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam, increased efforts to negotiate with the Soviet Union and end to the nuclear arms race, a reduction in defense spending and continued responsible U.S. involvement in world affairs.

Mrs. Thomas Dammann, who lives on the Boyne City-rd., recently was named Common Cause coordinator for northwestern Michigan.

If you would like to become involved, telephone her at 547-2760.

The Safety Valve

Question: If the total length and width of the combination conforms to state limitations, can I haul a 5th-wheel trailer and my snowmobile trailer behind my pickup truck? P.Z., Gaylord

Answer: This combination would be illegal if the snowmobile trailer were a two-wheel trailer because the law finds it illegal to pull two semi's behind a pickup truck.

If you could carry your snowmobile on a four-wheel trailer which is so contructed that no part of its weight rests on the pulling vehicle, then your combination would be permissible, providing the total length and width still conform to legal specifications.

To quote a part of the Michigan Vehicle Code, "No motor truck or tractor or other motor propelled vehicle shall haul more than 1 trailer and 1 semi-trailer at any one time..." There are exceptions for certain farm vehicles. Your 5th-wheel trailer is classified as a semitrailer.

Question: How will the no-fault insurance affect my responsibilities to drivers from other states? If I am driving in another state and have an accident (my fault) will my insurance (no-fault) pay for my loss and the other person's losses also? Will I still need PL and PD insurance for this?

If a Driver from another state is driving in Michigan and is in an accident (my fault), will my insurance cover his losses or will he have to provide his own insurance for this? D.S.C., Cassopolis

Answer: We are indebted to the public affairs division of the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies for the following explanatory remarks:

"The Michigan no-fault law requires every Michigan motorist to have both no-fault injury coverage and residual liability (fault) coverage. If he is at fault for an accident in another state, his legal responsibility to anyone else involved is subject to the law of that state and would be covered by his residual liability insurance, both BI and PD, but any injury to him or members of his family would be paid under his no-fault coverage. If a Michigan driver is at fault for an accident in Michigan involving a motorist from another state, the new law presumably exempts him from a liability action. The motorist from the other state would be covered by the Michigan no-fault protection if his insurer has endorsed his policy to comply with the Michigan law. All companies licensed to do business in Michigan will re required to provide such endorsement. Those not licensed are expected to do so voluntarily."

New Law Protects Consumers

By State Sen. Robert Davis

Q. Were there any laws passed with regard to consumer protection during the last session of the Legislature? A.W.K., Harbor Springs

A. Several were passed, one of the most important consumer protection laws passed by the Legislature last year became effective Jan. 1 and it could save some people a lot of trouble and money.

The new law allows you to stop payment on defective goods you have purchased even though the seller had turned over the contract to a bank or some other third party.

This law is designed to protect the consumer against the seller of a defective product who quickly sells his contract to a third party so the consumer had no recourse and was stuck with the payments even though the product was defective.

Consumers should be reminded that this does not mean they can stop payment just because they don't like the item they purchased.

But it does mean that if they have good, legitimate reasons for their contention that the product they purchased is defective, they can take action against the purchaser of the original contract in the knowledge that they will have a reasonably good chance of making good on their loss or, at least, not have to continue "paying for a dead horse."

The law, in addition to making the seller more responsible, is expected to make contract purchasers a little more careful, knowing that they may be left holding the bag if the seller pulls a fast one.

It is a good law.

Your questions and comments are always welcome and may be addressed to: State Senator Robert W. Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48902.

Q. How did you vote on the 2 cents gasoline tax increase? S. A. Sault Ste. Marie

A. Determined efforts by myself and other oppinents over the last few months failed to block the 2 cents gasoline tax hike and mass transit proposals.

As a result, Michigan taxpayers will be shelling out about $80 million more in gasoline taxes, with about one-quarter of it earmarked for attempts to solve the complex mass transportation problem in Michigan's metropolitan areas, principally Detroit.

I was one of eight Republican senators who voted against the bill to increase the gasoline tax form 7 to 9 cents a gallon. We were joined by seven Democrats but the bill received 21 favorable votes.

The whole package provides that income from one-half cent of the 2 cents increase – or about $21 million a year – will go toward mass transit purposes.

There are several safeguards in the package, fortunately, including a 2½ year cut-off of the one-half cent diversion (unless approved again by the Legislature in 1975). Also included in a public vote in 1974 on a constitutional amendment that would limit any diversion of gas tax funds for mass transit purposes to not more than 1/18 of the 9 cent tax.

The package calls for start of highway work by 1977 of specified projects in several parts of the state and earmarks 44.5 percent of $62 million for the State Highway Department, 35.7 percent for county road commissions, and 19.8 percent to cities and villages.

Water, Water Everywhere...

By BOB CLOCK

All inventions simply cannot be considered stepping stones in the March of Progress.

Take the automatic dishwasher, for example.

After Danny arrived last March, Judy explained to me in no uncertain terms that a family of six simply cannot survive without a dishwasher.

She showed me her hands all scaly and red from long hours puddling in the dishpan. I went out and bought her a pair of rubber gloves and a jar of hand lotion.

But she wasn't satisfied.

A few weeks later, she brought up the subject of a dishwasher again.

"No problem," I assured her. "It's now summer and we will eat all of our meals cold off paper plates, picnic style. I'll even get you a big gum eraser so you can erase the plates and we can use them over and over again."

She didn't even laugh.

Than Kate Left called the Courier office one morning to say she had a used dishwasher for sale. Would we run an ad for her?

My big mistake was even mentioning the phone call to Judy. She had to see that dishwasher, post haste. Now. Tonight.

It was a portable model, a little large for our kitchen with five doors, but Judy decided it would fill the bill until I could raise the wherewithal to push the kitchen out into a backyard and buy a built-in model.

However, it was two weeks before we could hook up our splashing new appliance. All of our faucets date back to the days of the Roman aquaduct, and there was no way the fancy hose hookup on the dishwasher could be accommodated.

Finally we had to buy a whole new faucet assembly, but that's another story.

My problem now is one of dehydration.

Ever since that blasted dishwasher went into operation, I have been unable to get a decent glass of water in my own kitchen.

Why? I'll tell you why. It's because every drinking glass we own spends 99 percent of its time wallowing in the bowels of that blasted dishwasher, which is only turned on once a day, right after supper.

Back in the pre-dishwasher days, our kitchen cupboards looked like Tiffany's window, with row after row of sparkling glassware standing at attention. Now the cupboard is bare, except for a few pieces of cracked china that nobody uses.

I wish I had a martini for every time I have raced into the kitchen, tongue lolling for a cold drink of water, only to find there was nothing to drink it out of.

Once, in desperation, I filled the measuring cup and the water tasted suspiciously like baking powder.

Another time I was forced to drink out of a bud vase and swallowed a rose pedal. I also have used empty beer cans, a depleted gin bottle, an egg cup, a baby bottle, a salt shaker that was almost empty, a jelly jar still etched with lands and grooves of dried jelly, a chipped saucer and the dog's dish.

"The dogs can drink whenever they want, but I can't," I complained to Judy the other night.

"Did it ever occur to you," she said calmly, "that we might need more glasses?

She went on to explain how the kids have juice every morning, milk for lunch, refreshments after school and some kind of beverage for dinner.

"But we used to have enough glasses," I persisted, but she couldn't hear me over the happy whirr and hiss of our newest appliance.

Hum Along With Me

By JIM FITZGERALD

The holiday season is finally past and the droning sound of the hummer can no longer be heard in the land.

I can quit moving my lips while making no sound. And I can make repairs to my wounded psyche, shoring it up in preparation for the next onslaught of merry carolers.

I am a non-singer, doomed by a perverse god to live out my days surrounded by relatives who give each other weather reports in four-part harmony. (The pain in rain is mainly the refrain.)

I was raised in the shadow of my big sister, Terrible Jean. And she cast the biggest shadow in town. It was humiliating enough that she was tougher and smarter than Little Brother. But she could also sing the entire score from every Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers movie, with choreography. Relatives were constantly demanding that she perform, which was similar to demanding that Tuesday follow Monday.

No one ever asked me to sing. It was always taken for granted that I couldn't carry a tune, but I never really got a chance to try. Terrible Jean carried all the tunes for our family, in her ample mouth, and she never put one down for fear someone else might get a chance to lift it.

So, naturally, I grew up musically warped. (La la tra.) It is true that I wasn't the only non-singer in the house. Another sister, Mary Lou, had a voice which was often confused with a malfunction in the steam heating. But she enjoyed compensations. She took piano lessons and tap dance lessons (I still remember when she practiced behind closed doors. From the sound, you couldn't tell which subject she was practicing).

There were no compensations for me. I was simply the dumb kid "with no ear for music." After holiday dinners, when the relatives sat around the table singing background for Terrible Jean's solos, I was continually sent to the kitchen on important errands such as making sure the refrigerator hadn't run away. It is no wonder I developed a mental block which, to this day, prevents me from learning all the words to any song ("I'm dreaming of a white mmmmmmmmn").

Things are no better in my middle age. Somehow I married a woman who has sung in the same church choir for 35 years. Our three children are also singers. The hippie-haired daughter even totes a guitar and, to my horror, she adequately filled the huge void created this Christmas dinner when Terrible Jean was unable to be present (she had a previous engagement substituting for worn-out sound tracks at a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers film festival).

Not only that, but Mary Lou has married a sweet singer named Jack. You should hear my mother and aunts rave about Jack's great tenor while I sit there humming holes through my teeth ("Jim, please see if the sink is still in the kitchen"). Jack even plays the ukulele, and he's wealthy, too. (Mary Lou would have married Arthur Godfrey but he doesn't allow tap dancing on his piano.)

I'll tell you, it is not funny to be the only sour note in the family choir. The hurt is especially grievous at Christmas time. Once I tagged along when my little sisters went caroling through the neighborhood. They collected much praise and $8.50. I was arrested for loitering.

So it is no surprise that I shed no tears as the last sounds of Christmas fade into blessed silence.

Onward and Upward. Hum along with me.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN

Without pomp or pageantry the peppery politician from Missouri was laid to rest with the haunting notes of taps as his eulogy. The ex-artilleryman joined his comrades in arms, the thousands of Harry lying under simple crosses in Flanders Field, who likewise served with unselfish dedication and devotion.

From time immemorial the vainglorious have attempted to perpetuate their memory with monuments of grandeur. His temple was the moral respect of both friend and foe as he stood on the pinnacle of world history without rising above his fellow man.

The man on the street associated his own aspirations with those of this doughty campaigner, be it on the field of battle or in Congress. He understood the man of candor, a husband and father by choice; the President and Commander-in Chief by mandate.

He fired political barbs and insubordinates with equal decise reserving his anger for anyone critical of his private life or that of his family. His family was his retreat from the loneliness of his post of awesome power and authority. Retiring to this retreat, after a lifetime of public service, his first act was to take his suitcase to the attic, an act as logical as the man himself.

He took to the grave the secrets he was forced to keep from those he led and rightfully so. Surely his wife shared some of them for it is natural for a man to lighten his burden by kicking off his shoes and saying,

"Sing something, Margaret, while I talk with mother."

To you Mrs. Truman, Margaret, and to Harry thanks for a job well done. The names are in the order of importance as the President meant it to be.

Midwest Hailstorms Worse Than Twisters

Scientists are working to melt away the icy menace of "Hail Alley."

Every summer, hailstorms beat a path of destruction across the United States, and Hail Alley bears the brunt of the damage. The region stretches from southeastern Wyoming to western Kansas, the National Geographic Society says.

The storms concentrate at the point where Wyoming, Colorado, and Nebraska meet. Cheyenne, Wyoming, at the heart of the target area, reported more hailstorms over a 40-year period than any other weather station in the country.

WORSE THAN TORNADOES

Hail destroys $200 to $300 million worth of crops and property in the United States each year–a greater toll than that taken by the more spectacular tornadoes.

Kansas and Nebraska usually lead all the states in hail losses because their enormous wheat crops are ready for harvest just at the time when the threat of hail is the greatest.

A single storm in Nebraska once smashed wheat that would have yielded some three million bushels.

In spite of its devastating power, hail has caused only one known death in the United States–a Texas farmer who was caught unprotected in a field 40 years ago.

Hail Alley is the logical home of the National Hail Research Experiment, a cooperative effort involving a number of government agencies and universities. It's now in the midst of the second summer of field work in the northeastern corner of Colorado.

Researchers hope in the next few summers to find out just what happens inside hailstorms and whether man can modify or prevent them.

SEEDING COULD HELP

"Experience in the Soviet Union already indicates that cloud seeding may be the answer," writes Dr. Walter Orr Roberts in a recent National Geographic article.

"The theory on which the Russians operate suggests that hailstones grow as they move slowly through freezing levels, buoyed by strong updrafts reaching as much as 65 miles an hour.

"When the weight of the ice finally exceeds the force of the updraft, the stone falls to earth. From two miles up, if it is no more than three-quarters of an inch in diameter, it may totally melt before it reaches the ground.

"Guided by this theory, the Russians have set up batteries of antiaircraft guns and rockets in the wheat fields of the Caucasus. When radar pinpoints the position where hail is beginning to form, salvos of explosive charges containing silver iodide are fired high into the storm clouds.

"The tiny silver iodide crystals serve as freezing nuclei; they scavenge out water vapor and turn it to sleet before it can become damaging hail. The Russians say they have reduced hail damage by 85 percent in some regions, and they now apologize if hail falls in the seeded areas."

Court, if they are apprehensive that pollution or damage to the environment or public trust might possibly occur.

"This Court has always been of the opinion that a party, association or organization, seeking injunctive relief, even under the broad liberal provisions of the Environmental Protection Act, must himself, or some member of the association or organization, have suffered some personal economic or legal injury, other than a mere interest in a particular problem or current topic."

After noting a 1972 U.S. Supreme Court opinion (Sierra Club v Morton) in which the Sierra Club was held to lack standing to maintain legal action to block development of ski resort in California's Sequoia National Park, Judge Brown acknowledged that the scope of lawsuits involving the environment is still in need of interpretation.

"This rapidly growing field of litigation and myriad cases with a wide range of objectives will require a lengthy re-evaluation of doctrines related to vested interests, inherent property rights, economics, problems relating to the public health, safety and welfare, consideration of aesthetics - and social problems and the placing of heavy burdens on the legal system in translating our many social problems into rules of law," Judge Brown noted.

He also took to task Prof. Joseph Sax, a professor of law at the University of Michigan and author of Michigan's Environmental Protection Act, for discussing the Monroe Creek lawsuit in the "Michigan Law Review" for 1972. Prof. Sax came to the conclusion that the plaintiffs had proven in court that the Monroe Creek dam would have an adverse effect on trout fisheries.

"This Court considers it very unusual that the sponsor of such successful legislation should so publicly discuss a pending case under advisement by a trial court; point out what the court must take into account in deciding the case; and state as a fact what some of the proofs were," Judge Brown wrote.

Judge Brown also implied that it was a pity DNR officials were compelled to waste their valuable time making depositions and testifying at the Monroe Creek trial, and his own time in hearing the case.

"This Court has been required to read some 1,200 pages of depositions and 671 pages of trial transcript, which shows that practically all of the officials of the DNR; that is, at the headquarters staff level, were required to stay in Lansing some two or three days while their depositions were being taken, and also to sit in trial at Charlevoix away from their headquarters' offices for a period of three days — with the exception of Dr. MacMullan who was able to get away on the first day of trial — and this Court can think of no more effective ways to hinder, if not destroy, the effectiveness of a public agency such as the DNR by the employment of such tactics and expenditure of their valuable time, not only of their time but also of the Court's time," Judge Brown wrote.

However, he added that he would not allow his "personal opinions" to interfere with his judicial discretion and obligation in reaching a decision.

Judge Brown then proceeded to respond to 82 findings of fact and 38 conclusions of law submitted by the plaintiff's and to 41 findings of act and 14 conclusions of law submitted by the defendants.

He found that the plaintiff's had "not proven their case by the necessary preponderance of the evidence."

Irish, Neighbors At Odds Over Breakwater

A conflict between commercial and residential property owners is shaping up on the Lake Charlevoix shore near the foot of Stover-rd.

Dave Irish of Harbor Springs, owner of the Irish Boat Shop, would like to construct a breakwater across the front of his boat docks to protect his slips and provide additional docking facilities.

Neighbors directly to the south in Lakeview Subdivision contend that the breakwater will create a pool of stagnant water which may become polluted.

They also object to the fact that Irish planted 16 mooring anchors in front of and to the south of his property last summer. They say boats tied up at the moorings blocked their view of Lake Charlevoix and interferred with such activities as water skiing.

They are afraid expansion of the boatyard will infringe upon their water rights, according to Anthony Barone, president of the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners' Association.

Irish sought and was granted permission some months ago to construct a breakwater into Lake Charlevoix from the end of the present breakwater just south of the city-owned boat launching ramp. The breakwater would start at the city line, but virtually 100 percent of it would be located in Charlevoix Township.

Rod Stebbins, manager of the boat yard, said that original plans called for constructing the breakwater of sheet piling. However, recent work at the rear of the boat yard has uncovered a vast quantity of slab concrete, once part of Charlevoix's sugar beet factory.

Now, instead of sheet piling, Irish would like to use the slabs of concrete to build the breakwater. Stebbins says the breakwater would not only provide a convenient means of disposing of the concrete, but also would create a wall which would retard wave action and at the same time allow a free flow of water through the chinks.

Stebbins says Irish cleared the new construction method with Barone and Barone approved, providing that several concrete culverts would be built into the breakwater to insure a free flow of water. Irish agreed.

Last Monday, Irish took his revised plan to the Charlevoix Township Board and ran headlong into a delegation of property owners who claim that construction of the breakwater will create a potential pollution problem.

Board members took no stand on the question, but expressed the hope that Irish and his neighbors will be able to work out a solution to their mutual satisfaction.

Later the same evening, Irish met with the Charlevoix City Council (in committee). The council said it had no objection to the proposed breakwater.

Stebbins says that property owners in Lakeview Subdivision are particularly sensitive to pollution problems, since high water during the past year has raised hob with their privately owned septic tank systems, introducing contamination to the lake.

Last July 31, Dean Mikulski, chief sanitarian for District Health Department No. 3, reported to the Charlevoix Council that if the coliform count in Lake Charlevoix at Ferry Beach rose much higher, the beach would have to be closed to swimmers. He said coliform is an "indicator organism" associated with the presence of fecal matter in the water.

However the beach, located about one quarter mile north of the subdivision, remained open for the remainder of the summer.

Stebbins reiterated that the concrete slabs would permit a free flow water into the yacht basin, which also is fed by Stover Creek and two large drain tiles extending to the rear of the Irish Boat Shop property.

He further said that Irish does not service boats that do not have holding tanks for waste effluent.

He said the company has gone to great lengths to make sure that absolutely no contaminants enter the lake from Irish property.

The company's own septic tank is located well back from the lake and the drain field is situated at the extreme rear of the property, adjacent to old M-66.

Boat tank effluent is pumped into a portable 55-gallon drum and is stored in

Irish Expands Harbor

During the late fall Irish Boat Shop, Inc. which operates boatyards at both Charlevoix and Harbor Springs completed a dredging program at the Lake Charlevoix location which has resulted in a much larger harbor area.

Dave Irish, president, explained, "This harbor expansion program has been undertaken so as to enable us to provide additional dock slips which are sorely needed to serve boaters in this area. With our expanded winter storage building and our increasing sales of new boats - both power and sail - we have been hard put to find sufficient dock space to accommodate the new customers coming to us at Charlevoix."

The dredging will permit the construction of at least one new large floating dock with 15 to 20 slips approximately 35 feet long. Also included in the harbor development program is the replacement of the old finger piers along the north side of the harbor with new and larger floating docks which will increase the number of useable slips there from 12 to 17.

The Irish Boat Shops have also increased the number of major marine products offered. The following sailboats are now sold and serviced at both yards: Pearson, Allied, Rasmus, Schock, O'Day, Ray Greene, Herreshoff America, Customflex, Cape Dory, Hobie Cat and Alcort. Major power boat lines include Stamas, Slickcraft, Boston Whaler and Mirro-Craft. Evinrude two-cycle and Bearcat 4-cycle Outboard motors are availabel to the fishing and water ski enthusiasts.

Wellman New President Of Community Chest

Gordon Wellman, executive vice president of the Charlevoix County State Bank, was elected president of the Charlevoix Community Chest at an organizational meeting Jan. 8.

Serving with him will be Jack Grubaugh, vice president; LoAnne Brown, secretary; and Virginia Hoffman, treasurer.

The board offered a vote of thanks to John Lachman who is retiring as president after nine years of service.

The treasurer reported that $18,962.03 was collected during the 1972 drive, about $1,000 under the $20,000 goal.

The next meeting of the board will be a budget hearing in June.

Council Denies Zoning For Puff's, Laundromat

The City Council Monday night refused to change the zoning of parcels of land at the corner of Bridge and Robinson-sts. from R-2 to commercial, quashing proposed construction of a Puff's Appliance outlet and laundromat by Richard Donaldson.

The council acted on the recommendation of the Charlevoix Planning Commission, which said the commercial development would create traffic problems adjacent to St. Marys Church and School.

Church school board members and nearby property owners objected to the change. Many of them showed up at Monday night's meeting.

Donaldson reportedly is looking for another site in the city for the combined appliance - laundromat project.

In other business the council:

–Agreed to have McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor do engineering work on sewer lines between the bridge and Dixon-ave. on U.S. 31. The project includes separation of sanitary and storm sewers.

–Heard Mayor Edward P. Hansen appoint surveyor Mary Feindt, Dr. Walter Hoffmann and Ron Peterson as a special assessment board. One of the board's first duties will be drawing up an assessment for the proposed May-st. sanitary sewer.

–Earmarked $150 as the city's share of a new dual frequency police radio system initiated by the county. The money will go toward a new main radio receiver at the police station which will tie-in with existing equipment.

–Gave the city's approval to the issuance of a dance permit to the Topside ('Tween Decks), requested by Edward Corradi and Mrs. Millie Mack. Alderman Robert Gill cast the only dissenting vote.

–Authorized the mayor and

This clinic will provide diagnosis and remedial help for pre-school children who are: 1) Pre-stuttering children - those often repeating words or phrases; 2) Delayed in speech - those not talking by 2½ years or having many sound errors; 3) Cleft palate children or those experiencing other voice difficulties, and; 4) Hard of hearing to an extent that speech is affected.

Parents who suspect their child may need help in any of these areas are urged to make an appointment by calling the Central Lake Elementary School at 544-5221.

GOP Finance Post Goes to Dawson Way

Robert Wise, chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Party, reports that Dawson Way has been appointed finance chairman with the unanimous approval of the executive committee.

Way, who is in charge of all Farm Bureau agencies in northern Michigan, lives on M-66 south of Charlevoix. He and his wife, Joann have five children.

Local Republicans were scheduled to hold their spring convention Jan. 16 at 8 p.m. at the County Building to elect delegates to the stae convention, slated Feb. 16 and 17 at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Care Units To Be Dedicated Sunday

Dedication of new intensive and coronary care units at Charlevoix Area Hospital will be held Sunday, Jan. 21, starting with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 1 p.m.

Guests will be welcome to visit the facility until 5 p.m.

Refreshments will be served throughout the afternoon by the Women's Guild.

The new units, which are located on the west side of the building just north of the obstetrics ward, were built with funds donated by Charlevoix area residents and summer visitors.

Among the major gifts was a bequest of more than $100,000 from the John Stewart estate and $50,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings of The Anchorage on Lake Charlevoix.

Supervisor of the new units will be Mrs. Nancy McAskill, R.N., under the direction of Dr. Rudolfo Lorenzo, M.D., physician-in-charge.

Five Charlevoix Hospital nurses have received specialized instruction on operation of the units and the use of monitoring equipment. Nurses on duty will keep tabs on the condition of each patient via electronic monitoring devices at a centrally located station.

General contractor for the units was Petrie Construction of East Jordan. Electrical work was done by Webb Electric of Petoskey. Wares and Son of Traverse City handled plumbing and heating. The monitoring equipment was purchased from General Electric.

Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, says the new units are part of a three-phase program to bring the hospital up to state conformance standards.

Work will start immediately on construction of locker rooms for doctors and nurses

OPEN HOUSE will be held at the new coronary and intensive care units at Charlevoix Area Hospital this Sunday starting at 1 p.m. Refreshments will be served by the Women's Guild. The special units were constructed with funds raised during a community-wide campaign last summer and through a bequest from the John Stewart estate.

1972 Building Permits Total $6.6 Million

If you think that Charlevoix is in the midst of an unprecedented building boom, you're right.

City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna reports that building permits totaling $6,606,500 were issued during 1972, compared to $509,423 in 1971 and $1,044,640 in 1970, half of which was the new county jail.

Included in the 1972 total are five condominiums, none of which is really underconstruction as yet although ground has been cleared for some of them.

They include LaHavre, 26 units; The Dunes, 32 units; LaCroft, 64 units; Chez Charlevoix, 42 units; and Phase II of the Wharf, 16 units, for a total of 180 units.

Phase I of The Wharf, which was occupied late last year, was constructed on a building permit originally granted in 1969.

The 1972 figure covers 20 new houses, including two duplexes, with a total price tag of $458,700. Permits for 18 new houses were issued in 1971 and 16 in 1970.

In addition, eight permits for commercial buildings were issued in 1972, totaling $113,400. They include the Holiday Stationstore on S. Bridge-st., a cable TV warehouse, Naph-Sol Gas Station (Zephyr), the Charlevoix County State Bank branch, the new state liquor store, owned by Willard Drost; and a building constructed by electrician Denver Jackson.

In 1971, permits were issued for eight new commercial buildings.

The 1972 year-end report shows that permits were granted for:

–Nine new garages, $13,600.

–Five accessory buildings, $800.

--Five buildings moved, $30,000.

–Four buildings torn down, $2,300.

–One new office building (Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District), $166,000.

–Twenty-two additions to residences, $73,610.

–Eight additions to commercial buildings, $173,500. (A&W, Hufford Industries, Bntley Marine, formerly Brow Marina, for the removal of boathouses, replacement of slips and retaining wall and construction of a bulkhead.

Teen Center Is Opening In Congregational Church

A teen center sponsored by the Congrateens of the First Congregational Church is now open Friday and Saturday evenings at the church.

Charlevoix Jaycees have volunteered to act as chaperones for the month of January and other adults are needed to chaperone activities for February, March and April, after which the center will disband for the summer.

The center is open from 7:30 until 10 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays in the church basement.

There is no admission charge. A pool table, pin-ball machine, ping pong a juke box and a coke machine are available.

"It's a friendly place for Charlevoix's teens to gather and feel comfortable," says Don Blalock of the Jaycees. "Anyone is welcome."

Any adult couple in town can volunteer to act as chaperones by contacting Coordinating Chairman Ron Moore at 547-4182.

Visitors are asked to use the door on the southeast of the church.

DNR 'Elated' by Decision on Monroe Creek

Department of Natural Resources officials made no attempt to hide their elation at the final verdict of the Monroe Creek trial which in extraordinary terms vindicated the judgment of the late Dr. Ralph A. MacMullan, director of the DNR.

The case filed by environmental and conservation groups and local landowners was an attempt to nullify a DNR permit and land exchange to a Detroit developer to dam the creek to form a lake center for a 1300 home development project near Charlevoix.

The crux of the case, as voiced by these plaintiffs, got down to challenging the DNR Director's judgment on all of the facts and issues at hand, notably his projection of what would happen to environmental values in the future if unplanned development were allowed to take the place of the proposed project.

At the trial Dr. MacMullan had testified he would have preferred that the land remain wild and the creek undisturbed. He stated that the decisive factor in his decision to issue the dam building permit and to trade two DNR easements for a 40-acre parcel of land was that the builder had a well organized plan of development that was aesthetically pleasing and yet included the necessary environmental safeguards.

"I knew this land was essentially all privately owned and was certain it would eventually be developed," said Dr. MacMullan.

Inasmuch as the developer's land was private property, the DNR had no control over what would happen to it in the absence of a dam, and since the land might be sold to "unregulated and unpredictable developers, the kind that are ruining the north country," Dr. MacMullan felt he should settle for the best plan he could get under the circumstances.

Dr. MacMullan also stated that "the developer had a well organized plan which will probably be more pleasing aesthetically than unplanned building whatever the zoning...The correct approach now is to control the development in such a way as to provide benefits to the public and a fair and just treatment to the present owners."

Dr. David H. Jenkins, assistant director of the DNR, described the anxiety and strain former Director MacMullan had suffered before granting the permit to Francis D. Sheldon of Detroit. "Dr. MacMullan was torn both ways by the decision – fretting, considering, worrying, comparing. I compiled much of the field data for him and he insisted that we check and recheck every fact, every possible aspect of the case."

The charge that the DNR violated the Environmental Protection Act of 1970 because it would have caused substantial damage to the environment was swept away by Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown of Charlevoix who wrote, "The public trust has not been violated...At most, two miles of trout habitat would be replaced by an impoundment in which thousands of cold and warm water fish eventually could exist. The loss of the habitat would be trivial, the compensatory gain would be great..."

Of charges that Mr. MacMullan erred in considering the future of the area as a factor in his decision, Judge Brown wrote, "A good director should be complimented rather than criticized and condemned for obtaining all information possible, as Dr. MacMullan did in this case, before making his recommendations, and he had a legal right and duty to consider the 'overall effect' and 'long range view'."

"This statement will become a DNR policy because obviously taking the long view and considering all aspects of a situation will help the DNR do a better job of deciding the complicated situations we have to face," Jenkins explained. "It would be typical of Dr. MacMullan who did so much to help save the natural environment to leave the agency this verdict as a tool."

The judge's verdict which dropped judicial formality and closed with a eulogy of Dr. MacMullan, also upheld the DNR in trading two easements adjoining the creek for 50 acres of Warner Creek, a pledge by Sheldon to build a public access site to the 430-acre lake, and to restrict building codes so as to insure maximum environmental protection.

Judge Brown retired from the bench after returning his decision. He wrote it was the longest he had ever done, but the Court specifically retained jurisdiction over all phases of the development, including construction of the dam and its siltation, underspillways to control outlet flow, erosion, water and sewage in the subdivision, and public roads and access, all safeguards which Sheldon had pledged to Dr. MacMullan.

Judge Brown quoted two of MacMullan's statements:

"Like most issues this one was not 100 percent clearcut; in my judgment it was more like 55-45 percent in favor," and "Time and the courts will tell whether the decision was right or not. I think it was, but I make no claim to infallibility," and then Judge Brown commented:

"This court believes and finds that Dr. MacMullan was right, but also makes no claim to infallibility, and wishes to express regrets of his untimely passing and say "Amen" to a Detroit Free Press column of Oct. 1, 1972, by Tom Opre, entitled "MacMullan's Death a Blow to Nature."

Party Takes Spanish Club By Surprise

By Donna Hutchinson

The member of the Spanish Club has a pleasant surprise Jan. 3.

When they went to a supposed meeting at Kim Carter's, they soon found themselves on their way to the Sounder's house a few blocks away. There they were greeted by their officers and advisor – and a New Years party!

Plenty of Tacos, a relish tray and punch were served and enjoyed. But the highlight of the evening was an extra sturdy pinata filled with candy and other treats.

The party had been planned for weeks by the officers, but was kept secret. Everyone agreed that it was a big success!

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four percent and (d) $3.00 tax expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore you plaintiff prays:

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Does Cross Village Really Warrant $2.2 Million Harbor?

No wonder we're broke!

Keith Wilson, director of the Michigan Waterways Commission, announced in Petoskey Jan. 5, that a proposed $2.2 million harbor of refuge at Cross Village has "top priority" among all Great Lakes harbor projects, so far as his department is concerned.

He explained in detail how the federal government would kick in $1.4 million and the Waterways Commission $804,000. The balance would come from fisheries funds, because Ralph Cross ties up his fish tug there from time to time.

The township would donate 750 feet of Lake Michigan frontage. There would be no local outlay of hard cash, because the township already owns the shore property.

Wilson says the harbor is needed because it is 50 miles between existing harbors at Harbor Springs and Mackinaw City. The state goal is to have a harbor of refuge every 30 miles, at most.

Wilson outlined the plan before a meeting of the Northwest Michigan Economic Development District and Regional Planning Commission, which heartily endorsed the project.

There is little doubt that present docking facilities at Cross Village need some improvement. But we are aghast at the thought of spending $2.2 million to build a 36-well harbor at Cross Village, a vest pocket size community that boasts only one grocery store, a tavern, a gas station and an Indian museum.

Wilson says the Waterways Commisson estimates the Harbor would be visited by 300 to 500 transient boats in the first year, and twice that many after five years, which makes one wonder if the Waterways Commission is interested in building a true "harbor of refuge" or is simply out to create a boaters' mecca where none exists now. If so, the project should be undertaken by the community, not the state and federal governments.

The inclusion of parking facilities and a launching ramp at the site indicates that the project is something more than a "harbor of refuge."

In fact, we seriously doubt the wisdom of luring the owners of small boats to try their nautical skills on the treacherous, shoaly waters south of Waugoshance Point by the creation of a launching ramp in the area.

If a true harbor of refuge is needed at Cross Village, we are confident that a small breakwater and slips for four or five boats could be contructed at a cost of less than $2.2 million in state and federal funds, all of which must come out of the pockets of American taxpayers.

No wonder we're broke!

Barone States Case For Property Owners

Mr. Dean Mikulski
Chief Environmentalist
District No. 3 Health Department
County Building Annex
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Reference: Proposed Breakwater at Irish Marina

Dear Mr. Mikulski:

Many lakefront property owners, especially those in the immediate area, strenuously object to such form of lake pollution; not to mention the traffic hazard it would present, especially with a public launching ramp immediately adjoining the breakwater.

As you know, water pollution especially in exactly this area has reached dangerous proportions. You yourself have mentioned the possibility of having to close the public beach immediately adjoining. Another year of water sampling further supports your concern and fears; water quality is getting worse.

The proposed breakwater would be extended more than one hundred fifty feet from what is already a point separating two bays. Stover Creek feeds at this point and such a breakwater would seriously effect ecology, and natural water flow that tends to keep water and beaches clean.

We trust you will use your office, responsibility and authority to prevent such abuse and misuse of Charlevoix County's most valuable natural resource.

Sincerely,

Anthony Barone, President
Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association.

PRAISES TANTON

Dear Bob:

Also speaking for the lakefront property owners: With possibly one exception, all property owners in the immediate area have expressed resentment at Irish's aggressive and inconsiderate use of lake bottom land. They do not appreciate looking out at his anchorage or flotilla of boats, which, in some cases, are in front of their lakefront properties. So, too, it is restrictive, i.e., sailing, waterskiing.

Having spoken for others, I would now like to speak for myself; there is another aspect that concerns me more. I do not exclude myself from this most prevalent, if not only, human failing: I'm talking about "double standard": "one for me and another for the other guy." Those of us who like to fight are quick to try to stop another guy's aggression or pollution, but somehow we don't or can't see our own. (We need each other.)

I am grateful and thankful to Dr. John Tanton for showing me that one should fight for what one believes in. This is the way I see it, Bob, and if you think this letter is newsworthy, I would appreciate your printing it. Help keep and make "us" Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Sincerely,
Tony

Readers Respond To Arnett

Mr. Editor:

Re: Judd Arnett Column, Detroit Free Press, 1-10-73.

First of all, why not be honest with your readers? Would it not be more in keeping with your fuzzy thinking if instead of Charlevoix Courier your masthead was changed to The Hanoi News?

It may be that the news has not yet reached your village, but on Nov. 7th, the people of these U.S. said "No" to the high priest who espoused the theory you are now preaching. I think his name was MacGiverin or something like that.

Keep up the good work. I am sure Le Duc Tho is very proud of you — and you ilk.

Sir:

Judd Arnett's back page column of the Detroit Free Press of January 10 commenting on your "Advertisement" re: Nixon and the sorry Vietnam affair is very interesting. May sincere congratulations on your stand and the willingness to express it in your editorials.

It is high time that the people of America spoke out through whatever medium or by whatever means is available to keep them in trying to bring Nixon to his senses.

Keep up the good work.

Most sincerely,

The Eyes Have It

By BOB CLOCK

Living in the same house with a kid who has just gotten her first pair of eye glasses is something akin to harboring a Russian spy under your roof: Neither of them miss a thing.

Katie was fitted with her first pair of spectacles last week and a whole new universe has opened up for her — and us.

Did you know, for example, that there is mortar between the bricks in Erber's Garage, across the street from Dr. Bob Anderson's optometry office?

That is the first thing Katie noticed when she walked back into the waiting room with her new spectacles perched precariously on her nose.

"Look!" she shrieked, peering out of the office window on a brand new world. "Look!" There are cracks between the bricks in Erber's building!"

Frankly, I didn't know that her eyes were so bad, but I guess when it comes to kids, parents are the last to know. Dr. Anderson says that near-sightedness developes so slowly, that even the victims don't realize they aren't seeing everything they're supposed to until their myopia is well advanced.

Since Katie got her glasses, we are surprised at the things she notices: Smudges on the window panes, lines between the paneling in paneled rooms, the numbers on the dining room clock and the faint signatures at the bottom of paintings in classrooms and corridors at the Elementary School.

The other day she came running into the house from the front yard where she was playing to report that she could see the tops of the trees.

I'll never forget the day I got my first pair of glasses from "Alva Hunn — Jewelers" on Grand River-ave. in Detroit. They were rose tinted with wire frames and I suppose they would be considered haut couture today. But they made me look like an owl with conjunctivitis.

Like Katie, I was eight years old and I remember riding home on the Grand River streetcar with my mother. She found a seat, but I stood up next to the motorman, marveling at how the twin ribbons of metal track sparkled in the sunlight in front of us as we clattered through the old neighborhood.

Things had never appeared so brightly before. Familiar sights took on an entirely new appearance. Buildings had sharp corners, the letters on billboards and street signs had a chiseled look about them. The fuzz through which I had seen the word for so long was gone.

Fortunately, my sister had been fitted with glasses before I had, so my arrival home with a brand new pair of spectacles didn't create a great deal of sibling rivalry. Unfortunately, I can't say the same thing about the Clock household today.

Jennifer took one look at her big sister's flashy new glasses with the mottled blue horn rims, and decided her own eyesight was beginning to dim. She stumbled over the dog, complained of headaches and bumped repeatedly into the coffee table before Judy was able to call her bluff.

She, Katie and Judy were all looking out of the back window to watch a new snow storm arrive in Charlevoix, when Katie suddenly announced that she didn't know before that we could see from our kitchen into the Charles Bergmann's kitchen a half a block away on Lewis-st.

"Oh, sure we can," Jennifer said, "See, there's Mrs. Bergmann opening the refrigerator door."

"What is she getting?" Judy asked.

"A jar of olives," Jennifer shot back, "Can't you see the pimentos?"

Jennifer probably won't need glasses until she's 90. And then she'll only use them to repair watches.

It's Not Funny To Be Old

By Jim Fitzgerald

When TV comedians such as Carol Burnett and Tim Conway do take-offs on old people, shuffling to their rocking chairs, I find it hard to laugh.

Likewise, it is going to be difficult to write anything funny about today's subject which is old people (excuse me if I don't say "senior citizens." That stuffy euphemism bugs me. It sounds as if someone might be ashamed of growing old. When you consider the alternative, it is nothing to be ashamed of).

The publisher of my favorite newspaper thought it would be a good idea if deliquent subscribers received a personal note from the editor (that's me), reminding them to pay up or become nonsubscribers. Some of the answers I've received are a real kick in the heart.

The most common reason for old people quitting the paper is they can no longer see it. Their eyesight has failed.

"I've been reading The Press every week for 75 years," one woman wrote, "and always enjoyed it. But not I find I must stop taking it. I am going blind and can no longer see the print."

Geez. Couldn't a younger relative stop at her house once a week and read the paper to her?

Then there are the many old people who stop taking the paper because "I don't recognize any of the names anymore. Everyone I knew is dead."

I shut my eyes and see the last leaf on a tree, withered and cracked, but still hanging on. Alone. Completely alone. No one cares if the leaf falls, or doesn't.

Geez again. Certainly there are some younger people who know this old lady whose friends are all dead. Why don't they call on her once in awhile? Give her some new friends?

Some of the old people renew their their subscriptions, and their notes can be poignant, too. Like this one from an old woman: "Thanks for the reminder. Enclosed find check for $10 for 1 more year. My son came last week to get my husband settled in a rest home. Next year it may be me."

Ah. Let us hope the son is good for something besides transporting his parents to a rest home and then forgetting them except at Christmas.

I hope I'm not boring you young people. I hope I'm making you uncomfortable. And, before someone asks the sharp question, I herewith make a confession: There are several old people who deserve a lot better from me than they are getting. My wife takes care of those things at my home. She visits the old folks and drives them places and takes them gifts. I stay home and do the important things, like watch TV and play pool.

I am among the many who should be ashamed of the way they treat old people. Which is probably why I can't laugh when Carol Burnett and Tim Conway put on wrinkles and complain about their no-sex lives.

It is not funny to be old and forgotten. If all you young folks will resolve to remember that this year, so will I.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Seventy years ago the kindergarten teacher became fluent in one or more foreign languages depending of the homeland of the immigrant parents involved. Imagine teaching a bewildered Finnish child to read and write "wax" or "quiz" knowing their language disregards the letters Q, W, X, and Z.

Inattention drew a rap across the knuckles or open palm as education progressed. This was routine discipline, distinguished from punishment which was administered at home with a belt or razor strop. Either one reached the seat of the problem with no ridiculous "This will hurt me more than you" philosophy. Truancy was treated in like manner with increasing vigor on succeeding occasions.

Extracurricular activities such as carrying wood, shoveling walks and cleaning backboards were imposed by the parents leaving more time to teach such obsolete subjects as Palmer Method Penmanship, Composition and spelling which were deemed important by many illiterate taxpayers.

Since few of us entered college the teachers only requard in most cases was $60 a month received for 11 hours daily effort and Saturday thrown in free. This must amuse the modern educator basking in the achievements of a protege writing from those hallowed halls to wit:

"I rote on Biding Duvtaled Droors for Shop. Teach sed my speling is atroshus--watever that meens!"

It was our misfortune that Modern English was not in vogue in our day. We could have written "Vaks" and "kvis" and by this handy shortcut have more time to guess at the probable answers to arithmetic problems to become the inventors of Modern Math.

Tunisia Remains The Land of the Lotus

Is there is any truth to the myth, Homer's Ulysses sailing the wine-dark sea from Troy was among the first travelers captivated by Tunisia's beaches, people, and palms?

He and his men, so the story goes, put in at the Tunisian island of Jerba. It was serene, then as now. The people of Jerba, not caring much for work, spent their time enjoying themselves. They subsisted on Jerba. It was serene, then as now. The people of Jerba, not caring much for work, spent their time enjoying themselves. They subsisted on something called "lotus" – nourishing, delicious, and apparently available in unlimited quantity.

Ulysses' companions took to the lighthearted Tunisian way of life immediately, and to the lotus. Nobody wanted to leave. He had an awful time getting them back into the boats to return to Greece. Where's the Lotus?

Since then, unfortunately, no one – not even the National Geographic Society – has been able to identify that lotus with precision. If it ever existed, it is now gone, and the people of the idyllic island of Jerba must work for a living.

Tunisia is the stable little country about the size of Florida at the northernmost hump of Africa, immediately across the Mediterranean from Sardinia and Sicily. It is a peaceful oasis between sometimes turbulent Algeria and oil-rich Libya.

Independent since 1956 when President Habib Bourguiba and his patriots finally evicted the French by force and persuasion, Tunisia maintains good relations with everybody, east west, north, and south.

Moslem Tunisians say their country's Jews have been cherished and protected in their rights for more than 2,000 years. The country is basically Moslem, but Christian churches also thrive.

Ever mindful that their country, much of it green and well-watered, was the granary of Caesar's Rome, the Tunisians today tend their wheat fields, their vineyards (Which produce excellent and wonderfully inexpensive wines), their olive and date groves, and their sheep and camels.

But more and more the Tunisians cater to vacationers, mostly from France, Germany, Scandinavia, and Britain. Hotels are cheap and good, and the beaches and the Mediterranean are warm most days the year 'round.

Americans in quantity have not yet discovered Tunisia, but German Chancellor Willy Brandt and Brigitte Bardot have. Like President Nixon in San Clemente, Chancellor Brandt relaxes on a Tunisian beach whenever he can get away.

And Miss Bardot has been observed swimming in the buff in a secluded, palm-fringed cove.

Can American vacationers be far behind?

an underground holding tank which is emptied periodically by a septic tank service company.

Stebbins said boat effluent could not be introduced to Irish's own septic system, because of the powerful chemicals used in the ship board systems.

As for the mooring of boats in front of Lakeview Subdivision, Stebbins admits that two of the 16 mooring anchors might have been placed slightly to the south of Irish property last summer.

However, he said all but one of the anchors has been removed and will be placed next summer either in front of property either owned by Irish or under option to Irish.

Because of the pie-shaped configuration of many lake lots, Stebbins said it sometimes appears that a boat is moored directly in front of a given piece of property when in reality it is some distance away. He called it an "optical illusion."

The residents also have complained that the moored boats were unlighted.

Stebbins said that by the end of the season all of the boats had been equipped with lights.

The next step in the continuing argument apparently is up to the Corps of Engineers which has been asked to approve the new method of breakwater construction.

clerk to sign a 10-year lease with Central Radio Telegraph Co. for construction of a radio tower atop Mt. McSauba.

Learned from City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna that the Corps of Engineers has OK'd expenditure of $50,000 in emergency funds to shore up the northeast bank of Pine River Channel, if the city can secure easements to the property from James Hiller and the State Highway Department and if the city agrees to maintain any improvements. City Attorney Robert Hoffman said he would draw up the necessary easement agreements.

--Received an additional $30,465 in federal revenue sharing funds, bringing the total to date to more than $60,000.

--Agreed to guarantee the federal government's share ($12,000 to $13,000) of funds for construction of sludge drying beds at the new sewage plant.

--Heard a recommendation by Alderman Sam Supernaw that the city look into the purchase of the Erber Garage property for parking. Erber plans to move this year to a new location on U.S. 31 south. The downtown property carries a $100,000 price tag, Supernaw said. The city discussed creation of a special assessment district among merchants to purchase the property.

--Set Feb. 26 as the date of a hearing on demolition of Hal Forbrig's former casino property on Meech-st.

--Agreed to notify Mrs. Mildred Campbell that it is not interested in acquiring her Pine River Channel frontage as a scenic reserve. Mrs. Campbell offered the land to the city for $11,600.

--Said it had no objection to plans for remodeling the rear of Leutheuser's restaurant.

--Made plans for the meeting next Monday with the School Board.

--Paid bills totaling $174,228.09.

AT MEETING WITH COUNCIL

School Asks Change In Curfew Law

Members of the Charlevoix Board of Education met with the Charlevoix City Council for two hours in the High School cafeteria Monday night to discuss problems of mutual interest, including the future of the city library, the May-st. sewer, a proposed trespassing ordinance, changes in the curfew, the hiring of a full-time recreation director and a proposal to collect city taxes in the summer.

School board members attending the meeting were President Richard Donaldson, Jane Lieberman, Donald Brown, Larry Warner, Clem Wagner, Rev. Duane Imig, Charles Elzinga and student representative Maureen Wallace.

Attending from the city were Mayor Edward P. Hansen and Aldermen Sam Supernaw, Clifton Sundberg, Gerald Selph, Robert Gill, Robert Timms and Richard Fochtman.

Also seated at the conference table were School Superintendent Robert Miller, Business Manager Robert Bogart, Principals Vane Smith, Glenn Snider and Max Novak and City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna.

CURFEW

Donaldson said the present 9:30 p.m. curfew whistle is meaningless, since it isn't used as a tool to get young people off the street. He suggested that the curfew age be lowered and the time advanced and that the curfew be enforced.

Hanna said that under the present curfew ordinance, youngsters under age of 14 should be off the streets by 9:30 p.m. and those under 16 should be off the streets by 11 p.m., unless they are with their parents or have parental permission to be out.

He said a state statute sets a 10 p.m. curfew for 12-year-old and younger and a midnight curfew for person 16 years old and younger.

Donaldson suggested that the city adopted the state statute.

LIBRARY

Supt. Miller explained that a movement is afoot in the state to abolish school-supported public libraries. He implied that if this happens, the city might be called upon for library funds. He said the library costs about $30,000 a year to operate, about two-thirds of which comes from property taxes and the balance from other sources, such as state aid and penal fines.

Donaldson said that he prefers the broader support for the library that is possible under the school district.

"This way the library is being paid for by the people who use it," he said, explaining that the school districts derives funds from adjoining townships as well as the city.

Miller said the state goal seems to be the creation of a new state library system, with county libraries at the lowest level.

MAY-ST. SEWER

Mayor Hansen says he hopes to have the new sanitary sewer in the ground by this coming summer. The school's anticipated share of the project is expected to be about $35,000.

Donaldson said the board is interested in the sewer because of plans under consideration to expand present high school facilities. He added that the restrooms in the new Sports Boosters building at Kipke field cannot be used until the sewer is installed.

A discussion of anticipated school growth followed, including an observation that the schools could well draw many students from the many condominiums now under construction in the city.

"The birth rate is not as important as move-ins, when it comes to school enrollment," he said.

"We do know that people are bailing out of southeastern Michigan," he added, citing alarming drops in school enrollment in the Detroit area.

Principal Vane Smith suggested that the city look

Most CHS Grads Want To Live, Work in Area

A growing number of Charlevoix High School graduates want to stay in the old home town to work and make their homes, according to Dr. William Ratigan's year-end report on what Charlevoix's last crop of high school graduates is doing.

"In a community where, not many years ago, young adults tended to move elsewhere to find jobs and excitement, this class (1972) found about 30 satisfying means of employment," Dr. Ratigan, head of the school Counseling Department, noted in the preface to his round-up.

He said the Class of '72 is also distinguished by the fact that it produced more housewives sooner than any other class in Charlevoix school history. The survey shows that one woman of every five in the class is now married, for a total of 10.

In contrast, only two of the men have married. The class numbered 93 students and was almost equally divided among men and women.

The study also shows that 22 men and 21 women have gone on to college, about 46 percent of the class. The average over the years has been about 50 percent. Most of the students went to four-year universities, with only 12 attending junior colleges.

One student withdrew from college because of a health problem, but plans to continue his education this spring.

Michigan State University has bowed to Ferris State as the most popular senior college among Charlevoix grads, with three women applying at MSU and eight men at FSC.

Among graduates who didn't go on to college, Oleson's Shopping Center provided the most jobs, four or more, followed by LexaLite, three or more.

Following is a breakdown of what members of the Class of '72 are now doing:

Leisa Ager is now Mrs. Rod Stone.

Alan Avery is stationed in North Carolina after graduating at the top of his Marine training school.

Enos Bacon works for American Mold.

Tanton Won't Appeal

The 13-month-old Monroe Creek lawsuit was concluded in Charlevoix Circuit Court Jan. 18 when Judge Charles L. Brown initiated his final judgment.

Dr. John Tanton of Petoskey, who initiated the suit against Department of Natural Resources officials and developer Francis D. Shelden, agreed not to appeal Judge Brown's decision to a higher court, in exchange for an agreement from Shelden not to press a $400,000 counter claim.

Last month, Judge Brown ruled in favor of Shelden and the DNR, paving the way for construction of a dam across Monroe Creek in South Arm Township.

The impounded water will create a 400-acre lake which will be the focal point of a 1,500-homesite development.

Dr. Tanton had charged that construction of the dam would destroy wetlands, degrade the quality of Monroe Creek and place other heavy burdens on the environment.

Bucket Brigade Meets

Volunteer members of the "Bucket Brigade", an organization to help youngsters with learning disabilities, met Tuesday, Jan. 23, at the home of Mrs. William Cockfield, 408 Michigan-ave.

According to a brochure prepared by the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, the Bucket Brigade program is designed to help elementary school children who are identified by their classroom teacher as having problems which interfere with their academic progress and achievement.

"This program is aimed by getting aid to such children as soon as they begin to fall behind their classmates," the brochure says.

Volunteers usually work with students on a one-to-one basis in problem areas identified by the classroom teacher.

Anyone interested in joining the program should contact Mrs. Cockfield at 547-4138 or Mrs. Vern Mathews jr. at 547-9896.

The Weather? City Has Had Everything

In the weather department, Charlevoix has had a little bit of everything in the past week – a January thaw, snow, near zero temperatures, rain, freezing rain and slush.

In mid-week, temperatures zoomed into the high 40's, snowbanks melted and patches of green grass appeared in East Park. Friday it snowed and Saturday and Sunday the mercury plunged to near zero.

Sunday night, freezing rain arrived, resulting in closed schools throughout the area Monday. Rain mixed with snow Monday night left the roads slushy, but passable, Tuesday morning.

Half-Staff Flags Honor Late LBJ

Flags at the post office, Charlevoix schools and other public buildings will fly at half-staff for the coming month in honor of the memory of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, who died unexpectedly at his home in Texas Jan. 22 of an apparent heart attack.

Flags in the city have flown at half-staff since last Dec. 26, following the death of former President Harry S. Truman.

C of C Elects Directors

Three new members have been elected to the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, according to Tom Merta, executive secretary.

They are Josh Barnes, general manager of LexaLite, David Phillips, co-owner of Grey Gables, and Loanne Brown of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

They will succeed William Cooper, Bruce Bartlett and George Richardson.

Olson's Awarded Bonus in Lottery

Oleson's Food Store in Charlevoix has been awarded a $200 prize from the Bureau of State Lottery for selling Joseph Medlin his grand prize winning ticket.

Medlin received a $50,000 prize in a grand drawing in Southfield shortly before the holidays.

Oleson's $200 prize was part of the $10,800 awarded lottery agents who sold tickets to 54 "super winners," according to Gus Harrison, lottery commissioner. The lottery winners themselves were awarded $2,910,000.

The top bonus prize of $500 (for the $200,000 winner) has gone to a pizzeria, two neighborhood food stores, a Sears Roebuck store, a drug store and a donut shop.

Harrison said exactly half of the super winners bought their tickets from food stores. Seven of the winners bought their tickets at drug stores and seven purchased them at bars or taverns.

Seven of the 54 super winners have been from the city of Detroit, Harrison added.

Draft Reorganization To Continue in '73

Reorganization of Michigan's draft board in preparation for probable standby operations some time in 1973 has been virtually completed, according to Arthur A. Holmes, state director of Selective Service.

During the past year many smaller county draft boards have been consolidated into intercounty boards, and larger boards have been grouped at single sites. The number of local board offices has been reduced from 97 to 79. The original 134 local boards, many of them part time, have been consolidated to form 81 full time boards. An additional 14 Detroit boards will be consolidated early in 1973.

Congress has authorized Selective Service to continue standby operations if inductions are suspended in July 1973. Local boards would continue to register and classify registrants and maintain an available manpower pool to prepare for any emergency resumption of the draft.

All young men continue to be subject to registration within 30 days of their 18th birthday or up to 30 days after that date. Registration can be accomplished at any local board office or with volunteer registers who have been appointed in most high schools and youth centers. Young men who have any questions about registration may write or call the draft board.

All remaining draft boards operate on a full-time basis, thus providing better service to the public. In addition to cost savings, centralization has also made possible improved supervision and uniformity of decisions.. All draft boards will be capable of rapid expansion in the event of any major mobilization.

Library notes

This week we can boast of some handsome new art books to add to our shelves. It is always gratifying to know how well received our collection of art books is by our patrons and, at least two of the books mentioned in this column were collectors' items until they were recently reprinted.

"The Illustration of Frederic Remington" is one example, Today Remington stands among the foremost illustrators of horses--his consuming passion--and the Wild West. He drew and painted without interpretation, recording at a glance the action he felt driven to capture. He would sketch anything that caught his interest, and he has left us a pictorial history of America which has never been surpassed.

The book has a commentary by Owen Wister and was edited with a concise biography and an account of Remington's works and career by Marta Jackson. It is interesting to know that Remington was a football buff and, during his initial year at Yale, he excelled as a football hero rather than as an art student. Still he found time to sketch the thrilling plays during football practice. He also enjoyed sketching the amazing ethnic variety of the immigrant poor on New York City's Lower East Side as well as the affluent riders on the Bridle Path at Central Park. This unusual compilation brings the full range of Remington's great talent into a single volume for the first time.

To most Americans, Winslow Homer is by a wide margin the greatest painter the United States has produced. In the 90 years since he first began selling his oils and water colors, his reputation has never suffered a decline. This new book "Winslow Homer" is a comprehensive collection of his art, a biography of his life, the story of his friends, his times, and the influences that molded him. It is also an interpretation of how his genius flowered and why this shy Yankee "was" and still in some mysterious way, remains a perennially vital modern artist. Most of the illustrations are in black and white altho there are some magnificent color plates.

Henry Moore is probably the greatest sculptor alive today, Born in Yorkshire, the son of a miner, his sculpture has something of the primitive power and the heaving shapes of his native hills. In this handsome new book, a selection of the best of Moore's work, from the early '20's to some of his recently finished pieces can be seen.

RON KEWAGSHKEN (No. 13) scored 10 points for Charlevoix JV's in the game with Rogers City Friday night. Kewagshken connected on two field goals and six free throws

JV's Win One, Lose Another

Unlike their big brothers, the Rayders JV's bowed to their Onaway counterparts last Tuesday night, 47-38, but defeated Rogers City, 56-53.

Onaway led from the start, with quarter scores of 10-8; 22-17; 33-22 and 47-38.

High man for Charlevoix was Mike Streeter with 15 (6 and 3); followed by Dan Green, 9 (1 and 7); Chuck Faust, 8 (4 field goals); Kevin Martin, 4 (2 field goals); and Ron Kewagshken, 2 (1 field goal).

Scoring for Onaway were Hyde, 15; Tucker, 11; Bregg, 10; Porter, 6; Scheadig, 3; and Domke, 2.

Against Rogers City, Charlevoix JV's came on strong in the first half, scoring 16 points in the first period, compared to 9 for the Hurons, and 14 in the second period, compared to 8 for the Hurons. At the half the score was 30-17 in Charlevoix's favor.

However, in the second half, the Rayders slumped, scoring 13 points in each of the last two periods, while the Hurons scored 18 points in each of the last two periods. But the Charlevoix JV's had enough cushion to save the game by three points.

High man for Charlevoix was Mike Streeter with 21 (9 and 3); followed by Ron Kewagshken, 10 (2 and 6); Dave Martinchek, 9 (4 and 1); Dan Green, 6 (2 and 2); Kevin Martin 6 (2 and 2) and Chuck Faust, 4 (2 field goals).

Scoring for Rogers City were Shumate, 14; Florip, 12; Belusar, 8, Konieczny, 7; Solakis and Lingo, 5 each; and Peltz, 2.

Ironton

Mrs. Ross Alexander
547-9878

Mrs. Lisa Ford entertained a group of friends at a Tupperware party Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crowe received word of the death of Mr. Crowe's mother at her home in Arizona. Burial was in Detroit. The Crowes left Sunday to be with the family and to attend the funeral. They have the sincere sympathy of their neighbors and friends.

Leona Nietupski, one of the new owners of Scott's Marina, had a close call last week. She ventured out on the ice to retrieve gas tanks from fish shanties that were breaking through the ice and fell through into icy waters. Fortunately her son-in-law was with her and was able to throw her a rope and assist her onto firmer ice.

Correcting last week's news: Mrs. Ethel Kroll will continue as treasurer for the Ladies Church Fellowship. Mrs. Evelyn Alexander will be vice president for 1973.

THIS IS what Ironton looked like last Thursday after several days of balmy weather melted most of the snow and ice. Puddles formed in low places, fishermen deserted the lake, patches of green grass were in evidence and pussy willows were beginning to show. However Friday the temperature plunged and the snow resumed. (Photo by Hilda Alexander)

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1 That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3 That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four percent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4 That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays.

a That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges, are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended.

b That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

STEVE McCLELLAN (No. 33) was high point man in game with Rogers City Friday night. McClellan scored 16 points on 7 field goals and 2 free throws.

Rayders Defeat Onaway, Lose to Rogers City

Jerry Skippergosh scored 28 points against Onaway last Tuesday night, pushing the Rayders to a 73-65 victory.

However the Rogers City Hurons cut short the Rayders' one-game winning streak on Friday in a nip-and-tuck match that left Charlevoix two points behind — 62 to 60 — at the final buzzer.

In the Onaway game, Charlevoix trailed in the opening stanza, 20 to 16, but staged a 26-point scoring spree in the second period to put the Rayders ahead 42-33 at the half. Onaway was able to muster only 13 points in the second period.

Both teams slipped in the third period, Charlevoix scoring 14 to Onaway's 11. But in the final round, the Rayders racked up 21 to Onaway's 17, cinching the victory.

Skippergosh's 28-point total — the highests for any Charlevoix player this season — was scored on 10 field goals and 8 free throws.

Also in the scoring column were Randy Faust, 11 (3 and 5); Dennis Crain, 10 (4 and 2); Steve McClellan, 8 (4 field goals); Dale Boss, 6 (2 and 2); Clint Berlage, 6 (3 field goals); and Kevin Stokes and Potter, 2 each on field goals.

Scoring for Onaway were Stevenson, 16; Paulus and Nelson, 10 each; Visner and Miller, 7 each; W. Larson, 6; G. Larson, 5; and Freel and Chapman, 2 each.

Friday's game was a come-from-behind victory for Rogers City.

Charlevoix led in the first quarter, 16-12, only to have Onaway even the score at the half, 30 all.

In the third period, Charlevoix came back with 14, to the Huron's 11, for a three point lead, 44-41. But in the finale, Rogers City turned on the steam, scoring 21 points to Charlevoix's 16 and winning the game by a two-point margin.

Steve McClellan won CHS scoring honors, racking up 16 points on 7 field goals and 2 free throws.

Close on his heels were Randy Faust, 15 (7 field goals); and Dale Boss (6 and 2)

Also scoring were Jerry Skippergosh, 7 (2 and 3); Dennis Crain, 4 (1 and 2); and Clint Berlage, 4 (2 field goals).

On the scoreboard for Rogers City were Landis, 22; Lawes, 18; Budnick, 10; Foley, 8; and Solakis, 4.

Color TV, Booze Taken From Airport

The sheriff's department is investigating a breaking and entering at the Airport Inn on U.S. 31 South sometime early Saturday morning.

Hank Felix, co-owner of the bar, told deputies that a color TV set, a radio and several bottles of liquor had been taken. An unknown amount of money also was taken from the coin box on the pool table.

Deputies say the building was entered by forcing the lock on a side door.

The break-in occurred sometime after the bar closed at 2:45 and 8:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

We Did It! Bloodmobile Exceeds 100 Pint Goal

January 18, 1973
Mr. Robert Clock, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Bob,

We did it! For the first time we not only made our quota of 100 pints of blood but collected an extra 44 pints. Our push over the top was primarily due to Col. Durr and his men at the RBS site at Bay Shore. These Air Force men were not pre-registered but served as walk-in donors throughout the day.

We had 165 people register to give their blood. However, for various reasons 21 of these were rejected this visit, but at least they tried. It's because of all these people that our drive was a great success. There is a national shortage of blood this month and surpassing our quota helped us meet the appeal for blood issued by both the American Red Cross and President Nixon.

Our sincere thanks go to the people of the Community Reformed Church who allowed us to use their facilities.

The Ministerial Association furnished unloaders the morning of the drive, and Tom Hanna, Bob Hoffman, Ed Buday and Dave Bixel answered a frantic call and came to help load the truck at the conclusion of the drive. It seems we neglected to arrange for re-loading. These men deserve a special "thanks" for quickly coming to our rescue.

Again the Beta Sigma Phi sorority gals organized and staffed the whole Canteen for the entire day. They really earned their thank you. They asked that we convey their thanks as well as ours to Edward's I.G.A., Essenburg's Grocery, Neff's Market, Oleson's Food Store and Staley's Grocery. These merchants generously supplied all the goodies needed for the Canteen.

Our sincerest thanks go to our five doctors who somehow managed to find a couple hours from their busy schedules to insure the presence of a doctor during the entire session. We couldn't have done it without their cooperation.

We also are required to have Registered Nurses on duty throughout the day. Mrs. Tom LaBlance was responsible for scheduling these gals. They, and she, should be thanked for their willingness to help us continue our blood program.

Members and friends of the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Hospital and the Charlevoix Women's Club helped us man the various stations of the Bloodmobile and also helped us call all the previous donors when it was feared we might not make our quota.

Your front-page coverage and all other articles and information the Courier volunteers is certainly appreciated. The Petoskey News-Review as well as Radio Stations WJML, WMBN and WWRM also helped us by reminding people of the Bloodmobile. Our thanks to the entire news media.

We sincerely hope that we have not overlooked anyone and again wish to thank the people of Charlevoix for their continued support.

Sincerely yours,

Charlevoix Community

Aid Offered Families In Trouble

Jane and Bill might have been a Charlevoix County couple whose marriage was being torn apart with family problems. The mounting costs to feed their family of five was putting added pressure on Bill and forcing Jane to look for employment. The emotional demands of their teen age children and the lack of satisfactory social involvement had forced them apart. Drinking and then seeking personal understanding from someone else's wife and husband brought Jane and Bill's marriage to the breaking point.

This marriage and family was saved by the counseling of a professionally trained and experienced social worker at Michigan Children's Aid & Family Services. With confidential help, Jane and Bill recognized their problems and set about solving them objectively. The children are reflecting the increased stability of the home and the parents have found security and satisfaction in their home and life together.

A trained social worker is ready to help you, or a friend, if you have problems. The Michigan Children's Aid & Family Services Field Office is at 603 East Lake, Petoskey and the phone is 347-4463. This is a Community Chest-United Fund supported agency. It is private, non-profit and non-sectarian. If you need its professional help, please call them.

Naval Mines Have Been Used Almost 500 Years

Naval mines have come a long way since Charles I of England directed his master of ordnance to construct "divers watermines" in the 17th century.

The 1,000-pound mines used recently in North Vietnam by the United States have complex fuses that can be triggered by the metal, sound, or pressure of a passing ship–or even be set to ignore it and explode beneath a later vessel.

Though Russia has made wider use of mines in sea warfare than any other nation, it was the Dutch who pioneered the concept, the National Geographic Society says.

FIRED BY CLOCKWORK

During the siege of Antwerp in 1585, the defenders filled small boats with gunpowder and floated them against the Spanish ships, where they were detonated by clockwork.

In accord with King Charles' instructions, a "ship destroying engine" was developed in England in 1658, but never used. It borrowed the clockwork idea, but required a diver to attach it to a ship's hull.

Pedaling a one-man submarine designed by David Bushnell in the American Revolutionary War, Sgt. Ezra Lee tried to screw a 150-pound mine into the side of H.M.S. Eagles in the Hudson River. His efforts were thwarted by the warship's copper sheathing.

Bushnell next devised surface mines consisting of powder kegs that exploded when their pistol-lock triggers bumped a ship. A "trigger mine" floated toward H.M.S. Cerberus in 1777 missed the British frigate and sank a nearby schooner instead.

Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, designed clockwork-fired floating mines used by the British against the French in 1804. Fulton's mines were impressively loud, but did little damage.

Samuel Colt, of six-shooter fame, then developed a mine in 1843 detonated by current sent through an electrical cable from its control station on shore. Five years later, similar mines were deployed to protect the German harbor of Kiel from Danish warships.

ADVANCED DESIGN

Early contact mines, used extensively by Russia in the Crimean War, benefited from fuses developed by Alfred Nobel. Striking a ship broke a glass tube of acid to trigger the explosion.

Mines were widely used in America's Civil Wart and have figured in nearly every war since. Almost 250,000 mines were sown by nations involved in World War I, and three times that many in World War II.

Although mines are relatively cheap weapons, they have a major drawback; They cannot distinguish friend from foe. Ships sometimes fall victim to mines laid by their own country.

With a straight face, the Navy in 1952 disclosed its "Project Sneeze," allegedly proposed during World War II to overcome this defect. The plan called for a mine with a proximity-fired projectile launcher that would shoot a canister of red pepper onto a ship's deck.

"A sensitive microphone pickup on the mine did the rest," read the Navy's spoof. "If a crew member on the ship said 'Gesundheit' the mine would explode; if he said 'God bless you'; the mine would remain unarmed."

QUESTION: I just moved up here from the lower peninsula. What's my responsibility as regards notifying state authorities as it affects my operator's license record? C. F., Stephenson.

ANSWER: "Any operator or chauffeur, who shall change his residence previous to the expiration of a license granted under this chapter shall immediately return such license to the local examining board or the department, whose duty it shall be to write the new address on the reverse side of the license and the date of change.

"Failure to have such change of address recorded as herein provided may be cause for revocation or suspension of same immediately if there is no response to a notice mailed to his last known address."

QUESTION: What is the current status of the legality of studded tire use in Michigan? A.R., Lapeer

ANSWER: The current law in Michigan permits use of studded tires between November 1 of one year to May 1 of the following year. There is a bill pending in our legislature which, if it passes, will ban the use of these tires in either all or part of Michigan. If it passes as it now stands, the cutoff date is May, 1973. So watch your newspaper for current developments before making long-range investments.

QUESTION: About how many driving under the influence (more commonly referred to as drunk driving) arrests are made annually in Michigan? L.T.D., Chelsea

Answer: In Michigan in 1972, through November, there were 26,122 such arrests made, and increase of 33.7 percent over 1971.

Focus on Environment

Although environmentalist Dr. John Tanton of Petoskey came out second best in his efforts to prevent construction of a dam across Monroe Creek, the lawsuit he brought against officials of the Department of Natural Resources and developer Francis Shelden will have long range effects in northern Michigan and throughout the state and nation.

The case has focused attention for the past 13 months on the environmental problems that go hand in glove with burgeoning resort developments in relatively pristine, wilderness areas, such as South Arm Township in Charlevoix County.

The late Dr. Ralph MacMullan, former director of the Department of Natural Resources, admitted that the Monroe Creek dam was the "lesser of two evils," although he gave the project his stamp of approval on grounds that the DNR would retain a modicum of control over the 1,500-homesite project because of the dam.

Of course, no one knows at this point who was right in the Monroe Creek case, although Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Charles Brown ruled in favor of developer Shelden. Only time will tell whether the dam will speed up the aging of Monroe Creek and the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Also unknown is the effect the impoundment eventually will have on fish life.

The only thing we know for sure is that much of the small game habitat through which Monroe Creek now runs will be replaced by a 400-acre lake and that the game habitat will be lost forever.

We think it was unseemly for the DNR to gloat last week over its courtroom victory, reporting in a press release that DNR officials in Lansing were "elated" by Judge Brown's decision.

The issues were never that clear cut, and Judge Brown said throughout the trial that regardless of his decision, the case should be appealed to a higher court.

But the case won't be appealed. Last week Dr. Tanton agreed not to press the suit, so long as Mr. Shelden dropped a counter-claim against him for $400,000 effectively putting an end to litigation. It is encouraging to note that the court has retained jurisdiction over all phases of the resort development.

We believe that if there is any cause for rejoicing it should because we have such men as Dr. Tanton in our midst who are willing to take a stand on environmental issues.

We also can find solace in the face that the development is being executed by Mr. Shelden, a man whose personal integrity is beyond question. We might not be as lucky the next time.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

Smog and auto pollution were minimized in Uncle Charlie's day with an annual five-month ban on downtown traffic, impartially enforced because the roads weren't plowed. Instead they were packed with a steel roller for cutters and sleighs.

Fewer cars were in use county-wide than the number of abandoned cars along one township road today. Ownership was limited by the "cash on the barrel-head" policy which also governed freeway construction. The traffic arteries were improved logging trails bordered with hardwoods too dense for jalopy junking or billboard beautification.

Charlie and the infant petroleum industry held opposing views on fuel conservation. The vendor restricted purchase by pegging the price a fraction below the prevailing wage scale, whereas Charlie insured economy by insisting the glass measuring tank by plumb full, the meniscus a full quarter inch past the mark, and the hose drained without spillage into his tank.

The tank had to be up forward for proper consumer surveillance; there would be no "thumb on the scales" capers behind his back with an electric-slot machine totaling up his hard earned dollars! Neither the glossiest brochure nor the slickest salesman ever convinced Charlie that more than four cylinders were necessary and when his Model A succumbed to a long lingering illness, he turned to making cross-country skis.

These came to mind as I was freeing my frozen in, recessed windshield wipers prior to my weekly refueling run. When I pulled up to the pump and switched off the ignition, that V-eighted emission controlled monster kept combusting till the meter showed $9.75, including a half gallon melting in the snow.

"It keep running," volunteered the attendant, charge for my $10 bill, handing me a quarter "on account of the ani-pollution gimmicks."

That afternoon a certain amount of verbal pollution was mixed with the dust from Uncle Charlie's skis which I took down off the beams in the garage to begin my vendetta, with a sneezing slalom down the driveway.

The London Flu

By BOB CLOCK

The first case of London flu has been diagnosed in Michigan and the prognosis is that a large percentage of the state's population will catch it before it runs its course.

For my money, I'd much rather have the London flu than the Hong Kong flu or the Asian flu. It just sounds classier somehow, like something you'd catch from your Carnaby-st. tailor.

Ironically, the first diagnosed case in the state belongs to a Dr. Theodore R. Thompson, Epidemic Intelligence Service Officer for the Michigan Department of Public Health. A Health Department press release intimates that although Dr. Ted is a resident of East Lansing, he picked up the grim disease while visiting in Pennsylvania over the Christmas holidays and brought the germs home with him to hatch.

It was awfully democratic of Dr. Ted to come down with the London flu first, just to let us know that the disease plays no favorites.

It could happen only in America.

I am also glad that the people who name our diseases elected to call it the London flu, rather than the Chimney flu, which could well have been the case since it originated in a city noted for its blazing hearths and sooty smokestakes.

When word of the disease first spread, everyone in town who came down with the sniffles immediately declared himself to be a victim of the London flu, which was not the case at all. In the first place, the symptoms were all wrong.

As I understand it, the first sign you're coming down with the London flu is an uncontrollable urge to drop your "H's."

"'Ave you 'eard the story about the 'airless 'atter?" you might be tempted to say instead of "Have you heard the story about the hairless hatter?"

Another unmistakeable symptom is an insatiable appetite for black tea and crumpets particularly around 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This symptom differs markedly from the Asian flu which creates a distinct craving for green tea and chop suey.

Victims of the Hong Kong may also show a preference for green tea and Oriental food, but they also are apt to display an inordinate affection for such inanimate objects as transistor radios and imported flashlights.

Of course, these are merely the symptoms readily recognized by the layman. Skilled medical technicians look for a sudden onset of fever, chills, muscle aches, sore throat and cough. In a few days your eyes and nose will start running like faucets.

The disease lasts from two to seven days, but no specific treatment is recommended unless complications set in.

"Thoses contracting the flu should not push themselves," says Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Michigan Health Department. "It's best to go right to bed and drink plenty of liquids. If the symptoms persist after two days of bed rest, then medical treatment should be obtained."

How can you avoid the London flu? The most obvious recommendation is to stay out of London, if at all possible.

Next, stay out of Pennsylvania, because that's where Dr. Ted caught it.

And if you can't stay out of either London or Pennsylvania, at least try to avoid crowds because the only way you can catch the London flu is from someone who has it.

I'll Never Read This

By JIM FITZGERALD

As I grow older, I grow more amazing to my friends who can't believe I have lived so long without once doing so many things other people do all the time.

For instance, I've never been snowmobiling, or skiing. I've always believed strongly that snow is God's way of punishing people for being idiots. Which proves again that God is just. Only idiots go out into the snow unless the house is on fire. I learned in the army there is no worse agony than frozen feet and snow up your sleeves. All my nightmares center around chapped wrists. Only an idiot would deliberately court the many discomforts and disasters inherent in sliding down a mountain of snow. Only an idiot would desert his heated Chevrolet in favor of a topless machine that hangs its passengers on barbed wire fences. Such idiocy-on-purpose is similar to volunteering to take your friends' dentist appointments. I refuse to be such an idiot. Go get 'em, God.

I've never been to a racetrack. If horse racing is a sport, so is craps. Eliminate the gambling and all horse fans could go to the track in the same cab. But I don't object to the phonies who blat about loving the ponies when what they really love is doubling their money. I'm also turned off because I've never been convinced that a horse enjoys running around with some guy on his back, whipping and kicking him.

For similar reasons, I avoid animal acts where the trainer slips the animal a hunk of food after it successfully performs some dumb trick. If the bear doesn't feel like standing on his head, is he starved until he changes his mind?

I never go camping. If God had intended people to live outdoors, he would never have created mortgages.

Long ago, after taking lessons and giving it a fair trial, I quit playing bridge. The good players are too quarrelsome and the bad players (like me) would rather play poker anyway, so shut up and deal.

I never play Scrabble. As an editor, I don't want people to find out I can't spell.

I have never driven a motorcycle. Motorcycles are God's way of punishing snowmobile owners in the summer.

I have never been hunting or fishing. But, yes, I do eat hamburg and trout. I know no alternative to killing for food and I'm just grateful there are people who can stomach working in slaughter houses. I'm sure I could learn to do it if I were hungry enough. But I couldn't learn to enjoy it. And I'll never understand the Great White Hunters who patronize hunting preserves and pay some guy to throw a bird in the air so they can shoot it down. Sure, shooting is an honorable sport, but why not shoot skeet or tin cans? I can't escape the thought that animals can also say: "Ouch, that hurts!"

I never read columns like this because they always make me more mad than glad. How about you?

School Board, Council Meet

into adoption of a trespassing ordinance which would give the police broader powers on school property during school hours and during extra-curricular events.

Smith distributed a copy of a trespassing ordinance adopted by the City of Troy, suggesting that it might be used as a model. He says there have been a few times when such an ordinance would have been useful in the past year.

REC DIRECTOR

Alderman Supernaw said joint meeting of school board members and council members have been held, including an interview with Clark Ketchum, Petoskey's city recreation director. He suggested that the city be primarily responsible for the hiring and supervision of a director with the school contribution consisting largely of facilities, printing and other non-salary items.

Donaldson said it was his understanding that both the city and the school board would contribute funds. He pointed out that many out-of-city residents would participate in the recreational activities and the school board is in a position, with its broader base of support, to spread the cost more evenly.

Supernaw asked how the program could survive if the school lost a millage vote.

"If people can see what you're doing, you stand a better chance of getting millage," Donaldson said.

Supernaw suggested that the full time director answer to a Recreation Commission, made up of members of the school board, city council and other civic organizations. He said the committee would make a recommendation after its next meeting.

Mrs. Lieberman suggested that steps be taken promptly in order to secure a director before summer activities begin.

SUMMER TAXES

Donaldson renewed a request made originally three years ago that city school taxes be collected in the summer, rather than the winter. He explained that the school year is almost half over before the district begins receiving tax money. He pointed out that local taxes are becoming increasingly important, since 85 percent of school support is derived locally.

The board president said that year after year, the district is forced to borrow money against anticipated taxes, at an interest charge that reached $8,000 for the current school year.

Alderman Fochtman expressed concern over the transition, pointing out that taxpayers would have to pay twice in one year. Donaldson said the transition could be staggered, with only 50 percent of the taxes paid the first summer.

The council took the suggestion under advisement.

The two groups also discussed a request by Leona Moore of Ironton to locate a lunch wagon at the ice rink. The idea was not well received.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Supt. Miller reported on current thinking in the area of school financing, as gleaned from recent meeting of Michigan Association of School Administrators in Grand Rapids. He said House Speaker Ryan is pushing for a revival of Proposal C which voters defeated in November.

We've Had 63.8 Inches of Snow Since Nov. 17

With winter half over, Charlevoix has logged 63.8 inches of snow, making it a fairly average year, according to Lloyd Kuebler at the Waste Water Treatment Plant.

Two inches of snow Saturday night brought the total for January (through Monday morning) to 17.2 inches, Kuebler, said.

However, the city was deluged with 1.82 inches of rain during the month, which would have added another 20 inches of snow if temperatures had been lower.

As a rule of thumb, Kuebler says one inch of rain is equal to 10 inches of snow. However, in the Charlevoix area the snow is lighter and drier than it is elsewhere in the country.

"We usually come out about 13 to 1," he says. "It would have to be an awfully wet snow to bring it down to 10 to 1."

In November, Charlevoix had 6.1 inches of snow and 1.09 inches of rain after the snow started Nov. 17. Total rainfall for the month was 1.67.

In December, Kuehler measured 40.5 inches of snow, with very little rain. Most of the rain came at the end of the month, just in time to take the edge off New Year's weekend skiing.

Kuehler isn't making any predictions about the next two months.

In 1971 and '72, the worst snowstorms of the season started the last week in January and continued through mid-March.

MEMBERS of the City Council and the Charlevoix Board of Education met in joint session at the school last week to discuss mutual problems, including construction of the May-st. sewer and the hiring of a full-time athletic director. From left seated are Miss Maureen Wallace, student representative on the School Board; Mrs. Robert Lieberman and Donald Brown, School Board members; Alderman Sam Supernaw; City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna, Board Member Larry Warner, Board President Richard Donaldson, Mayor Edward Hansen, Board Member Clement Wagner, Alderman Clifton Sundberg, Board Member Rev. Duane Imig, Alderman Gerald Selph, Board Member Charles Elzinga, Middle School Principal Max Novak, Alderman Robert Gill and Elementary School Principal Glenn Snider. Standing from left are School Business Manager Robert Bogart, Superintendent Robert Miller, Aldermen Robert Timms and Richard Fochtman and High School Principal Vane Smith.

March of Dimes Moms Seek Funds in Area

"Birth defects have become the No. 1 child health problem in the United States," according to William Wilson, campaign director for the March of Dimes in Charlevoix County.

Wilson reports that the drive is now in progress and solicitors will be making house calls through next week.

"Birth defects may happen in your home, next door or down the street," Wilson says. "We need your financial support to eliminate these tragedies that strike some 250,000 babies every year."

Local Mothers' March chairman this year is Mrs. Michael (Janet) Ready, who has lined up 33 volunteer workers, Wilson said.

He added that the National Foundation—March of Dimes is making every effort to attain its ultimate goal, the prevention of birth defects.

"Progress in recent years now enables medical science to act against certain kinds of congenital damage before birth, at delivery and even later," he notes. "Steadily growing information about the causes and conditions of these diseases, and skilled techniques of diagnosis, treatment and prevention already are making their impact."

He adds that contributions to the March of Dimes also will help in establishing more prenatal care programs for mothers with high-risk pregnancies and intensive care nurseries for the critically ill newborn.

"Remember, birth defects are forever — unless you help," he said.

Charlevoix's Boy Scout Troops 11 and 43 were represented at the annual Northern District Klondike Derby held Saturday at the Department of Natural Resources Research Station in the Pigeon River State Park of Vanderhilt.

They were among the 286 Scouts who were tested on Scout skills relating to the heaving bar, snow blindness, communications, fire building, giant clove hitch, use of the compass and Klondike sleds built by the Scouts.

Troop 11 was represented by four patrols whose personnel follow: Owl patrol, Steve Hufford, patrol leader; Doug Buday, Greg Wojan, David and Nick Hogan, who won a second place ribbon; Wolverine patrol, Richard Borths, patrol leader; Steve Schuch and Curt Dixon, third place ribbon: Eagle patrol, Patrick Shmidt, patrol leader: Dennis Whitley, Clay Patrie, Mark Smith, Lee DeMitchell and Dave Morgridge, third place ribbon: Flaming Arrow patrol, David Sonnenberg, patrol leader; Gary Charbeneau, Gilbert Noirot, Don Sonnenberg, Vince and Ernie Brodjn and Lester Umlor, who won a second place ribbon.

This troop was accompanied by its Scoutmaster Louise Edwards, David Novotny, Henry Borths and Tom Avery.

Both patrols of Troop 43 won second place ribbons for their performances. They were the Rattlesnake patrol, Joe Early, patrol leader: Tim Hanna, Joe Seidl and Tom Fowler and Eagle patrol, Chris Hanna, patrol leader: Jeff Skelton, Dave Johnson and Ron Paul.

They were accompanied by their Scoutmaster, Dr. Jeff Porter, and Arthur Skelton.

The Derby was conducted by the Northern District Committee of the Scenic Trails Council and the Order of the Arrow, also of the Council.

HIGH WATER and wave action are washing away huge sections of Lake Michigan frontage in the Charlevoix area. This photo was taken at Puhck's Sunset Lodge at the foot of W. Dixon-ave. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers predict that the level of Lake Michigan will climb several more inches by summer.

School Will Buy Video Equipment

At a brief session before a joint meeting with the City Council last Monday, the Charlevoix Board of Education:

--OK'd the use of the library basement afternoons next year for nursery school classes. The nursery school presently meets mornings only.

--Set the price on the Building Trades house at $35,000.

--Adopted a board policy covering evaluation of coaches and the advisors of other extracurricular activities.

--Agreed to post the position of a teacher for the fifth kindergarten section next year. Mrs. Sally Drost will be moving to the grades.

--Agreed to buy television camera and other TV equipment for school use at a cost of $2,654.35.

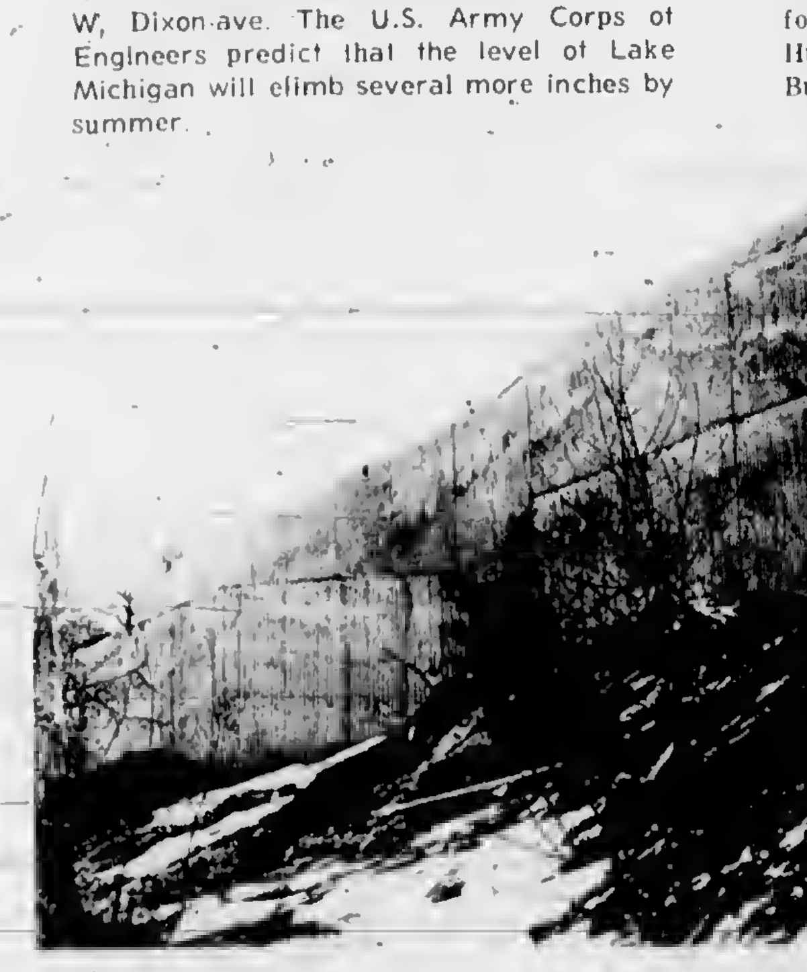
--Extended their leave-of-absence of teacher Mrs. Betty Henne for one year.

--Formally hired Jerry Sandahl as head cook in the hot lunch program at a pay rate of $2.70 an hour.

--Approved payment of bills totaling $199.19 from the library fund, $734.69 from the materials center fund and $38.40 from the Title I fund.

The board will meet in executive session next Monday night to review architect's plans for high school expansion and discuss teacher evaluations.

Next meetings will be Feb. 12 and 26. Topics will include teachers evaluations, the high school building program and administrative contracts.



THE GREAT Wall of China? Wrong! This is the poured concrete foundation for the La Croft condominium located at the foot of W. Dixon-ave. Work has been progressing on the 56 unit condominium throughout the winter on the site of the former Beach Hotel.

Stokes Moving Dyksterhouse Residence

William Stokes, owner of Charlevoix Automotive, told the City Council Monday night how he plans to move the former Dyksterhouse residence at 103 Dixon-ave. to a new location on Carson-ave. in order to make way for the La Croft condominium.

Stokes, who has purchased the house from the La Croft developers, said the big two-story structure will be moved on four dollies, and will travel east on Dixon-ave. to Michigan ave., out Michigan-ave. to Petoskey-rd., northeast on Petoskey-rd. to Burns-st., west on Burns to Division-st., and north on Division-st. to Carson-ave.

The house will be re-located on a lot owned by Max Novak adjacent to the Elementary School.

Stokes said that some trees along the route, including two or three sizeable limbs will have to be trimmed.

The city enters the pictures because it will be necessary to lower city electric lines, as well as the cable TV lines and telephone lines, as the house is moved to its new location.

The council told Stokes it also would like to make sure the movers, Hudson Brothers, have adequate insurance to cover possible damage.

Stokes said the trip should take about five hours.

He said he has until April 28 to remove the house and attached garage, which already has been separated from the main structure. He added that he would like to move the garage first, followed later by the house.

He said he has informed the state Highway Department and the County Road Commission of his plans.

In other business the council:

--Sent to committee a second offer by Mrs. Mildred Campbell to sell the city her Pine River Channel frontage on Pine River Lane. Mrs. Campbell says she has a buyer for the property, but would rather see it go to the city as a scenic reserve. Two weeks ago, Mrs. Campbell offered to sell the steep frontage to the city for $11,600 but the council said it wasn't interested. Monday night Mrs. Campbell asked the city to make her an offer. Mayor Edward Hansen suggested that perhaps the city could work out a trade of other city-owned land. He told Mrs. Campbell her proposal would be taken up in committee and that she can expect an answer next week. The land lies just east of city-owned land near the entrance to the channel.

--Took under further advisement a request by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gaskin that the city split a lot at the corner of Robinson-st. and Bridge-st. owned by the Gaskins and Phil Martin. Last year, the council granted Martin a rear yard waiver so that he could construct a snowmobile repair building behind his service station. Mayor Hansen said he understood at the time that Martin intended to tear down the station. However Martin has sold the station and adjoining house to the Gaskins, who now find themselves without a clear title to the property. The Planning Commission has advised against splitting the small lot and the council is inclined to concur. The Gaskins told the council they are hesitant to improve the property until the land is in their name.

--Learned the Mayor Hansen will take part in Senior Government Day at East Jordan Feb. 12. Ellsworth Community School is the host.

--Agreed to open city streets to snowmobiles from 12:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Feb. 25 for the Lions Club's annual winter outing. The only city street closed to snowmobiles will be Bridge-st. between Park-ave. and Hurlbut.

--Paid bills totaling $165,751.74.

Funeral Director Elected

Charlevoix Funeral Director Robert Winchester was elected to the board of directors of the Charlevoix County State Bank at the annual meeting, according to E.D. (Pat) Hawley, president.

Re-elected to the board were E. Darrell Dinwiddie, Karl J. Erber, Maurice J. Foster, Hawley, E. James Hiller, Dayton H. Mudd, G.B. Saltonstall, M.D., and Gordon Wellman.

Hawley reported that deposits increased 19 percent, or $2,240,000 over 1971, and earnings increased 20 percent.

He added that applications to real estate mortgage loans are continuing strong because of the construction boom throughout the area.

In other business, the board re-elected Hawley president; Gordon Wellman, executive Vice President; Maurice J. Foster, vice president and cashier; Orval J. Hicks, assistant vice president; LoAnne Brown, assistant cashier; and Ingma I. Pontious, aduitor.

Winchester was born in Allegan County Nov. 5, 1931, and graduated from Zeeland High School in 1950. He attended Grand Rapids Junior College, Western Michigan University and Wayne State University, receiving his degree in Mortuary Science in 1954.

He lived in Grand Rapids and owned his own funeral home in Freeport before purchasing the Charlevoix funeral home from Charles Pontius in 1957.

He was married to the former Leona Liedtke in Livonia in 1954. They have three children, Randall, 17; Ronald, 15; and Susan, 13.

Winchester is a charter member of the Charlevoix Lions Club.

Ironton

Mr. and Mrs. N.C. Christensen and the former's sister, Mrs. Marie Blissett of Charlevoix, left Friday to spend the winter in Fort Meyers, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett of East Jordan were guests of the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Bennett on Monday.

Word has been received of the death of Jack McDermott at his home in Holiday, Fla. The family (Eva Williams) was residents of our community several years and they have the sympathy of their former neighbors and friends.

After a light snowfall and lower temperatures we are again having spring with beautiful sunshine and 45 degree weather this Thursday afternoon. It's nice for everything but all winter sports. The ground has never frozen and we are concerned for the spring bulbs. We picked pussy willows Wednesday.

We congratulate Diane Alexander on being winner in the Betty Crocker Home Making Contest at Charlevoix High School. Diane is a senior and will graduate in the spring. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander.

Women's Club Luncheon To Benefit Girls' Home

The Charlevoix Women's Club will host a luncheon, Wednesday, Feb. 7, 1973, at the Grey Gables, 12 noon, benefiting Girlstown.

A hot luncheon will be served promptly so that guests, having a limited time, may be in and out within the hour.

However, those wishing to stay longer may choose to play cards or just socialize.

Tickets are $3.00 each, and can be purchased from Mrs. William Brady (7-9384), Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie (7-2630), and at Leutheuser's Bay Chalet. Ticket sales will end Saturday, Feb. 3.

Girlstown is a project of home and program planned and provided for by the Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs to serve emotionally disturbed girls.

The home, named "LochRio," is located in Belleville, Mich., and can house nine girls.

A second home is now under construction and when finished will insure homelike living and qualified guidance for twelve more girls. A total of 74 girls for all areas of Michigan have lived at Loch Rio since its opening in 1968.

Loch Rio provides specialized care for girls whose own problem or whose family problems are such that they cannot be cared for in existing community facilities.

The general intent of the residence is to serve as a means by which girls will, through experiences and treatment, be helped so that they may eventually return to normal community living. The admitting age is 12 to 16 years.

$4,608 Is Donated In Yule Seal Drive

Contributions in Charlevoix County to the traditional Christmas Seal campaign have reached $4,608.00 through the first week of January which is 114 percent of last year's total, reports Walter A. Meier, MD, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Overall the statewide contributions from 81 counties, excluding the Detroit metropolitan area, have reached $807,987 -- or 92 percent of the amount raised the previous year.

Dr. Meier asks Charlevoix County residents who have not yet answered their Christmas Seal appeal letter to please do so. "Although Christmas is over the work of the Christmas Seal Association goes on 365 days a-year working in the area of tuberculosis control, smoking education, emphysema research, fighting for clean air and providing other important state and local community health programs," he said.

Here Are Do's, Don't's On Snowmobile Safety

Snowmobiling, America's fastest growing winter sport, generates many controversial questions from opponents and advocates alike. Many of the questions focus on safety.

Howard J. Doss, extension manpower training specialist at Michigan State University, has come up with the following answers to some of the most frequently asked questions concerning snowmobile safety.

QUESTION: What is the first thing a new driver should do?

ANSWER: Learn the laws of the area where he will be riding his snowmobile. Some states require licensing and registration and restrict the machines to specially designated areas. Michigan requires registration when a snowmobile is to be used on public land or any private land that is not owned by the snowmobile driver.

QUESTION: How many passengers should you carry?

ANSWER: Only one passenger and the driver.

QUESTION: What are the safe riding positions?

ANSWER: Seated, kneeling on one or both knees, and squatting. Safe positions give you the best control over the machine at all times.

QUESTION: During what time of day do most fatal accidents occur?

ANSWER: Between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m., during the dangerous twilight period.

QUESTION: Do you need a driver's license to operate a snowmobile?

ANSWER: Maybe. In some states you must be a licensed driver to operate a machine in public areas. In Michigan, no license is required. However, youths 12-15 must carry a certificate issued by the Department of Natural Resources or be accompanied by an adult.

QUESTION: Must you wear a helmet while riding?

ANSWER: In some states, helmets are required by law - not so in Michigan. However, they are recommended for adequate protection.

QUESTION: How dangerous is slush?

ANSWER: Slush is about the trickiest surface you can drive over. It clogs the track and affects the maneuverability of the machine.

QUESTION: Is it legal to ride on railroad tracks?

ANSWER: No. Railroad tracks are private property. Besides, who wants to argue the point with a train?

QUESTION: Is it a safe practice to ride snowmobiles on frozen rivers and lakes?

ANSWER: No, not really. Ice thickness can vary. Cracks occur that weaken the ice. Make sure the ice is thick enough to hold you and your machine. Ice should be at least four inches thick or more. Remember that snow over ice on a lake, acting like an insulation blanket, slows the formation of new ice. Always check the thickness of ice before you take a chance on sacrificing your snowmobile to the fish.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Magistrate John Connolly.

Charges of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended, failure to report a property damage accident and violation of the basic speed law lodged against Carl F. VandeCar, 19, Flint, were dismissed. The defendant is in the House of Correction.

Jerome Janis, 26, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for disregarding a stop sign.

William Graves, 47, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for failure to yield the right-of-way. An accident resulted.

Robert L. Borths, 21, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for disregarding a stop sign.

Ricky K. Velin, 20, Coon Rapids, Minn., was assessed $15 for operating a snowmobile on the plowed portion of a public roadway.

Duane H. Taylor, 33, Charlevoix, was assessed $20 for speeding.

CHARLEVOIX'S new $2 million waste water treatment plant is nearing completion on the Lake Michigan shore south of the city. City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna says the plant is ready to go into operation as soon as pumps arrive and are installed at the present sewage plant on Round Lake, which will become a pumping station. Above is the main treatment building, with settling tanks in the foreground. Below is one of two red brick sludge tanks which stand on a rise overlooking the lake. Effluent "Clean enough to drink" will be piped three quarters of a mile into the lake.

Club Hears How to Care For Houseplants in Winter

By Hilda Alexander

A lesson on indoor gardening, or "The Care and Culture of House Plants", was on the January agenda for the Charlevoix Garden Club, which met at the home of Mrs Virginia Berg, with Mrs June Couse as co-hostess.

Speaker was Mrs Mildred Ochs, who offered advice on the care of feeding of house plants during the long winter months

With good soil, proper drainage, correct watering and suitable light conditions and proper humidity, the average house plant grower can expect success, Mrs. Ochs said.

Mrs. Ochs said that all plants like a bath every once in a while. She suggested treating them to a fine spray in the sink or bathtub

Don't hesitate to remove dead leaves and faded blooms Not only with the plant look better, but dead leaves and faded blooms are sometimes used as hideouts for insects and other sources of infection.

She cautioned against using too large a pot, pointing out that many plants do better if the roots are "pot bound."

When first potted, plants should be well watered and kept out of drafts and direct strong sunlight for about two weeks.

She added that plants with hairy leaves, like African violets, do better indoors, even in the summer.

"Plants that are loved, kept clean and are well cared for will be a most rewarding hobby," she said

Roll-call at the January meeting consisted of winter garden tips, including the information that moth balls will keep mice away from flowering shrubs.

The next meeting will be Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. Anthony Stabnick, 102 Central-ave. Mrs. Edward Lewand will be co-hostess. A movie will be shown by Mrs. Lois McCandless.

Ostling Appointed To Committees

State Rep. Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon) begins his new career as a state legislator knowing it will be a hectic one following his appointment to four major committees in the House of Representatives. Most representatives are on no more than three committees with only a select few holding down seats on four.

"I am pleased with the responsibility that has been vested in me," Ostling said. "I especially look forward to my duties on the Conservation and Recreation Committee since this will have a direct effect on the 103rd District that I represent in Lansing. With the influx of tourists a major industry year round in our northern Michigan area it is important that we be represented on the committee that will be dealing with our problems."

The Freshman lawmaker has also been appointed to the Social Service and Corrections, Liquor Control and Mental Health Committees by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Tourists Sweeten State Economy by $1.5 Billion

Tourists enriched the Michigan economy by $1.5 billion in 1972 and boosted the state treasury by $100 million in the form of taxes, according to Aurey Strohpaul, acting director of the Michigan Tourist Council.

Citing reports from the state's four regional tourist associations, Strohpaul said that the tourist industry has experienced a good year.

Overall, tourist business in the Upper Peninsula was up approximately eight percent over 1971. The area had an above average spring tourist season coupled with good fall and winter business. Inclement weather was responsible for a slight downward trend during the prime summer months.

The western side of the state had its biggest year in history. Tourist business increased by 11.3 percent over 1971, due primarily to a super spring, excellent fall and a very early winter start. Citing camping as a prime tourism indicator, the report from West Michigan stated that although state campground use was down in 1972, private campgrounds did a rousing business.

On Michigan's east side the volume of tourist business was, in general, the same as 1971. The area enjoyed a record winter season, up 11 percent, while the spring and fall seasons were on a par with 1971.

Detroit and the 8-count southeast Michigan area tourist industry experienced the highest percentage business increase, up from 12 to 20 percent over 1971. Hotels, motels and campgrounds averaged a 12 percent increase while restaurants increased an average of 20 percent. The area's tourist attractions recorded a 15 percent average increase over the previous year.

In reviewing the 1972 business year, Tourist Council chairman Robert F. Reynolds, Detroit, stated that all signs point to a highly successful tourism product in 1973.

North Land Boom May Upset Deer Herd Plans

Michigan's land sales boom in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula may endanger a Department of Natural Resources' long range program to double the state's deer herd, now at 500,000, by 1980.

Davis A. Arnold, supervisor of the Forest Wildlife Section, DNR, said, "We're still hoping that we can achieve our goal but we have no idea what the widespread construction of roads, plus summer or retirement home buyers' preference for mature woods and big trees will do to our plans.

"While we do know that our projected new forests will provide a great deal more browse for deer than nature forests, we cannot yet be certain that the improved range will supply enough good food to insure survival on one million deer, especially if there are long hard winters with lots of snow.

"For years now, deer have needed the more or less supplemental – sometimes it has been all they have had – browse provided by tops and branches left from timber harvesting. We hope to get some answers eventually from the Roscommon deer habitat research, but it is too soon to tell."

Arnold did predict that the DNR would reach a goal of treating 50,000 acres of deer habitat a year by contracting with the owners of forest power equipment at a reasonable price per acre. Machine treatment by state crews costs $19 an acre.

The DNR has eight big crawler tractors with shearing blades, four articulated skidders and four rolling choppers and four tree shears which can snip a 20-inch tree, and has been doing demonstration and trial projects.

"We just don't have the machine capability to treat 50,000 acres in a year," he said. "However, we are hoping to treat 30,000 acres by the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1973."

Deer range treatment has a double purpose; it supplies deer with palatable nutritious forage and at the same time, it turns medium sized trees into small trees which develop aspen forests.

Aspen, which grows very fast and thick in Michigan, is one of the state's more profitable sources of pulpwood for the manufacture of paper, etc. At the same time, an aspen forest, until it becomes 25 years old, makes excellent deer browse. After 25 years, much of the twigs and buds are too high for deer and the forest is modified by other species of growth which are not palatable to deer.

As Arnold describes it, treatment of deer range consists primarily of driving a crawler tractor with a cutting blade in front while pulling a roller-chopper, a heavy steel cylinder with cutting blades on the outside. Between the front blade and the chopper, brush and trees are trampled, cut and pulverized and chopped into the soil. Trees from 10 to 20 inches are snipped off by hydraulic shears. Where feasible, trees are ground up into chips which are sold to paper mills.

This treatment makes forest soil an ideal bed for the seeds of plants typical of new forests – aspen dominated with wild raspberries, strawberries, sweet fern, huckleberries, and many herbs which deer relish in summer and fall.

In its first summer the new forest offers some deer food. This increases as the aspen forest develops. After 25 years, clear cutting should provide profitable truck loads of wood ships, and a renewed bed for seeds of the plants of the aspen forests.

"Eventually, the program should result in a self-renewing cycle of tree growing and deer growing, each complementing the other and each contributing in its won way to the prosperity of Michigan," Arnold explained.

"Of course, it will not be simple. There are many uncertainties, including the fertility of the soil, the weather, and animal and plant diseases," he added. "But the DNR has some expert foresters and biologists who should be able to keep the program moving, especially if we have the cooperation of landowners anc commercial timber interests."

Q. What has happened to the Governor's land use proposals? L.R., Newberry

A. Governor William G. Milliken's "hold" order on land use recommendations made to him by a citizens' committee should be of interest to many persons because ultimately it is likely to affect them.

The term "land use" in this sense merely means a program to see that the little usable land left in our State is used wisely and that people are protected against abuses and have some assurance that the land will be developed in an orderly manner.

The fly in the ointment in protecting anything is that it means controls - and people just don't like controls, especially governmental controls.

Most people will put up with local controls of anything - education, land use, use of natural resources and the like - but they rather instinctively rebel at the thought of State controls. They especially dislike Federal controls.

But there are times when local controls proves to be insufficient and, in the case of land in recent years, State control has been deemed necessary especially in some counties where huge subdivisions have lacked orderly planning and the resulting development of them has led to heavy tax costs being heaped on local residents for necessary services that could have been avoided by better land use policies.

About 60 percent of the townships in Michigan have not developed their own zoning ordinances, which should be designed to assure orderly development of subdivisions.

The big hitch in the program recommended by the citizens' committee came at a series of hearings on it held throughout the State at which people repeatedly expressed fear that the State was trying to wrest control of such matters from local residents.

Gov. Milliken denies that his plan poses any serious threat like that but he did recognize the legitimacy of local fears and ordered a delay in presenting proposed legislation to lawmakers until the whole issue could be studied further.

The Governor said, "I continue to believe strongly in the absolute necessity of a land use program. I also believe that the recommendations that have been submitted to me can provide the basis of a sound land use management program."

But the Governor added that before he submitted his recommendations to the Legislature he wanted "to make sure that we are responsive to the legitimate concerns that were raised at the public hearings, particularly o.. the issue of local involvement."

"If we are going to have a program with long-term potential," he added, "We need the kind of public support that I am confident we will have when we have greater public understanding of how disastrous the alternative to no land use program would be."

The Governor has taken a proper step in holding up such proposed legislation.

A program of such magnitude should not be hurried but, rather, should be afforded the opportunity of obtaining strong support from local groups before it is put into effect.

Asks Clerk to Validate Signatures on Petition

8 January, 1973.

Mr. Ira F. Davis, Chairman
County Board of Commissioners.
County Building.
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Davis:

Subject: Petitions for County Zoning Ordinance referendum.

Investigation reveals that the petitions submitted by the "Citizens Information Service" in support of their demand for a public vote on County zoning were not validated by the County Clerk's office in a legitimate manner:

No one checked each signature contained thereon against the voter rolls and / or tax rolls in the unincorporated area of the County.

Further, at a conference, Messrs. Varnum, Rabach and Mercer being in attendance, a consensus was formulated to accept the petitions as probably having a suitable number of qualified signatures.

Their reasoning was, that since the petitions submitted contained more than twice the number of signatures needed to force a referendum, it was safe to assume that the proper number of qualified signatures were listed thereon.

Further, since the signatures on the petitions were not acquired in an orderly manner, ie., township by township; and, that a cursory examination of several pages of the petitions revealed a number of unqualified signatures of citizens residing in incorporated areas, it would be a lengthy and time consuming project to validate the necessary total number of signatures needed.

The writer is a resident, land owner and taxpayer in Bay Township, Charlevoix County.

Based on the track record of the leaders of the "Citizens Information Service" the writer doubts that the petitions submitted contain a sufficient number of legal signatures to satisfy the demands of the statute governing referendums.

Therefore, the writer strongly requests the County Board of Commissioners to implement the following actions forthwith:

1. Retract the Commissioners action which accepted the petitions as valid.
2. Return the petitions to the County Clerk's office with instructions to legally validate.
3. Request the County Clerk to advise the writer in writing as to your final action on this request.

Respectfully submitted,

H.G. HARRIS
BOX 2155, HORTON BAY

600,000 Pounds Of Fish Planted By DNR in 1972

More than 600,000 pounds of fish were planted in Michigan waters by the Department of Natural Resources during 1972.

According to preliminary figures released by C. Troy Yoder, Roscommon, Region II manager for the DNR, 16 species were planted in inland lakes and the Great Lakes in his region.

One of the species — Atlantic salmon — was planted this year for the first time in Michigan. DNR crews released 19,000 Atlantic salmon in the Boyne and AuSable Rivers.

Fifteen thousand additional Atlantic salmon will be planted in the Boyne River this spring.

Charlevoix County plantings included 21,728 brown trout, 115,000 lake trout, 4,007 rainbow trout, 51,452 steelhead, 10,000 Atlantic salmon and 25,171 coho salmon.

Plantings in Antrim County included 5,400 brown trout, 115,000 lake trout, 30,024 rainbow trout, 22,000 splake and 15,164 steelhead.

Emmet County Waters received 17,037 brown trout.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Judge Arthur R. Reibel:

We Still Have Chance To Win Vietnam Peace

Most Americans experienced a quiet sense of relief last Tuesday evening when President Nixon announced to the nation that peace in Vietnam was, at last, at hand.

In contrast to the noisy street celebrations that marked the end of World Wars I and II, news of the impending cease-fire was received soberly and reflectively by most Charlevoixans, who are bone-weary of the longest war in American history.

The consensus is that the United States should never again allow her sons to fight and die in foreign wars that can't be won, because ideological victories are never achieved on the battlefield.

This was particularly true in Vietnam where the war never enjoyed a broad base of public support in the South. The issues were so clouded with religious controversy that any attempt at interference by outsiders was doomed to failure.

The United States cast itself in the role of a despotic aggressor by trying to superimpose our values and our way of life upon unwilling peoples.

Furthermore, there are still so many imperfections in American society today that it is sheer impudence for us to hold ourselves up as a model for civilized nations until we clean house.

Although no nation won the Vietnam war, the United States still has an opportunity to win the Vietnam peace by working with both the North and South to rebuild that battle-scarred land.

No expense will be too great, no sacrifice too heavy to achieve this end. We can never erase the anguish of the war for its victims, but we can attempt to lighten the burden of rebuilding for the survivors.

We hope the great lesson of the Vietnam War for the United States is that peaceful coexistence with the Communist powers is the only alernative to no existence at all.

As abhorrent as the Communist ideology is to most Americans, we must come to realize that not all nations of the world are ready for democracy and the obligations a free society places upon the individual.

We are confident that with time and education, democracy will flourish in the emerging nations of the world, including the Soviet Union and Red China. In fact, a trend toward more personal freedom is already evident in Russia, the world's oldest Marxist society.

We hope we have learned that democracy cannot be imposed from above; it must be rooted in the common clay and draw its sustenance from wellsprings of human dignity in order to blossom and bear fruit.

In the meantime, we hope Americans see fit to shore up their own faltering democracy, which has grown top - heavy with administrative powers and whose roots have been exposed by waves of civil strife.

We look forward to a return to the balance of powers which permitted us to grow and prosper for two centuries as a nation of free men.

We look forward to the day when chest-thumping national chauvinism is replaced by a quiet respect for the differences between nations and peoples.

We yearn for the day when racial and religious prejudice is remembered only in the history books.

We long the the day when Americans can walk the streets of their great cities without fear.

The war in Vietnam is over, but greater and even more challenging tasks lie just ahead for all of us.

The Old Timer

"When a speech is boiled down, it isn't dry."

Cites Goals Of People's Lobby

Dear Bob:

Common Cause has a current project of great potential impact on the functioning of the democratic system.

Common Cause is most of all a lobby — a people's lobby as opposed to a lobby of special interest. Big business, unions, cigarette manufacturers, the liquor industry and so on have ful time employes working to convince congressmen, one way or another, of a particular point of view.

The average individual American citizen has not been so represented.

Common Clause, through democratic voting by the membership, chooses issues the members feel important, and through dues, employs lobbyists to persuade congressmen to vote in favor of Common Cause projects.

The members of Common Cause assist the lobbyists by writting their representatives about these issues.

Now Common Cause is working on important changes in the functioning of Congress, to make Congress more democratic and, above all, more responsive to the American people.

The tradition of seniority is one such issue. Common Cause members feel Congressional leadership should be determined by ability through a democratic vote in Congress, instead of simply longevity of an individual.

There are several other objectives, including efforts to eliminate the use of secret votes except in cases of "national security" or "personal privacy," fair campaign financing, better lobbying laws and so on.

Before the recent election, Congressman Phil Ruppe states publicly that he supports these Common Cause goals. Now he needs letters of support to implement these changes.

As coordinator for this district, for Common Cause, I would be delighted to discuss Common Cause and these issues with anyone. Common Cause is completely bi-partisan and one need not join to help or support particular issues.

Thanks for the fine editorial.

Sincerely,
Sara Gay Damman

Tiny Italian Fleet Has 2 Admirals per Warship

The Italian fleet has shrunk until there now are two admirals for every warship.

However, most of Italy's naval vessels are new missile-armed ships whose firepower more than makes up for any lack of numbers. NATO officials predict the Italian navy would give a good account of itself if the need arose.

The modern Italian navy traces its origins to 1861, the year Italy was unified and the warships of Sardinia, Sicily, Tuscany, and the Papal States were combined. This gave the new nation a 95-ship navy, including 24 sailing vessels.

ROME WAS SEA POWER

But Italy's naval tradition is one of the oldest in the world, the National Geographic Society says. When Roman legions marched victoriously across most of the ancient world, the Roman navy was equally triumphant at sea.

Early Romans were farmers and landlubbers. Three wars with Carthage, beginning in 264 B.C. and ending more than a century later, taught them the value of strong fleets.

At the start of the first Punic War Carthage reigned supreme in the Mediterranean, while Roman sea power was nonexistent. Rome built a fleet of huge galleys and in 256 B.C. decisively routed the Carthaginian ships off the promontory of Economus in southern Sicily.

As Rome grew, it remained primarily a land power. The oceans were regarded simply as highways to be crossed for conquest rather than avenues of exploration. Yet when occasion demanded, Rome could launch navies that swept all before them.

In time, the Mediterranean became Mare Nostrum, "Our Sea," dotted with Roman sails.

In the first century B.C., Pompey assembled a navy of 500 ships and cleared the eastern Mediterranean of fleets of pirates. The fast Liburnian frigates used by the pirates were copied by the Romans to strengthen their own way.

The tactic paid off handsomely at the Battle of Actium in 31 B.C., when Octavian's swifter, more maneuverable fleet defeated the cumbersome warships of Queen Cleopatra and her friend, Anthony.

When Octavian ruled as Ceasar Agustus, he built up Rome's first standing navy. One large fleet was based in the Adriatic, with another in the Bay of Naples.

Other squadrons of warships were maintained on the coast of France, in the Black Sea, and on the Rhine, Danube, and Euphrates Rivers. The Rhine fleet also made forays into the North Sea.

Indian Winter

By BOB CLOCK

Do you know what I think about every time we have a spell of unseasonably warm and sunny weather during an otherwise bleak and cheerless winter?

I think about the Indians who inhabited these parts before the arrival of the white man and how they must have welcomed such a break in the weather.

It is true that most all of our nomadic aborigines stayed in the Charlevoix area all winter, a situation which is paralleled today in the massive exodus to Florida each fall.

The Indians didn't travel as far as Florida, but many of them did high-tail it to the southern end of Lake Michigan in their canoes when the weather became feisty. They returned in the spring, just like our part-time residents do today, to plant their gardens and enjoy Charlevoix's agreeable summer weather.

But there were some Indians who stayed. Remnants of their homes are found in the post-molds near the mouth of Inwood Creek and in the charred hearths discovered last summer by Dr. Charles Clelland of Michigan State University and his student archeologist at the site of the former Beach Hotel.

Their homes apparently were constructed of saplings buried in the ground every four or five feet and then bent over and tied in the middle. The shell of the building probably consisted of bark and animals hides. It is likely that the floor also was covered with hides and that there was a hole in the roof to let out the smoke of the cookfire.

It sounds fairly snug, but you can't tell me that when winds off Lake Michigan hit 60 knots and the temperature sank below zero that these weren't pretty frosty places to bed down at night.

Such dwellings, at best, must have been cramped, crowded and smelly. Isolation of the sick and ailing would have been virtually impossible, and it seems quite likely that a relatively mild infection, coupled with cold weather and low resistance because of diet deficiencies, could well have wiped out entire families, perhaps even entire tribes.

We would like to know more about these people, how they lived, what they ate, what games the children played on a long winter evening in the drafty hogun, what drugs they used when they were sick, what they thought about and talked about and laughed about.

Archeologists, by their painstaking efforts, have been able to piece together a sketchy picture of Indian life through pottery shards and bits of broken bone found in the long-dead ashes of their hearths.

But we will never be able to recapture the essence of Indian life in the Charlevoix area as recently as a century and a half ago.

That's why I get such a kick out of a warm spell in the middle of winter. I think about happy Indian mamas shooing their kids outside to play, tidying up their jumbled hogans and hanging their rancid animal hide furnishings outside to air on nearby trees and brushes.

I think of Indian papas stalking through the melting woods with bows and arrows, reasonably sure of returning home with a fat rabbit or a yearling deer.

And I think of Indian grandmas and grandpas, squinting in the unaccustomed sunlight across the still waters, nourishing fresh hopes that they might live after all to see another summer.

Abridged Snakes

By JIM FITZGERALD

My wife was sitting there, flinching as she pasted tape over the pictures of snakes in our American Heritage dictionary.

"Wouldn't it be easier just to avoid the "S" section?" I asked.

"Life is never that easy," she answered. "There are pictures of snakes scattered all through this darn book. I don't dare open a page."

"If you cannot stand to look at pictures of snakes, how can you look at those long enough to tell whether they should be taped over?" I asked.

"It isn't easy," she shuddered, holding the dictionary behind her back while she pasted over half an "R" page to wipe out 1 little rattler. "But I figure a few minutes of torture now are worth the future freedom of knowing I can thumb through the dictionary without being shocked to death."

"Readers often accuse me of exaggerating when I write about you," I said. "When I tell the world that you paste tape over pictures of snakes in the dictionary, no one is going to believe me. They are going to say 'Ha, there he goes fibbing about his poor wife again.'"

"Everyone has their little idiosyncrasies," she said. "But only I have a husband who blabs family secrets in a newspaper column."

"The only way I can establish my credibility is to invite readers over to look up snakes in our dictionary," I said. "For the next few days you'd better keep the dirty sox and dust balls off the bookcase."

(It probably should be noted here that I really don't mind Pat marring the pages of our expensive dictionary. The taped pictures could be a life saver. Whenever she turns a page and unexpectedly sees a snake, she screams and throws whatever she is reading. It is one thing to be hit with a flying newspaper. It is another thing to be conked in the head by a 5-pound American Heritage dictionary. Although it probably would make an impressive epitaph for a journalist, chiseled in granite: "Crusading Editor - Never Ducked - Killed by Words."

Anyway, back to the domestic dialog...

"It has just occurred to me that I am also entitled to a little idiosyncrasy," I said "Have we got any of that thick, black tape; I think it's called electrician's tape? When I was a kid we used it to restore old baseballs."

"Why?" she asked.

"To prevent myself from suffering future shock, I am going to tape 2 cats to a tree," I said.

"You're not a bit funny," she said.

"The tape won't hold them forever, I know. But as the cats work loose; I'll be able to test another legend," I said. "I'll see if there really is more than one way to skin a cat."

"You're a snake," she said, taping my elbow to my nose.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Proprietors of the early wooden framed hotels seemed more concerned about the health than the safety and lives of their guests.

Food handlers wore hair nets and the use of dishes was restricted to dining by the rigidly enforced ban against smoking.

Floors, stairs, and hallways were hand scrubbed bone white every day except Sunday.

In the event of fire the emergency exit was a knotted rope thrown out of a window.

The establishment was a kitchen - bakery - laundry - cannery complex. The owner's farm provided the bulk of the menu and all of the wood for the central heating and kitchen range.

The cook worked from 5:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. with a two hour afternoon break. King sized rolling pins, flour sifters, egg beaters and potato mashers were appropriate to the 'pinch of this and dab of that' recipes of 50 portions or more. She received $60 dollars per month and Sunday afternoons free.

Coffee and baked goods were always available to the lodgers who contributed coins on the honor system into a can on the shelf. These tips were divided weekly by the two waitresses who doubled as chambermaids and laundresses for $1 a day.

The profit margin was increased by having the cookee bank the furnace at 10 p.m. In return he received his room and board plus $3.50 in cash each week for general maintenance. The hot water system derived its heat at no cost from the water jacket in the range firepot. Wasteful peeling was eliminated with an abrasive lines vertical cylinder, rotated with a crank, which rubbed the skins off new potatoes.

Another source of revenue was the meals sold to local businessmen and elected officials who felt that the public exposure justified the 30 cents involved. Take-out sales of pastry and baked goods to visiting diners further enriched the coffers.

There was no maitre-de, manager or cashier until colleges shifted emphasis from agriculture to business management. The European plan of $1.50 per day or $9.00 per week reduced labor costs significantly. With guests observing check out-time ten or twenty years later — who needed a desk clerk?

'Let's Set the Table' Is Jet-Age Etiquette

By Bob Clock

The only thing Edith Gilbert doesn't tell you in her newest book, "Let's Set the Table", is where to position the dog's bowl while you are gathering scraps for the dog's dinner.

And it's not because Mrs. Gilbert has anything against dogs. It is because scraping plates at the table is one of the two taboos in her colorful, 37-page book on doing things right in the dining room.

Her only other taboo has to do with stacking dishes before removing them to the kitchen. She's against it.

Beyond that, the author admits to a world of flexibility in proper and attractive table settings for all occasions, from informal breakfasts to banquets and wedding feasts.

Soon to be available in local bookstores and gift shops, "Let's Set the Table" is a book that has never been written before, to our knowledge. Furthermore, it is so comprehensive, so attractive, so well-done and so full of common sense that it probably will be a standard in the field of etiquette for years to come.

"Let's Set the Table" measures 15 inches by 12 inches and the multi-colored pages are bound together with a plastic spiral for easy flip-and-read reference.

The frontispiece consists of outline drawings of flatware and serving utensils, with thumbnail descriptions of sterling silver, silverplate, gold electroplate and stainless steel.

Inside, you'll find drawings of all kinds of chinaware, from egg cups to quiche pans, diagrams of table settings both formal and informal, and a wealth of artwork and commentary on table setting and serving that should make your next dinner party come off like clockwork.

Did you know, for example, that there are ten ways to serve butter? There are, and Mrs. Gilbert lists them all.

Or did you know that the hostess doesn't have to sit at the opposite end of the table from the host, although she may? Her alternate choices are to the right or the left of the male guest of honor, who would then face his host.

Mrs. Gilbert has woven proverbs and quotations on the art of dining into the text, underscoring the importance mealtime holds in most civilized countries. "There are few hours in life more agreeable than the hour dedicated to the ceremony known as afternoon tea." – Henry James. "I thank you for your welcome which was cordial, and for your cordial which was welcome."

A long-time Charlevoix resident, Mrs. Gilbert and her husband, Julius, owner of The Lodge motel, live on Michigan-ave. Her first book, "All About Parties," is a popular guide to entertaining.

"Let's Set the Table" was designed and produced by Ralph A. Misiak, Art Associates, of Saginaw. The publisher is Jetiquette of Charlevoix.

In her preface, Mrs. Gilbert says that "jetiquette" is the jet-age application of yesterday's rules of etiquette.

"Using common sense, or jetiquette, as our yardstick when making decisions will keep us from going too far off course," she writes.

We imagine many June brides from here on in will find a copy of "Let's Set the Table" among their shower gifts. It's the kind of book they'll be able to put to good use, if they can get it away from mama and grandma.

JAMES WILLIAMS, right, has purchased Schroeder's Drug Store from John Schroeder. The business has become Williams' Dockside Pharmacy.

Williams Buys Out His Old Employer

James Williams, a pharmacist at Schroeder's Drug Store at the corner of Bridge and Mason-sts. for almost eight years, has purchased the business from his old boss, John Schroeder.

From now on the business will be called Williams' Dockside Pharmacy.

Details of the transaction were completed Feb. 1, according to Schroeder and Williams.

However, the sale doesn't end Schroeder's long association with the drug store. He plans to work as a pharmacist for Williams from May through October every year, spending the winters at the condominium he and Mrs. Schroeder have purchased in North Palm Beach, Fla.

A native of Villisca, Iowa, Williams graduated from Atlanta High School and received his degree in pharmacy from the State University of Iowa in 1959.

During his three years in the Air Force he was stationed at an AF hospital at Glasgow, Mont., where he became acquainted with Dr. John Lignell of Detroit, a member was on the hospital staff.

After his discharge, Williams was working for a drug store in Shenandoah, Iowa, when he received word from his old AF buddy Dr. Lignell that Schroeder's Drug Store in Charlevoix was looking for a pharmacist. The Lignells had pulled up stakes in Detroit and moved to Charlevoix shortly before.

Williams and his wife, the former Judy Shoeman whom he married in 1957, moved to Charlevoix in 1964 and he has been employed by Schroeder ever since.

The Williams' have three sons, Brian, 13; Todd, 12; and Kurt, 10. They live on Carson-ave.

Schroeder was born in Mancelona, graduated from Mancelona High School and taught in country schools six years before receiving his pharmacy degree from Ferris State College in 1937.

From 1938 until 1940 he was employed as a pharmacist for Fessenden and Son in Charlevoix, leaving to become a drug salesman for Wyeth Laboratories in Traverse City. In June, 1942, returned to Charlevoix and purchased the drug store from Fessenden.

For 20 years, Jerome (Jerry) Hovey of Harbor Springs was a silent partner in the business, until Schroeder bought his interest in 1962.

Schroeder and his wife, Margaret, have two daughters, Mrs. Donald (Angela) Sergeant of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Mrs. Kurt (Janet) Stanfill of Rochester, Mich.

Lieberman Chamber President

Robert (Bob) Lieberman, owner of Lieberman's clothing store on Bridge-st., has been elected president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for 1972.

He was voted in by his fellow directors at the group's January meeting.

Serving with him will be Dave Phillips, co-owner of Grey Gables, as vice president, and Mrs. Larry (Jeannine) Wallace, owner of the Shop of the Gulls, as secretary-treasurer.

Thomas Merta, executive director of the chamber, reports that the C of C has reached 100 percent of its investment goal for 1972.

He attributes much of the success to Ralph Hess, who recruited new investors in December.

Among the late December and early January investors were: The Carriage Wheel (Edith Stenman); Robert G. Martin, M.D.; J. Hilliard Shackford Investments; Airport Inn; Art Dry Cleaners; Robert K. Huber, attorney at law; Michigan Bell; Belvedere Club (one quarter); and Charles A. Elzinga Insurance Co. (Charles Elzinga and Jerry Redeker).

In other business at the January meeting, directors agreed to contribute $200 to the Golf Association of Michigan which holds the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament at the Belvedere Golf Course every June.

In years past, the chamber has donated $1,000 to the golf association, but rising costs of chamber operations necessitated a cut-back.

Let it Snow, Let it Snow

Charlevoix's first measurable snow in more than a week began falling early Tuesday morning to the relief of owners of ski resorts, motels, restaurants and others who cater to winter sports enthusiasts.

By daybreak, the entire area was covered with about two inches of new snow, and with temperatures in the mid-20's there was a good chance of it staying.

Although January's unseasonable warm weather and rain removed most of the early winter snow cover, ski slopes at Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highlands remained open, thanks to a hefty base of artificial snow. Other areas were forced to shut down.

With the new fall, however, hopes ran high that something could be salvaged of northern Michigan's on-again, off-again winter.

BUILT in 1917, the present K&A Dodge building houses (from left) Gary Balch's Harbor Barber Shop, Robert Huber's law office, Darrel Somerville's barber shop and Fay's Dress Shop. The Dodge agency recently went out of business.

Fitzpatrick Stands Mute At Murder Arraignment

Larry Raymond Fitzpatrick, 24, Boyne City, stood mute Monday at arraignment in Charlevoix Circuit Court on a charge of first degree murder in the death of his hunting companion, Donald Fettig, 29, last Nov. 19 near Walloon Lake.

A plea of innocent was entered for Fitzpatrick by Circuit Judge Edward H. Fenlon.

Tuesday, Judge Fenlon was to hear two motions in the case drawn up by Fitzpatrick's attorney, Jack Carpenter of Petoskey.

On motion asks that the case be quashed because the alleged murder weapon was seized illegally. The other has to do with the veracity of the prosecution's star witness, Henry Washburn, 41, of Boyne City. Washburn testified at Fitzpatrick's examination in District Court that Fitzpatrick had asked him to help murder Fettig.

Fettig's widow, Lillie, of Walloon Lake, has been charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the death of her husband, but has not been examined on the charge. A conspiracy charged is also pending against Fitzpatrick.

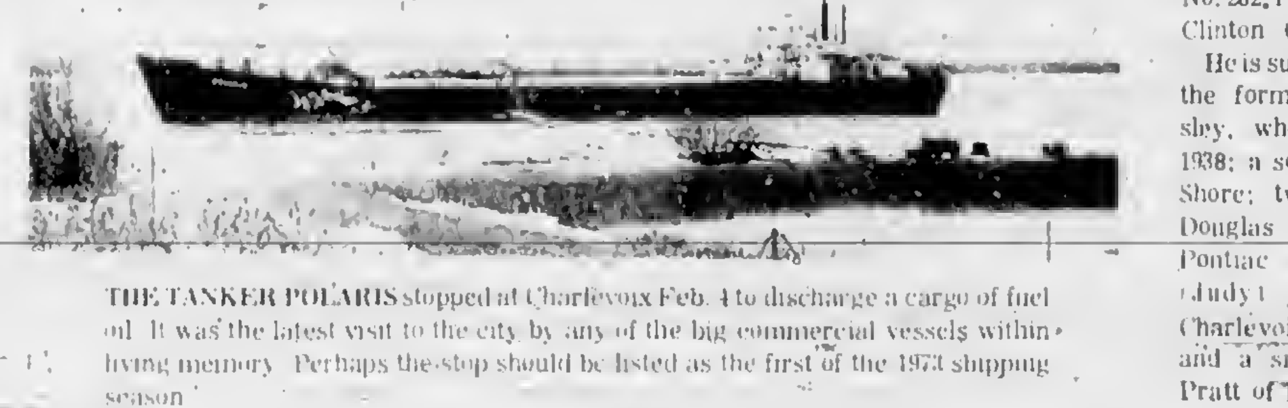
CIS Seeks Injunction

Ira Davis, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, was formerly charged Friday with delaying a vote on county-wide zoning by the Citizens Information Service (CIS).

Davis was served a summons and complaint by the Sheriff's Department.

The CIS is seeking an injunction from Circuit Court Judge Edward H. Fenlon to force the county to call for an early referendum vote on county-wide zoning, as requested in petitions circulated by the organization last November.

The commissioners tentatively have scheduled a vote for late summer. However, the CIS says the vote must be held within 90 days after the petitions were filed.



THE TANKER POLARIS stopped at Charlevoix Feb. 4 to discharge a cargo of fuel oil. It was the latest visit to the city by any of the big commercial vessels within living memory. Perhaps the stop should be listed as the first of the 1973 shipping season.

Neffs Moving Across Street In Big Shuffle

The 56-year-old K&A Dodge Building on Bridge-st. has been purchased by a Petoskey-based organization called Market, Ltd., and will be turned into a retail and office arcade this spring, according to K. R. Peterson of Petoskey who handled the sale. The complex will be called "The Market."

The Neff Quality Food Store located on the east side of Bridge-st. also has been purchased by the developers, and will be converted into office space.

A new food store will be included in the arcade and will be operated by Robert Neff and his present staff from Neff's Market. Neff's move is contingent upon transfer of the store's present liquor license to the new owners, according to Mrs. Marge Peterson, a spokesman for Peterson & Associates, Realtors.

Mrs. Peterson said up to 11 shops and offices are possible in the proposed arcade depending on the space needed by each tenant.

Constructed in 1917, the building presently is occupied by Gary Balch's Harbor Barber Shop, the law office of attorney Robert Huber, Darrel Somerville's barber shop, Fay's Dress Shop and the former K&A Dodge agency which recently closed. The building formerly was owned by Kenneth DePew, who purchased the Dodge agency in the late 1960's from Brown Motors.

Plans for the arcade are being drawn up by Charlevoix architect Jack Begrow. The overall design will follow the "French seaside" motif being adopted by many of the Charlevoix's downtown businesses.

Although many details remain to be worked out, Mrs. Peterson said the owners plan to start remodeling about March 1, with occupancy of some of the shops expected in June.

The upper floor of the building will continue to be used for apartments.

Masonic Rites Held For Mr. Somerville

Funeral for Robert (Bob) Somerville, 58, retired Coast Guardsman and Charlevoix patrolman, was held at the Winchester Funeral Home Saturday afternoon, under auspices of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F&AM. Burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery in East Jordan.

Mr. Somerville died at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor Jan. 31 following heart surgery.

Born in Antrim County Dec. 27, 1914, Mr. Somerville enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard in Charlevoix in 1934 and served at the Charlevoix Station and at other stations in the United States and the Pacific theater. He retired April 30, 1957, as a chief boatswain's mate.

During his retirement, Mr. Somerville worked as a patrolman for the Charlevoix Police Department on a seasonal basis.

He was a member and past master of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F&AM and the DeWitt Clinton Consistory.

He is survived by his widow, the former Beatrice Beardsley, whom he married in 1938; a son Darrel R. of Bay Shore; two daughters, Mrs. Douglas (Donna) Byers of Pontiac and Mrs. Michael (Judy) Przybylski of Charlevoix; six grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Leonard Pratt of Kalamazoo.

Sundew Starts to Test Ice-Breaking 'Bubbler'

Experts Convene To Study System

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew began a six-week series of tests Monday to determine the effectiveness of the vessel's newly installed "bubbler" ice-breaking equipment.

The only hitch may be finding enough ice, according to Lt. Cmdr. P.J. Bull, Sundew skipper.

Most of the testing probably will be done near the Straits where more ice has formed than in the Charlevoix areas.

The ice-breaking tests will be conducted for three weeks, followed by a week-long break. Then they will resume for another three weeks.

The bubbler system consists of an air line installed along each side of the hull which will introduce air bubbles under the ice.

The only problem encountered to date is that some of the air is being captured in a sea chest on the bottom of the vessel, interfering with the effectiveness of the ship's water intake for engine cooling.

Charlevoix diver Robert Timms has made several trips under the Sundew in recent weeks in an effort to install a shield which will prevent the air from entering the sea chest.

If cooling continues to be a problem, water to cool the engines will be stored in an unused fuel tank, enabling the vessel to operate one and one half hours without stopping to change the cooling water.

Nine additional officers and men have been assigned to the Sundew while the tests are being carried out.

Test director is Lt. Cmdr. J.A. McIntosh, of the Coast Guard's Research and Development Center at Groton, Conn. The test engineer will be Lt. J/G W.J. Blanton of Coast Guard headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Also working on the tests will be ETCM N.R. Salassi, instrumentation technician from the R&DC in Groton; ENC A. E. Johnson, Base Milwaukee; EN3 J. Lls, Group Buffalo; FN C.M. Baker, Base Sault Ste. Marie; FA J.V. Caesar, Station Ashtabula, Ohio; FA D.K. Morrow, Station Sturgeon Bay; and MST3 D.J. Seyfurth of the R&DC, who will be in charge of ice measurements.

During January, the Sundew assisted the Southwind in escorting U.S. Steel and Huron Cement freighters through the ice-clogged Straits.

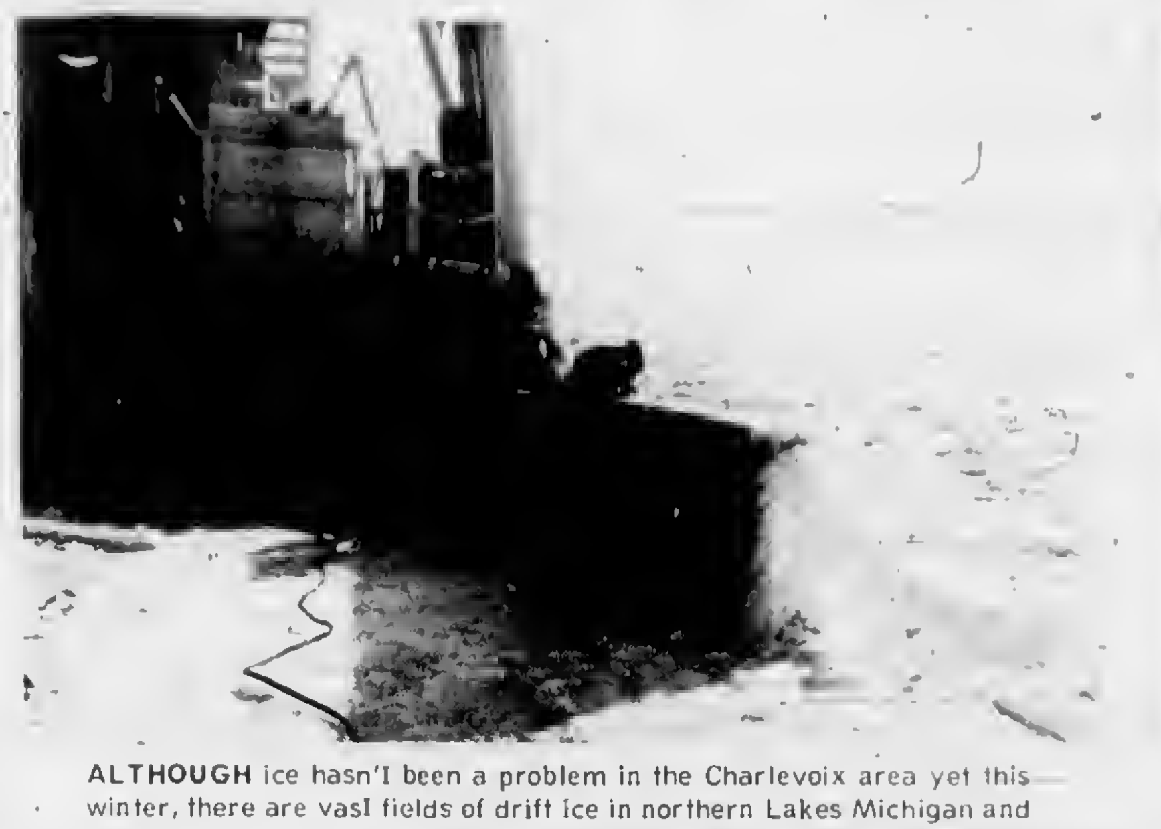
The Sundew also transported a new snow removal truck from St. Ignace to Mackinac Island. Although motorized vehicles are prohibited on the island, the plow will clear roads for the use of emergency vehicles.

The icebreaker also has made logistics runs to Lansing Shoal light, which is still manned in an effort to keep the northern lakes open to freighter traffic year-'round.

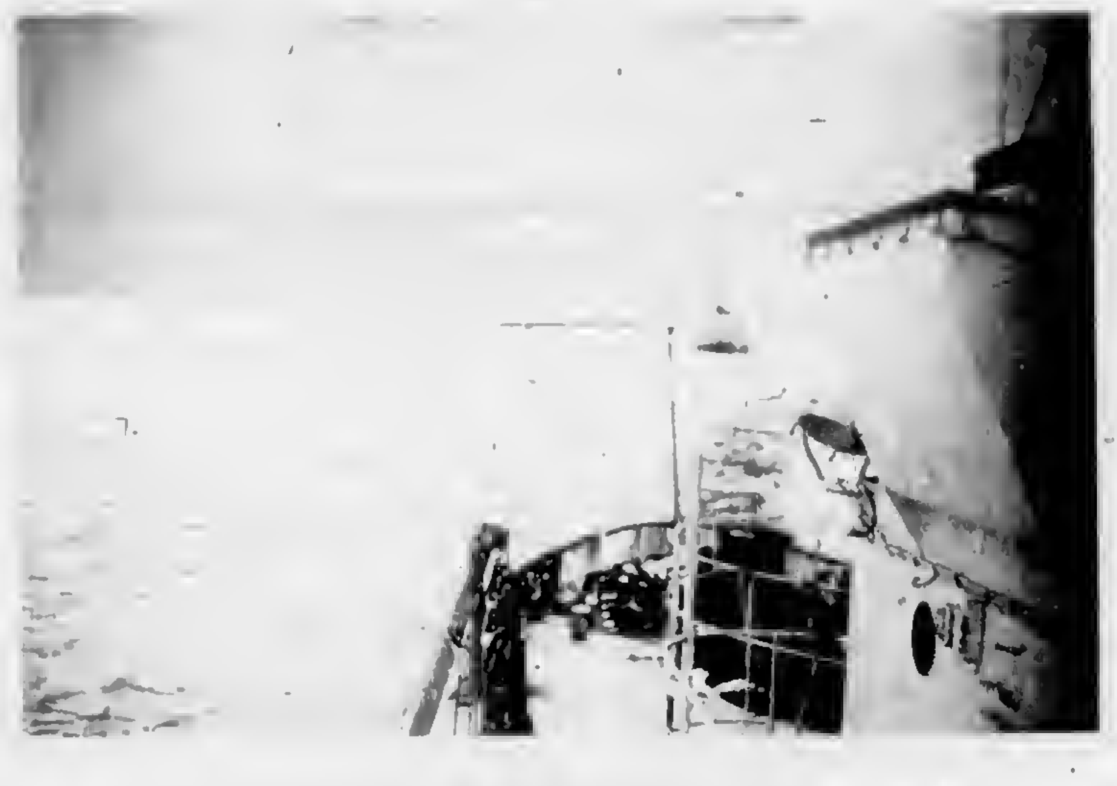
Also in connection with year-'round shipping season, the Sundew has placed four specially designed experimental lighted ice buoys in the St. Mary's River between Sault Ste. Marie and Detour.

The Coast Guard believes the buoys will aid vessels moving through the river at night, if the buoys can withstand the severe ice conditions experience in that area.

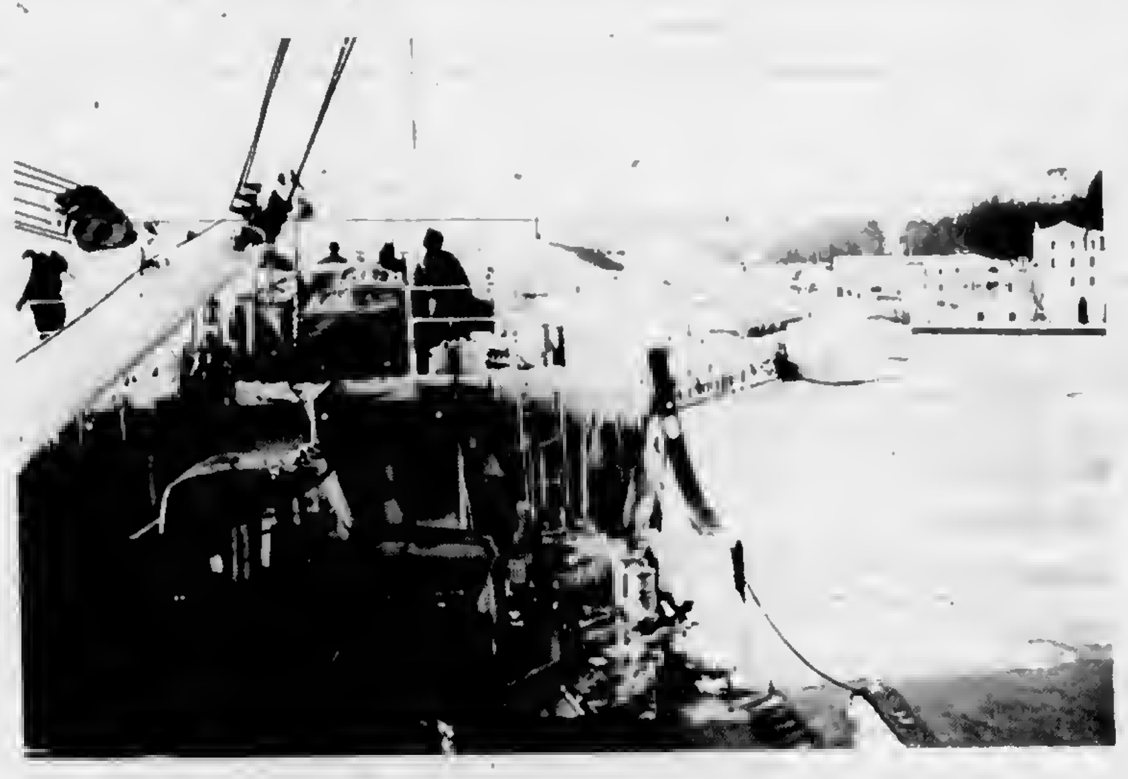
The buoys were picked up at Coast Guard Base Sault Ste. Marie and took two days in set in place, because of the great accuracy required in positioning. The complexity of the mornings, particularly the larger ones, posed difficult problems for the crew of the Sundew, working in sub-freezing temperatures under severe icing conditions.



ALTHOUGH ice hasn't been a problem in the Charlevoix area yet this winter, there are vast fields of drift ice in northern Lakes Michigan and Huron. This is what the deck of the Sundew looked like during recent operations in the Straits.



THE COAST Guard Cutter Sundew escorts the Huron Cement Co. steamer S. T. Crapo through the Straits of Mackinac.



DURING January, the Sundew transported this snow-plow equipped truck, owned by the Department of Natural Resources, from St. Ignace to Mackinac Island. Only emergency motorized vehicles are allowed on the island. The snow plow will keep roads open for them.

Win Over Boyne Breaks Rayders' Losing Streak

The Red Rayders broke an agonizing losing streak Friday night by defeating the Boyne City Ramblers, 64 to 53.

The win was Charlevoix's third of the season, against 7 losses.

Charlevoix trailed at the end of the first period, 14 to 11, and at the half by 28 to 26.

However, in the third period, the Rayders caught fire, scoring 18 points to Boyne City's 11.

In the finale, Charlevoix frosted the cake with 20 points, while the Ramblers managed only 14.

High point man for Charlevoix was Randy Faust with 16 points scored on 8 field goals.

Close behind was Steve McClellan with 14 points on 7 field goals and Jerry Skippergosh with 13 points on 3 field goals and 7 free throws.

Also scoring were Dennis Crain, 9 (3 and 3); Dale Boss, 6 (3 field goals); Kevin Stokes, 4 (2 field goals); and Clint Berlage, 2 (1 field goal).

Scoring for Boyne City were Charles Stanek with 25, followed by Brad Upton, 10; Duane Shay, 7; Lon Kowakski, 6; Alan Newville, 3; and Terry Elzinga, 2.

JV'S Lose Lead, Bow to Ramblers

The JV's fell to their Boyne City counterparts Friday night, 45 to 36.

The young cagers started strong, leading the Ramblers 16 to 12 at the end of the first period and 22 to 20 at the half.

However a third period slump netted the Rayders only 5 points, while Boyne City was busy racking up 12. The Charlevoix team staged something of a comeback in the finale with 11 points, but the Ramblers tallied 13, giving them a 7-point margin at the final buzzer.

High man for Charlevoix was Mike Streeter with 12 points on 5 field goals and 2 free throws.

Dan Greene scored 9 points on 1 field goal and 7 free throws, while Charles Faust turned in 9 on 4 field goals and 1 free throw. Dave Martinchek was credited with 7, (3 and 1) and Kevin Martin scored one point on a free throw.

Seminars on Mid East Start Feb. 8 in Petoskey

A United Nations ambassador from Egypt, an Israeli consular representative and an official from the United States Department of State are among officials who will visit Petoskey in connection with an upcoming seminar on "The Search for Peace in the Middle East," at North Central Michigan College.

Michigan State University's Office of International Extension, and the University's Continuing Education Center in Traverse City, are cooperating to bring these authorities and educators, who have studied and taught in, and written on the Middle East, to the seminar, which begins at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 8.

Business and professional men and women, governmental leaders, educators, bankers, farmers, homemakers, students and others are invited to participate in the seminar which will meet five Thursday nights in the Faculty Lounge, Student Center, on the campus of NCMC.

In the seminar, exploration of the background of the Middle East conflict and expression of both the Arab and Israeli viewpoints will be followed by examination of the foreign policy of the United States and other major powers in the area.

The first two sessions will deal with the Arab-Israeli backdrop. Speaking at the first will be Dr. Albert I. Rabin, MSU professor of psychology, who has taught in two major Israeli universities and written authoritative books on Kibbutz living. Speaking at the second, will be Dr. Fauzi Najjar, MSU professor of social sciences, who is a native of Lebannon and a graduate of the American University of Beirut. Dr. Najjar has returned to the Middle East for three periods of study in the past decade and has authored works on the Islamic State and Islamic political philosophy.

Dates, topics and professors for all seminar sessions follow:

Feb. 8: Where Africa, Europe and Asia Meet. Dr. Najjar will discuss the people, culture and land that make up the Middle East, the changes evolving in patterns of living, social and political institutions and groups, the rise of modern ideologies and the role of the military in the changes.

Feb. 15. The Modern State of Israel. Dr. Rabin will discuss the proclamation of the State of Israel which ended the United Kingdom mandate over Palestine, and review the government, political conditions, society, economy and foreign relations of the previous quarter century.

Coach Lauds Guardsman Who Worked with Team

By Norm Probert
Wrestling Coach

You often hear stories about the young men in our society, most of them bad, concerning draft dodging, dope and lawlessness.

This is the story about a boy who lived the major part of his life in Alaska and attended the Hibbing State Junior College in Minnesota.

Since leaving school he has been serving his country here in Charlevoix with the U.S. Coast Guard, although he left Sunday to attend radioman school in Petaluma, Calif.

The students of Charlevoix High School, especially the wrestling team, call him by his first name, Mike. For Mike D. Vukmir has been a good inspiration and guiding light for every member of the team.

Mike was a state wrestling champ in Alaska and placed first in the U.S. All-Service team at 114 .5 pounds. He volunteered to help coach Charlevoix matmen in his spare time, spending his liberties at practice sessions and traveling with the team to meets.

Sometimes it wasn't easy. Mike often walked from the Coast Guard station to the school when he couldn't hitch a ride. He also would work extra duty so he could have a night off to be with the team on its many away trips.

Our boys respected Mike for his dedication and followed his instructions to the letter.

Mike Vukmir

The citizens of Charlevoix can be thankful that such men as Mike are serving with the Coast Guard here. He was a fine asset to the community.

I would personally like to commend Mike on his work with the Charlevoix wrestlers while he was stationed here.

The team wishes Mike the best of luck in both his future schooling and his wrestling competition. They hope to see him in the Montreal Olympics in 1976, for in their minds he is a true champion.

CHARLEVOIX heavyweight Phil Christ pinned Petoskey's Chris Brockway in 3:53 in last week's wrestling match at Petoskey. The pin was the only one for the Charlevoix team, which lost the meet 40-12. Pat Linse and Brian Warner won on decisions. (Photo by Fred Lovelace)

Frosh Add Another Win To Record

Charlevoix's freshmen cagers defeated Boyne City 59-51.

The Ramblers led in the first half with quarter scores of 17-15 and 38-27.

However Charlevoix moved ahead in the third period scoring 15 points compared to only two for the Ramblers, for a tally of 42-40.

In the final period, the Rayders came on even stronger, with 17 points to Boyne City's 11.

Pacing the scorers for Charlevoix was Mark Hosmer with 23, followed by Randy Williams, 14, and Bob Alger, 11.

For Boyne City, Bill Knapp had 19 points and Hal Gahn 13.

CHS Wrestlers Capture 5 Medals at Benzie Meet

Charlevoix wrestlers placed sixth in the area tournament at Benzie Central Saturday, capturing five medals.

Pat Linse continued his winning ways with another tournament first place. Butch Klooster and Phil Christ took second places and Marc Custer and Terry drew took home fourth place medals.

Linse just missed the award for outstanding wrestler of the tourney. Pat was tied in voting among the coaches with Joe Wambold of Traverse City. The referees then cast votes and Linse lost by a close margin.

Linse's record now stands at 19-0 for the season. In the past two years, Linse has won 39 and lost only 4.

Phil Christ borke or tied 4 school records.

He set a new school heavyweight record on the fastest pin (15 seconds), erasing Joe Jones' record of 33 second set last season.

Christ also now holds the school Varsity record for the fastest win, breaking Dan Key's 25 second record. He also broke Paul Kloosters season record of 9 pins. His 2 pins at Benzie brought him to 11. He also broke Jones' record for consecutive pins, scoring 4 in a row.

Senior Butch Klooster won his first match with a pin, following his victory with a 9-4 decision over the second seeded Bruce Miller of Reed City. Then he lost in the final by Blair Bearinger of Traverse City by a 6-5 decision.

Traverse City captured the meet with 95 points, followed by Scottville, 71; Reed City, 56.5; Manistee Catholic Central, 54; Pine River, 53; Charlevoix, 44; Clare, 27.5; and Benzie Central, 26.

WEEDS AND grass were showing Sunday on this popular ski trail at Mt. McSauba.

Library notes

By Eleanor Ratigan

"Escape From Colditz" by P.R. Ried is a new book which will appeal to most of our adult readers. It's just about the best "escape" book to come out of World War II. It concerns, first of all, Reid's personal memoir of his own escape in 1942, and also the story of the prisoners who were left behind. Colditz prisoners were the elite–the "bad boys" who had escaped from other camps and been recaptured. The Germans considered the prison escape proof, because it was a medieval fortress built on a cliff. The castle had a moat and was surrounded by palisades of barbed wire on a edge of sheer precipices. The guard outnumbered the prisoners at all times. Yet in four years there were 300 escape attempts, and while relatively few reached the safety of allied territory, the miracle was that any succeeded. This is a fascinating exciting book. With pictures!

"Marriages and Infidelities" is the fourth volume of short stories written by Joyce Carol Oates. Miss Oates is one of the most honored authors in the world of American letters, and many of the stories contained in this new book have themselves won awards.

"We All Went to Paris" is a chunky, 400-page book by the celebrated Stephan Longstreet. It is one of the most engrossing and entertaining books to come along in a long time. Mr. Longstreet first went to Paris at the age of five, and on each of his subsequent visits, he developed an increasing fascination and mounting curiosity about the Americans who were drawn by its magic. The migration from America to the golden, enchanted city began long before Benjamin Franklin, and it did not end with Jackie Onassis. For two hundred years Americans have been going to Paris or dreaming of going. The book is made up of 55 completely delightful sketches about the great personalities who visited Paris, beginning with Franklin and including vignettes about Whistler, Henry James, Mary Cassatt, Gertrude Stein, Isadora Duncan, Dos Passos, Cole Porter and, of course, Henry Miller. Highly recommended.

In "Fire From Heaven," Mary Renault followed the career of Alexander the Great up to his accession when he was 20. Now in "The Persian Boy", we meet him six years later and follow him to his death in a beautifully moving story told by his young lover and companion, Bogoas, a true person who may well have influenced history. The adventures of Alexander's last seven years, told by Bogoas, makes a tale rich in historical insight and detail. Mary Renault finishes her story of Alexander, leaving the reader with an incomparable picture of the conqueror and his world, and a picture of human involvement and affection that is rare in the art of fiction about the past.

Witnesses to Meet At Houghton Lake

Jehovah's Witnesses from this area will be attending a convention in Houghton Lake, Feb. 24 and 25 as announced by Ronald Morganthaler, presiding overseer of the local congregation.

Upwards of 1300 delegates from 24 congregations in northern lower Michigan are expected to convene at the Houghton Lake High School to hear Mr D.P. Biegler, Watchtower district overseer, deliver the Sunday public talk, "Decide Now for Divine Rulership."

According to Morganthaler, the delegates will strive to acquaint residents of the Houghton Lake area with the work of Jehovah's Witnesses, who have been tagged as the fastest growing religion on earth. Last year an average of one person every three and one-half minutes took up the Christian ministry as one of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The two day assembly will also feature advanced ministerial training, dramatizations, baptismal services and dicourses.

The assembly is sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society which also published the Watchtower magazine, the most widely circulated religious publication. The magazine will be used by the delegates in their efforts to increase appreciation for the Bible. A total of 7,850,000 copies are printed each issue in 74 languages.

The public is invited to attend all sessions, which are free.

Robert Somerville: A Gentleman First

In an age when charges of "police brutality" are daily fare in the metropolitan press, Charlevoix's Robert Somerville stood as a fine example of what a good police officer can be and should be. He was a gentleman first, a police officer second.

"He always smiled when he gave you a ticket," commented one of his fellow citizens the other day, "and somehow, because of that smile, you didn't mind getting the ticket so much."

Mr. Somerville, who died last week in Ann Arbor following heart surgery, came to police work late in life, having served 23 years in the Coast Guard before his retirement in 1957.

Although his Coast Guard assignments took him to various stations throughout the United States and in the Pacific, he always considered the Charlevoix area his "home port."

As a sailor, he loved the Great Lakes and was never far from the sound of the Lake Michigan surf. From his trim, well-kept home on Palmer-st. he kept track of boat traffic on Pine River Channel and activities around the pierheads.

He also maintained a summer home and deer lodge on the east shore of Beaver Island where he could keep an eye on the big lakers upbound and downbound from Grey's Reef Passage.

He knew the island and its history by heart and could take you through the deep woods to the mysterious hummocks left there generations ago by a race of long-forgotten "mound builders."

In his later years, Mr. Somerville attempted to instill his own love and respect for the big waters into the youth of Charlevoix by his tireless efforts on behalf of Charlevoix Sea Scouts.

Coast Guardsman, patrolman, Scout leader, father, gentleman and friend, Mr. Somerville will be sorely missed by those whose lives he touched.

The Nixon Budget: Step Toward Solvency

Although there have been howls aplenty from our Democratic congressmen and senators, we have nothing but applause for President Nixon's 1972 economy budget.

The time is certainly long overdue for a modicum of fiscal responsibility on the federal level, and the President is girded to do battle against those federal government programs he considers a waste of money.

Regrettably, he has added a whopping $4 billion to the military budget, but on the other hand he is lopping off $18 billion from programs he feels either are worthless or can be better administered on the state and local levels.

The cuts add up to literally tens of thousands of government jobs, but we are convinced that the federal government has become so unwieldly that it is in danger of collapsing under its own weight.

It is a long-forgotten fact of economies that no government employe adds a red cent to the country's gross national product. Government workers simply provide services which must be paid for by those of us who are contributing to the GNP.

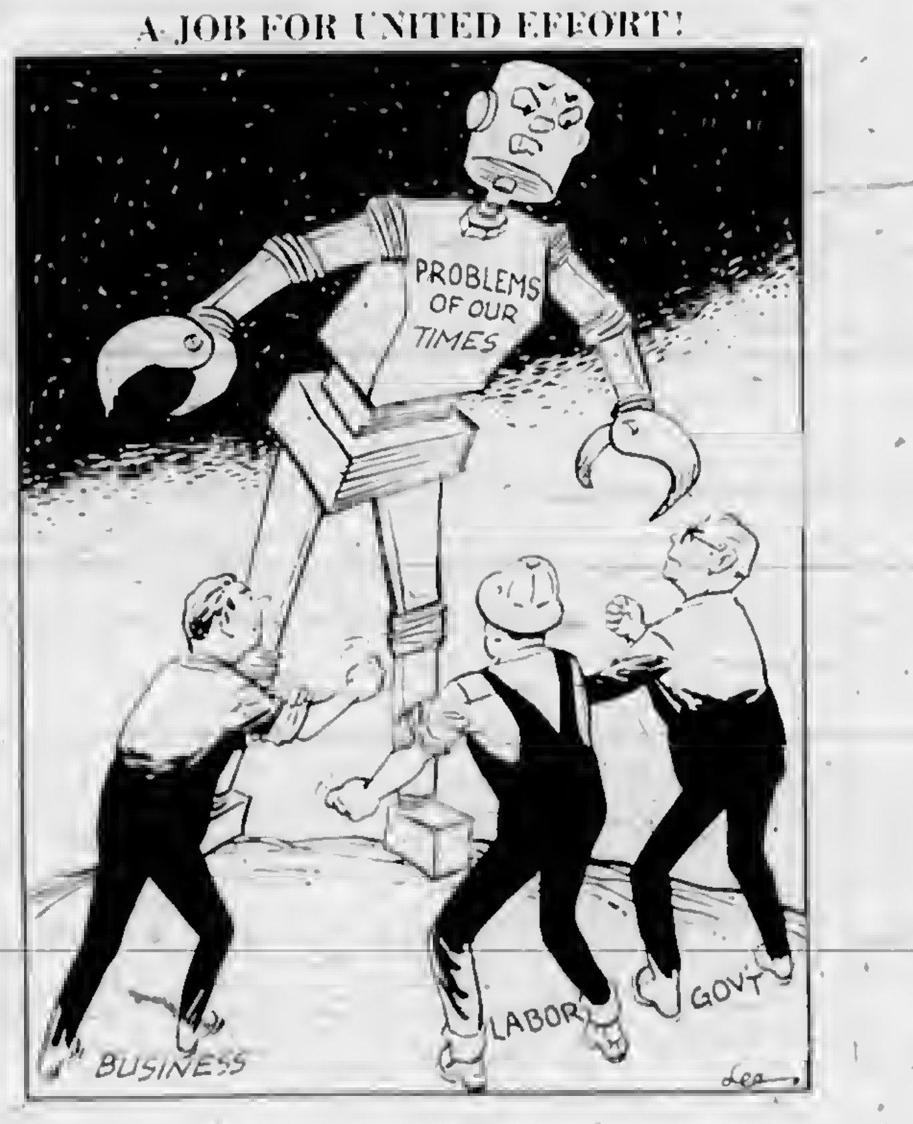
In some areas, we believe the President has gone too far, such as the proposed elimination of the federal school milk subsidy and funds for classroom materials that most schools would simply have to do without if it weren't for federal assistance.

Yet other programs certainly have proved themselves more of a drain than a benefit, witness the many Community Action Programs, activities of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Job Corps.

We are confident that the President and Congress working together will be able to salvage what should be salvaged, eliminate what should be eliminated and trim the fat of what is left.

In another year the President might see fit to cut the military budget as much as he has the domestic budget. Then we'll really be back on the road to federal solvency.

A JOB FOR UNITED EFFORT!



Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

Uncle Charlie's mule Jenny wholeheartedly endorsed observance of the Sabbath as a day of rest but felt every day deserved equal honors. Unable to impress this logic upon Charlie, she compromised by initiating the short work week and by celebrating every holiday including both Lincoln's and Washington's birthday.

Birthdays, in her case, she deemed to be a feminine prerogative and chose hers to coincide with some particularly degrading task scheduled by her profiteering employer. Offended by the indelicate threats of the partner in the joint farming venture, she ambled out of earshot to meditate on ways to arrest her fleeting youth.

Eclipsing Charlie's patriotism, she stood at ease in the shade, facing the flag all the while it fluttered atop the towering spruce pole which she had dragged from the back 40 in the infancy of her irksome bondage.

Charlie's appearance, however brief, in his store boughten suit triggered a day of leisure as did the numerous weddings, christenings, and anniversaries on Charlie's calendar. Her photographic mind catalogued every relative, including third cousin Julius from Epoufette, and a visit by any one of them constituted a family reunion. As a member of the clan she governed her activities accordingly.

Though of opposing political views, she took full advantage of election day privileges which constitutionally apply to voter and non-voter alike whether registered or not. Thus, it is readily apparent that her participation in agricultural productivity was limited by man-made events beyond her control rather than lack of profit motivation on her part.

Each winter, Charlie granted Jenny her accumulated sick leave without question. This may appear odd, but not when one considers Uncle Charlie's respect for character. He knew that although Jenny resorted to every inventive tactic to avoid physical exertion, she would never stop to feigning illness as an excuse. Charlie, being a man of integrity, cheerfully rewarded this honesty, which he found more prevalent among mules than men.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: Is it now possible to get personalized license plates, and, if so, how much do the cost? L.O.R., Stephenson

Answer: Part of the applicable section of the Michigan Vehicle Code, which took effect Jan. 1, 1973, reads: "The secretary of state may issue personalized automobile registration plates which shall be used on the passenger motor vehicles for which the plates are issued in lieu of standard passenger plates. Personalized registration plates may not be issued for vehicles which weigh more than 10,000 pounds. The personalized plates shall bear litters and numbers as the secretary prescribes. The personalized plates shall be made of the same material as standard passenger plates. A set of personalized plates shall contain a combination of not more than 6 letters or numbers but they shall have at least 2 letters. A set of personalized plates shall not be a duplication of another set of personalized plates or standard plates. The secretary shall not issue a letter combination which might carry a connotation offensive to good taste and decency. A set of personalized plates shall be issued upon making proper application before July 1 preceding the year which is to be stamped on the plates. Application shall be made on forms furnished by the secretary and accompanied with payment of a $25.00 service fee in addition to the regular vehicle registration fee...."

QUESTION: When I get personalized registration plates for my automobile, will I be able to get the same plates the next year that plates are printed? M.T.F., Shelby

Answer: To quote a section of that new law, effective Jan. 1, 1973, "...A combination of letters and numbers on a set of personalized plates which is issued shall not be given to a different person the next year unless the person to whom the plates were issued does not reapply before July 1 preceding the year which is to be stamped on the plates." In oddition, it would be a misdemeanor to use these personalized plates on any vehicle other than the one for which they were issued.

Clockwise

I'm Guilty, Too

By BOB CLOCK

I am aghast by President Nixon's hard-nosed insistence that Vietnam draft-dodgers and deserters must pay a criminal penalty for violating federal laws.

If the fellows who moved to Canada and Sweden to avoid taking part in that godawful blood-letting in Southeast Asia are guilty of desertion, then so am I and so are millions of other Americans who, years ago, began to question the morality of shedding American blood in a war that never once threatened the safety of the United States.

We were concerned even more over the wholesale slaughter of little Asiatics who had no more idea of what the war was about than most of us here at home.

Don't get me wrong. The fellows who went to Vietnam and fought and died in that steamy corner of the world probably should be numbered among the most selfless, heroic combatants in the history of warfare.

It is one thing to fight and die when your home and your family are threatened. It is quite another to lay down your life defending a foreign nation whose people and values have little in common with your own.

Truly, the men who gave so freely of themselves in Southeast Asia are a breed apart and will be so remembered in the history books.

However, more than anything else, it was the draft dodgers and the deserters, aided and abetted by peace marchers and Congressional doves, who underscored the futility of the war and brought this country around to its senses. The role they played in effecting a peace settlement must not be ignored.

If there had been no dissent at home, you can bet your draft card that the United States would still be at it hammer and tongs overseas, the present leadership being what it is. The economic fruits of a winner-take-all victory in Vietnam were too sweet to be forfeited, even at the cost of more American lives.

Yet President Nixon has chosen to turn his back on all the young men who helped end the most dehumanizing war in our history by refusing to take part in it.

"I have sympathy with any individual who made a mistake," President Nixon intoned at a news conference last Wednesday. "We all make mistakes. But certainly we have to pay for our mistakes. Those who deserted must pay the price. And that price is a criminal penalty for disobeying the laws of the United States."

The president admitted that the war had little support among the "better people" in the media, whoever they are, as well as in intellectual circles and among some members of Congress.

"But it did have the support of a wide majority of Americans – people who were hammered day after day that this was an immoral war, that we should not be there, that they should not serve their country, that morally what they should do was desert their country."

President Nixon would like us to believe that our present crop of draft-board exiles are cringing cowards who skipped across the border so they wouldn't have to get roughed up in Vietnam.

Nothing, of course, could be further from the truth.

I can think of no act that takes more courage than to separate oneself from family, friends and country – perhaps forever – for the sake of principle alone.

From another point of view, perhaps it should be our national leaders – the presidents, the Congressional hawks, the Pentagon brass and the warlords of the military-industrial complex - who should stand trial for desertion – desertion from everything this country has held dear for 200 years.

Remember when we used to tell each other: "Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes" and "Walk softly, but carry a big stick."

When I was a kid we took pride in the fact that Americans never fired the first shot. Yet we have just ended 11 years of fighting in Vietnam and never once, during all that time, was the United States even remotely threatened with attack.

Despite my anti-war views and President Nixon's hard line on amnesty, I don't feel like a deserter. But I do feel that my country deserted me for many long years.

"With malice toward none, with charity to all..." Those words were spoken by President Lincoln in his Second Inaugural Address in the closing days of the Civil War. Needless to say, they were directed not at his own loyal supporters in the Union, but to the rebellious armies of the South who had struggled almost four years to establish a separate nation.

President Nixon, fortunately, is made of sterner stuff. He'll clamp the custodians of the nation's conscience in jail if they so much as set foot on their native soil.

Four Little Words

By JIM FITZGERALD

The original thought, I guess, was that Chris couldn't eat words but, what the heck, she never eats anything else for breakfast, either.

So she gets words. In notes.

It all began with two-shift school, last September. Daughter Chris, a hippie-haired junior, is on the morning shift. Her first class is at 7 a.m. which means she must get up at 5 to allow time for combing and dressing and groaning in front of the mirror. It takes time to try on 1,345 outfits and then head for classes in overalls, dirty shoes, sweat shirt and a sleeveless sweater that would have been tight on her 5 years ago. (The layered look makes hand-me-downs look fashionable.)

It was decided there was no sense in her mother getting up that early, too, just to fry eggs Chris wouldn't eat. Chris would fix her own breakfast, just so long as it could be cooked with mirrors and eaten with a comb.

Immediately, Mother felt guilty about not getting up to see her chick off to school. To salve her conscience, she began leaving notes for Chris to find on the kitchen table every morning. These notes contain such heart-warming messages as: "Take your vitamin pills. Don't take the car. Eat some Instant Breakfast. Have a good day – Mother."

Because I am a cumpulsive smart aleck, I can never resist adding a P.S. to the notes. Such things as "Your boyfriend phoned and said to tell you he won't see you in school tomorrow because he'll be busy getting married – Columbo."

(My name at home is Columbo because I always solve the TV mysteries before the 1st commercial and loudly tell everyone in the block who committed the murder. I am always right and I always brag about it insufferably. Chris doesn't think I'm smart. She named me Columbo because I wear a dirty raincoat.)

The notes became an overnight tradition. Chris writes crisp answers for Mother and Dad to read with their breakfast. Such cheerful things as "I won't be home after school. I'm going shopping. I took the charge-a-plate. You may never see me again – Chris."

Entering the 4th month of note writing, I began to have trouble thinking of something to write. At 1 o'clock in the morning, there I'd be, a professional writer, agonizing at the kitchen table, wondering what to write to my daughter. I couldn't go to bed without writing something, because Chris expected to hear from me. She would wake me up at 5 a.m. and demand to know why I hadn't written.

One night recently the writing well was unusually dry. I finally scrawled 4 quick words and let it go at that. The next morning, there was no answer from Chris. She usually writes on the back of the note from her Mother and me. But our note was gone.

Chris explained at dinner. She had taken the note to make sure it wasn't lost. She wanted to keep it because she was so pleased at what I'd written. My 4 words were:

"I love you – Columbo."

"You don't say that enough," she said.

Hmmm. If you'll excuse Columbo some philosophy, I'd say the whole world doesn't say that enough.

Write someone a love note today.

Ask the Governor

By Gov. William Milliken

Question: I read that you issued some ethics for state employees. What is it and what does it do?

Governor: In a democracy, every citizen is entitled to have complete confidence in the integrity of his government. That means that state employes and appointed officials must be independent, impartial and responsible to the people.

Public employment and public service should attract the most capable men and women, drawing on their strengths, and yet not demanding that they sacrifice all personal individuality at the very time when society places such a premium on the rights of the individual.

The Code of Ethics I recently issued containes guidelines for more than 55,000 state employes and appointees regarding conflict of interest, including such areas as handling confidential information, accepting gifts, representing private interests and holding supplementary employment. I will also appoint a five-member board of Ethics which will oversee implementation of the Code.

I believe that this Code of Ethics is a major step furward in bridging the gap of confidence between government and the people it serves.

Question: I am a farmer, and I hear that you recently signed some legislation that will help us in marketing our produce. Could you explain it?

Governor: The Farm Marketing bill I signed last month carries the potential for benefiting both the grower and the consumer of Michigan produce. That piece of legislation authorizes the establishment of agricultural bargaining associations for fruit and vegetable growers which can bargain with producers and canners over prices, giving farmers a stronger position in the market place. It received the strong support of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the Michigan Farm Bureau, the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association, the United Auto Workers, and the Michigan Agricultural Commission.

While there are some questions which may have to be resolved, later, I am hopeful that the formation of these associations will have a strong, positive impact on agriculture in Michigan.

Question: It's already February and I still have not received my Michigan Personal Income Tax forms in the mail. When can I expect them to come?

Governor: As last year, Michigan Income Tax forms are not being mailed out to individuals this year, but they are available at Post Offices, banks, and any branch office of the State Treasury Department throughout Michigan. The filing deadline for returns is April 15, 1973. Citizens in the Charlevoix area who have questions or need assistance in completing the forms can receive help free of charge at the Treasury Department branch office in Traverse City.

Question: For years and years, politicians have been talking about the need to reduce crime, but it still continues. What exactly is being done to keep our streets and homes safe?

Governor: The battle to reduce crime in Michigan has been a long and difficult one, but I believe we have made significant strides in the last several years in strengthening enforcement agencies at both state and local level in Michigan. The Michigan State Police are today working closer than ever with local law enforcement agencies in solving virtually all types of crimes, and the $52,020,000 allocated to the State Police for fiscal year 1972-73 represents a 110 percent increase over the allocation of five years ago. During the past two years, State Police crime labs have been expanded, a new lab has begun operations in Holland, and more than 200 additional enforcement personnel have been added. Additinnally, Michigan has received more than $56 million in federal funds since 1969 under the provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act. These federal dollars, administered by the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice Programs, have been awarded for more than 800 anti-crime projects throughout Michigan – projects that eventually benefit every citizen in the state.

2 Council Contests On Ballot Monday

Charlevoix voters will go to the polls Monday, Feb. 19, in the annual city primary to elect a mayor, city clerk, city treasurer and three aldermen.

All of the candidates are running as Republicans, meaning that the general election in April will merely rubber-stamp the candidates elected Monday.

Edward P. Hansen is unopposed for mayor, as are City Clerk Ida Heise and City Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham.

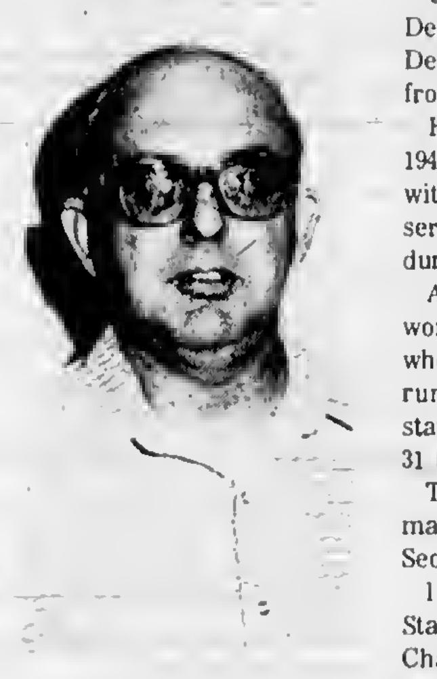
In the First Ward, Alderman Richard Fochtman is unopposed, but races have developed in the Second and Third wards.

Seeking to replace retiring Alderman Robert Gill in the Second Ward will be Mrs. Jeannine (Lawrence) Wallace and H. Wayne Carter.

Seeking a vacancy in the Third Ward created by the retirement of Alderman Clifton (Kip) Sundberg are Condit Drury, George W. Plumm and David Novotny.

Following are brief biographical sketches on all of the council candidates, including in some cases their views on how city government can be improved.

First Ward



RICHARD FOCHTMAN

Richard Fochtman is running unopposed for First Ward alderman.

Fochtman, 48, was born in Petoskey Aug. 22, 1924, and moved to Charlevoix with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Angus Fochtman, in 1929.

He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1942 and was with the Army Air Corps for 33 months during World War II.

After studying business administration two years at Michigan State University, he returned to Charlevoix to join the family business, the Charlevoix Oil Co., where he has been ever since.

He was married Oct. 8, 1949 to the former Bonnie Sutton. They have four sons, Rick, 22, a student at Michigan Tech; Gerald, 21, a student at Western Michigan University; and David, 19, and Mike, 16, at home.

Fochtman joined the council last fall following the retirement of First Ward alderman Roger Westenbrock.

He is a member and past president of the Charlevoix Lions Club, a member and founder of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, a member of past master of Charlevoix Lodge 282, F&AM, and has served on the board of directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Development Corp.

Second Ward

H. WAYNE CARTER

H. Wayne Carter, 214 Park-ave., is a candidate for Second Ward alderman.

Carter, 42, was born in Detroit May 22, 1930, attended Detroit schools and graduated from Cooley High School.

He entered the service in 1949 following a brief stint with the Ford Motor Co., serving overseas in Korea during the Korean War.

After his discharge he worked for Ford until 1955 when he moved to Petoskey to run the Standard service station at the junction of U.S. 31 and U.S. 131.

The same year he was married to the former Leola Scott of Charlevoix.

In 1962, Carter became Standard oil distributor for the Charlevoix area and the family moved to Charlevoix to make their home.

For the past two and one-half years he has been an independent distributor for Mobil products.

The Carters have two daughters, Kim, 15, and Karen, 14; and two sons, Guy, 12; and David, 11.

Carter attends the Methodist Church and is a member of the American Legion and the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

The upcoming council race marks Carter's first bid for public office. He is concerned over what he believes to be excessive increases in city taxes in recent years.

JEANNINE WALLACE

Mrs. Jeannine (Lawrence) Wallace, 301 Clinton-st., is a candidate for Second Ward alderman.

Mrs. Wallace was born in Grand Rapids Feb. 1, 1932, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Loop who now make their home in Charlevoix.

She graduated from Grand Rapids' South High School and studied education for three years at Michigan State University.

As a girl, Mrs. Wallace spent every summer at the family cottage at Oyster Bay. She moved to Charlevoix as a full-time resident in the early 1950's.

She was married in 1962 at Hidden Brook to Lawrence (Larry) Wallace, a beverage systems distributor. They have two daughters, Maurine, 17, and Rebecca, 4.

In 1964, Mrs. Wallace opened a gift shop called The Shop of the Gulls in the Weathervane Inn. For the past several seasons the business has operated out of a building she and her husband have purchased at 207 Bridge-st.

She is a member of the Congregational Church and presently is serving on the board of directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. She also has served as secretary of the Community Chest.

If elected, Mrs. Wallace plans to be at the City Hall one-half hour before each council meeting to meet with her constituents and hear their problems.

Third Ward

CONDIT DRURY

Condit Drury, 501 Meadowlane, is a candidate for Third Ward Alderman.

Drury, 38, was born in Harrodsberg, Ky., Feb. 15, 1935, and received his masters degree in education and certification in guidance and counseling from Michigan State University in 1970.

A veteran of two years in the Army in Europe, he worked in quality control with Anaconda Wire and Cable Co. in Sycamore, Ill., for eight years and taught school in Charlestown, Ind., before moving to Charlevoix nine years ago.

He presently is counselor at the Middle School. He also is the basketball coach for the Seventh and Eighth grades.

He was married in 1960 in Sycamore, Ill., to the former Elaine Nachtigall. They have four children, Jeffrey, Gary, Paun and Danny.

In addition to his work in education, Drury is a licensed residential builder.

The Drurys belong to the Congregational Church and Mrs. Drury is a Charlevoix Cub Scout leader.

GEORGE W. PLUMM

George W. Plumm, 98 Eaton-st., is a candidate for Third Ward alderman.

Plumm, 46, was born in Bellaire Dec. 6, 1926, and moved with his parents to Charlevoix in 1931. He attended Charlevoix schools until the 11th grade when the family moved to Brimley in the Upper Peninsula. Plumm graduated from Brimley High School in 1944.

After 18 months as an army MP, Plumm returned to Charlevoix where he was married to the former Maxine McKenzie in 1946. They have two children, Mrs. Fred (Jane) Wabinimkee and Patrick, 16.

Plumm worked for the late I.T. Quarnstrom until Mr. Quarnstrom's death in 1966. Since then he has been employed by the Quarnstrom family as manager of the Water's Edge resort.

He is a member of St. Marys Church and the Charlevoix American Legion Post.

Plumm, who traveled much of the time he was with Mr. Quarnstrom, feels it is time for him to "get involved in local politics." If elected, he doesn't envision any "drastic changes" in the present city government, although he would like to hold the line on any further increases in city taxes.

DAVID NOVOTNY

David Novotny, 405 May-st., is a candidate for alderman in the Third Ward.

Born in Charlevoix Nov. 8, 1945, he is the son of the late Mr. Jeff Novotny and Mrs. Edith Chamberlain.

IRS Ready To Assist

The Internal Revenue Service reminded Charlevoix area taxpayers that they can obtain assistance with their 1972 Federal income tax returns at the IRS office in Petoskey Monday, Friday and Saturday each week.

THE FIRST bonafide French sign of appear in Charlevoix is in front of Leutheuser's Restaurant on Bridge-st. The sign advertises the art gallery owned by Mrs. Rene Leutheuser above the restaurant. The Chamber of Commerce is promoting a French motif for the entire business district.

Board Grants Waivers

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix City Council Monday night in session as the Board of Review:

--Waived the 25-foot rear yard restriction to seven feet so that Peter Gaskin can construct a storage building for a compressor at his gas station, providing the council agrees to separate Gaskins' property from the rear portion owned by Phil Martin. Gaskins purchased the property from Martin before the land was formally split.

--Took under advisement a request by Jack Stevens, representing Texaco, for erection of a 53-square-foot Texaco sign on South Bridge-st. A city ordinance limits the size of such signs to 36 square feet.

--Waived scenic reserve restrictions at the rear of Leutheuser's restaurant at 218 Bridge-st. so that Heinz Leutheuser can proceed with proposed remodeling, including construction of a second dining room.

--Waived restrictions governing the connecting of an addition to a trailer home owned by Howard Harriman at 403 W. Robinson-st.

--Gave Brian Seymour the go-ahead to construct a patio-deck at his home at 106 Auld-st.

--Granted, a one-foot side yard waiver to Lyle King of Meech-st.

--Waived scenic reserve restrictions permitting an addition to a building owned by Earl Young at 224 Bridge-st., occupied by the Charlevoix Agency.

--Waived from 25 feet to 17 feet a front yard restriction on Community Reformed Church property on Elm-st. The church plans construction of a 50-foot by 50-foot educational unit at the north of the present building.

Ruppe Due Here Friday

Congressman Philip Ruppe will hold office hours in Antrim and Charlevoix Counties on Friday, Feb. 16.

Office hours are scheduled from 9:30 to 11 a.m. in the Antrim County Court House and from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in the Charlevoix County Building.

All citizens who wish to discuss personal problems relating to the federal government or national legislative issues are invited to visit privately with Congressman Ruppe.

No appointments are necessary.

CHS Building Plans to Cost $2.2 Million

The Board of Education Monday night set in motion plans to finance a $2.2 million addition to the High School, remodeling of existing school buildings and acquisition a site for a future building.

The board told the architectural firm of Manson Jackson & Kane of Lansing to apply to the School Bond Loan Fund for the money.

Architect William J. H. Kane said the addition would add 50,400 square feet to the High School, which now covers 67,278 square feet.

Plans call for enclosing the breezeways, expanding the library and cafeteria, creation of a "student commons," construction of an auditorium, stage, additional room for music and speech activities (4 teaching stations), an addition on the west of "A" building housing a business education department, biology lab and special education classrooms, construction of a multi-purpose room the size of a basketball court south of the gym for physical education activities and locker rooms and an addition on the west of the industrial arts department to house a metal shop.

Renovation would convert the old Junior High study hall into an arts and crafts room, remodeling of the homemaking room, creation of offices for counselors, remodeling the present administrative offices and other changes.

The entire building would be carpeted.

The artitects came up with their plans after a long study of Charlevoix's present and future school needs.

In other business the board:

--Approved appointment of Marie Osterberg as volleyball coach for the 1973-74 school year; Dennis Carr, cross country; Barry Anderson, golf; Don Garey, football coach, assisted by Albert Shindorf, Norman Probert, David Moyer and Bruce Morgan.

--Heard a report by School Superintendent Robert Miller on school financing, including criticism of the Courier for not making a big thing out of the fact that the school district only levied 20 mills this year, instead of the authorized 22.69 mills, and reduced the debt retirement levy from 3.15 mills to 1.85 mills. (Because of a jump in valuations from $44.5 million to $5[illegible].5, the lower millage rates still yielded a healthy increase in local tax dollars for schools.) He said under the governor's latest tax plan, Charlevoix would still need an extra two mills for operation next year, plus a marked increase in debt retirement.

--Approved the appointment of Clement J Wagner to represent the board at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District budget meeting, set for 8:30 p.m. Feb. 26, at the Education Service Center on Mercer-blvd.

--Approved the idea of hiring a full-time recreation director for the city.

--Rescheduled the in-service training day for teachers from Monday, March 19, to Monday, March 26.

--OK'd the reassignment of Carolyn Fhaner from Third Grade to First Grade. The Third Grade vacancy will be posted.

The board will meet Feb. 26 to discuss evaluations, the new budget, the building program and the upcoming school election.

Charlevoix Twp. Asks City for Power, Water

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud asked the City Council Monday night to take whatever action is necessary to city electric and water services to the township.

He said that the township's contract with REA has expired and most residents are anxious to be served by the city because of "better rates and better service."

Stroud pointed out that the city already sells electric power to about 80 percent of the township's residents and businesses.

He said water service is needed in that portion of the township lying south of the city.

The township recently sank two wells in the northern portion of the township and expects to be supplying water to that area this summer.

The council took both of Stroud's requests under advisement and suggested a joint meeting with the township board in the near future.

In other business, the council:

--Heard a report by Alderman Sam Supernaw that the city has offered Mrs. Mildred Campbell $3,000 cash for her Pine River Lane frontage, to be used as a scenic reserve. An alternative

1930's Movie Recalls Early Marijuana Scare

One of the most unusual movies ever to come to Charlevoix will be shown at the Palace Theater this Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, according to Thomas Merta, co-owner.

The film is a classic of the 1930's entitled variously "Reefer Madness" or "The Burning Question."

Merta says the movie, which is an exaggerated overview of the world of the marijuana addict, was shown before Congress and was largely responsible for the enactment of stringent anti-drug laws still on the books in many states today.

Theater owners showing the film in 1973 have been armed with copies of the original advertising material, along with suggestions on how to promote the movie as a weapon in the war against drug abuse.

In a note to "Mr. Showman," the producers suggested that the impressarios "get the town to go the limit for you, because in 'The Burning Question' you have an attraction which will do more good towards stamping out the use of marijuana than any other medium yet offered Scholarly lectures are good -- and necessary; a totaling up of police figures is good – but impersonal In 'The Burning Question' you bring your story direct to your people through the easiest of all mediums – the screen; and it is done in such a way that everyone who sees it will realize his or her own personal contact with such situations."

Whole communities were urged to talk-up the film in order to draw attention to the problem of drug abuse.

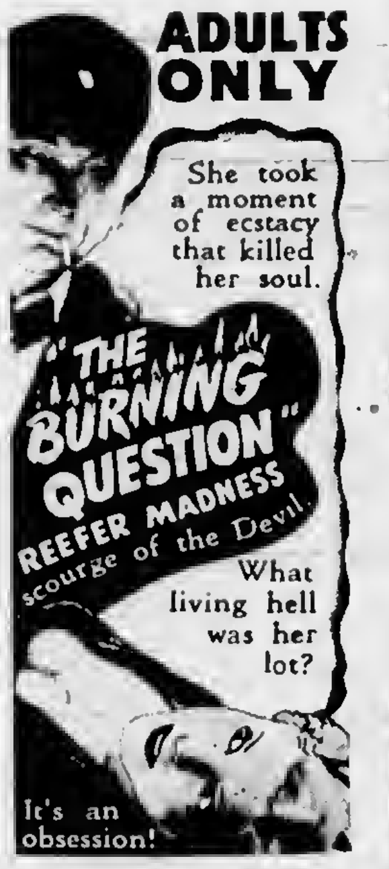
Although more than 30 years have slipped by since the movie was made, problems involving marijuana and the enforcement of marijuana laws are still with us, Merta notes

However, he suspects that many theater goers today will be surprised, even amused, at the hysterical tone of "The Burning Question" or "Reefer Madness," which is based largely on the premise that one marijuana cigarette will hook the user for life.

Merta says the ancient black and white movie has been drawing standing-room-only crowds in Chicago, Detroit and elsewhere.

Whether the viewer accepts the moral of the movie, or laughs at it, the film certainly has a place in the ranks of social documentaries.

Because of the second feature on the double-bill, a howling rock festival flick entitled "Stamping Ground," only adults will be admitted to the evening shows this weekend, Merta said.



THIS is a sample of the advertising used to promote "Reefer Madness" more than 30 years ago.

Davis Seeks Hike In Swamp Tax

State Sen Robert W Davis R-37th District introduced a bill to double state reimbursement to counties in lieu of taxes on tax-reverted recreation and forest lands and to establish a new distribution formula for the funds to schools, counties and townships.

Passage of this bill would increase payments to schools and would mean additional payments of $720,000 which would be split between counties and townships in the Upper Peninsula and the portion of the Lower Peninsula north of Muskegon-Bay City line for state payments on an estimated 3,600,000 acres of tax-reverted land, which has been known popularly as 'swampland,'" said Senator Davis.

"The bill I have introduced would change the name of these lands from 'swamplands' to tax-reverted recreation and forest lands.'"

I have been able to negotiate an agreement with Governor William G. Milliken and am pleased to announce that the Governor has pledged to back the measure."

Sen Davis looks for support from the Michigan Association of Counties, the Michigan Townships Association and the State Department of Natural Resources.

"The State now pays 20 cents an acre which is a long way from the ad valorem rate we should be paying," said Davis.

"The bill I have introduced would double this rate from 20 cents to 40 cents an acre and distribute it on the basis of 20 cents to the schools and 10 cents each to counties and townships."

Young Tom Edisons Put Electric Power to Work

If Charlevoix merchants are running short of dry cells, batteries and bell wire, you can blame the Fourth Grade teachers at the Elementary School.

The youngsters just completed a unit on electricity which culminated in an electrical science exhibit in the materials center.

The displays, all electrically operated and built by the young Tom Edisons themselves, included electric question and answer games (a light glows if you pick the correct answer), model electric utility systems, complete with miniature utility poles, telegraph keys, bells, buzzers, electro magnets of all kinds.

There was even a lighthouse, with an electric light bulb on the top.

Yesterday

If Earth's total age, now estimated by geophysicists at about 4.5 billion years, is taken as a single 24-hour day, today's ocean basins are scarcely an hour old. By the same measure, the cave dwellers were hunting their prey less than a second ago, the past 500 years is but a hundredth of a second, and a 50-year working life is only one thousandth of a second.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing will be held before the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, on Monday, February 26, 1973 at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chamber in the City Hall in said City to determine whether or not the City of Charlevoix should demolish the building located on a part of the following described premises, commonly known as "The Colonial Inn Property", Meech Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, owned by Hal A. Forbrig, of Route No. 2, Charlevoix, Michigan.

"In the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, Beginning at a point on the North line of Dixon Avenue 146 feet East of the East line of Prospect Street; thence North 351 feet; thence West 4 feet; thence North 5 feet; thence East parallel to the North line of Dixon Avenue to the West line of Meech Street; thence South along the West line of Meech Street to the North line of Dixon Avenue; thence West on the North line of Dixon Avenue to the place of beginning; being a part of Block 1 of Lindsay Park Addition to the City of Charlevoix and a part of Government Lot 2, Section 26, Township 34 North, Range 8 West, containing 1.21 acres, more or less."

I believe the Charlevoix City Council has an obligation to hold the line on further city tax increases. In recent years city taxes have doubled, without any noticeable increase in services.

I believe the City of Charlevoix is badly in need of strong, cost-conscious leadership in order to insure the kind of growth and prosperity we can afford.

Matmen Shut Out Glen Lake

Charlevoix wrestlers defeated Glen Lake 66 to 0 Wednesday, the first shut-out in the coaching career of mentor Norm Probert.

"I was amazed at how well we did, considering that the last time we met in December, Glen Lake was ahead 28-25 going into our last two matches," Probert said.

However, Charlevoix managed to pull that one out of the fire.

Matmen Pat Whitley won the title of "most outstanding wrestler of the week" among Charlevoix wrestlers, defeating Tom Sutherland in a 6-2 decision.

Charlevoix was aided in the shutout with five forfeits, compared to four the last time Charlevoix met Glen Lake.

Butch Klooster won over Tom Sutherland's brother Paul, with a pin. Pat Lanse, with a record of 21-0 had a rough match, but managed to win over Jack Sage who had pinned every one of his opponents before losing to Lanse.

Charlevoix will meet Rogers City in Charlevoix Thursday, Feb 15, starting at 6:30 p.m. Rogers City won its first match with Charlevoix, 43-9, however, with the improvement shown by the Charlevoix team Coach Probert thinks his boys will give the Hurons a good battle.

Frosh Place 4th In T.C.

Freshmen wrestlers placed fourth in a four-way tournament at Traverse City Saturday, although Terry Drew and Ron Smith took second place honors.

The final tally showed Traverse City with 106.5 points, Cadillac with 86, Petoskey with 69 and Charlevoix with 29.5.

Winning third place ribbons were Brian Warner, Dane Whitley, Chris Wimmer and Ron Shapton. Tim DeYoung was Charlevoix's lone fourth place holder.

As the smallest school in the four-team tournament, Charlevoix has only seven wrestlers competing by weight class, according to Coach Norm Probert, and was forced to forfeit 5 classes to the larger A and B schools.

Probert says the situation might have been different if more Freshmen turned out for wrestling.

In the 126-pound weight class, Ron Smith won a 14-10 decision over Petoskey's Steve Joyce.

Ron Shapton won the silver award for his fastest pin over Ed Green of Cadillac.

Vets Reminded of Dividend

Veterans of World War II are reminded that Congress has passed a bill which entitled them to a dividend of 50 cents per thousand of their GI life insurance for each month they were in service, whether or not they still carry the insurance.

Many veterans reportedly have not received the money due them and must apply.

To find out if you are eligible, write to the Veterans Administration Center, Fort Snelling, St Paul, Minn 55111.

Include your name, address, city and state, GI insurance policy number (if known), branch of service, serial number, date of birth and dates of enlistment, induction and discharge.

The Veterans Administration urges all World War II vets to apply for this benefit.

COMMON COUNCIL

COMMON COUNCIL January 29, 1973 8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Timms, Fochtman, Gill, and Selph. Absent: Aldermen Supernaw and Sundberg.

The minutes of the January 22, 1973 Special Meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mrs. Mildred Campbell appeared before Council regarding her offer of property on the south side of River Street, asking Council to reconsider and make her an offer. The matter was put into Committee for further study and evaluation. The Committee was requested to contact her after their meeting. Council will act on it formally at the next Council meeting.

Correspondence was read from the Ellsworth Community School requesting Council attendance at Government Day, February 12, 1973 to be held in the East Jordan High School. The Mayor plans to attend.

Enter Alderman Sundberg.

A motion was made by Alderman Selph and supported by Alderman Timms to allow snowmobiles on the City streets, except that portion of Bridge Street, between Park Avenue and Hurlbut, between the hours of 12:30 and 5:00 p.m., during the Lion's Winter Fun Day on February 25, 1973. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Timms, Fochtman, Gill, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Fochtman:

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED that post-approval be given the City Treasurer of the re-investment of $100,000 for 180 days at 5½ percent as follows: $91,000 for the Electric Fund and $9,000 for the Water Fund. Invested Jan. 18, 1973.

The resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Timms, Fochtman, Gill, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

The following Resolution was offered by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg:

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED that post-approval be given the City Treasurer of the reinvestment of $42,000 for 90 days at 5 percent for the Electric Fund on January 18, 1973. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Timms, Fochtman, Gill, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

Correspondence was read from The Dept. of Commerce, Dept. of Aeronautics regarding 1975 Airport Development Aid Program. The Administrator was requested to set up a meeting with the Dept. of Aeronautics and the F.A.A. to meet with the Committee.

Attorney Hoffman explained that the publication for Public Hearing to be held March 5, 1973 to consider the Proposed Zoning Ordinance and the Map and Master Plan as prepared by Williams and Works must be published next week and that copies of the Proposed Ordinance must be made available to the public. He was instructed to start the publications.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gaskin appeared to inquire what Council plans to do with the request of Phil Martin to split Lot 57 of Mason's Addition which has been referred to the Planning Commission. John Haggard spoke for the Planning Commission, stating they had rejected the division of the property because they prefer to see it stay as one piece. It is their hope that through legal council the interested parties can solve the problem without a division. Council advised Mr. Gaskin to seek legal advice and then return at a future date, if necessary.

Alderman Fochtman asked the Ordinance Committee to meet January 31, 1973 at 7:30 p.m. to review the Residential Section of The Proposed Zoning Ordinance as presented by Williams and Works.

Attorney Hoffman reported on zoning classification advising that some ordinances have been treated as motions and not given numbers as is the usual procedure. He was requested to prepare a Resolution to correct the errors and present it at the next meeting, February 12, 1973.

Mr. William Stokes appeared to request permission from the City to move the house and garage from 103 W. Dixon to Carson Avenue. He requested to move the garage immediately and the house in the very near future. Council asked for more time to review the house and move since it involves Cable TV, Electric, State, Township and County.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $165,751.74 find them correct and recommend that they be allowed. Motion was made by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for same. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Timms, Fochtman, Gill, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

Moved by Alderman Fochtman and supported by Alderman Selph that the meeting adjourn.

CHARLEVOIX'S Dale Boss sinks basket at game with Petoskey Friday night. Boss scored 8 points on 3 field goals and 2 free throws. Petoskey won 73 to 49. Northman with back to camera is Petoskey's Robin Hill (42).

JV Cagers Lose To Petoskey, Rams

Like their big brothers, the JV's dropped two games last week, falling to Harbor Springs 71 to 45 and to Petoskey 43 to 36.

Quarter scores in the Harbor Game were 22-12, 31-20, 51-30 and 71-47, with the Rams leading all the way.

Scoring honors for Charlevoix were shared by Dan Greene and Mike Streeter, both of whom scored 12 points on 4 field goals and 4 free throws.

Also scoring were Kevin Martin, 10 (4 and 2); Ron Kewagshken, 5 (2 and 1); Chuck Faust, 4 (1 and 2); Jim Donaldson and Dave Martinchek, 2 each on field goals.

In double-figures for Harbor Springs were Clare, 21; Manville, 17; Tippett, 15; Morse, 10; Linehan, 6; and Rhine, 2.

The JV's trailed by only one point at the end of the first half against Petoskey, 10-9, and at the half the score was tied, 15-all.

However, the JV Northmen staged a scoring spree in the third period, chalking up 20 points to Charlevoix's 8, for a third quarter score of 35-23.

No Limit on Beaver Again This Year

For the second consecutive year trappers in most of the northern Lower Peninsula will be permitted to take beaver without regard to bag limits.

Department of Natural Resources biologists say that the experimental removal of the bag limit last year did not result in exploitation of the beaver population. Although as many as 58 beaver were taken by a single trapper last season, the average catch was only two or three per trapper and the overall population of beaver is still at a good level in the region.

The total take of beaver in the region last year was 2,716 which was near the average of the preceding five years.

Trappers will be allowed to take on otter. They also may take up to five muskrats caught in beaver sets.

The season will open as early as March 1 in parts of the northern Lower Peninsula and extend as late as April 15 in one area.

OUR OWN THOUGHTS

St. Marys Youngsters Tackle Creative Writing

Creative writing has been added to the curriculum at St. Marys School for fifth and sixth graders.

The course is being taught for one and one-half hours each morning by Mrs. James Driggett of Charlevoix.

As their first project, the youngsters tackled poetry, with emphasis on imaginative language.

The childen are now writing short stories.

Following are two samples of their poetry.

THE CLOCK
By Bob Newton

We have a clock,
It goes tick-tock
And wouldn't you know,
It's five minutes slow.

It has a long cord,
We plug in a board,
By the floor,
Near the foor

It has a name on the back,
That says Max Novak
This school clock,
That goes tick-tock.

SUMMERTIME
By Billy Trost

In the summertime you can run
And play in fields and have fun.
You can hide in the grass so tall
People cannot see you at all

Or run into the woods so green,
With all its beauties to be seen.

Or just skip down a road
To see a bird or catch a toad,
Some of the joys of summer.

'But Where Will They Park All Those Cars?'

Plans announced last week by K. R. Peterson of Petoskey for remodeling the K & A Dodge Building into 11 shops and offices have been welcomed with enthusiasm around town.

The attractive exterior of the shopping arcade, which will include a new food market to be managed by Robert Neff, certainly will be an welcome addition to the 400 Block of Bridge-st., which has more or less stood still while refurbishing took place elsewhere in the downtown section.

With the Chicken Roost and Boggs Pastry Shop relocated in Bill Kusina's building at the corner of Antrim and Bridge-st., the whole block should soon be humming with activity.

The only criticism of the plan we have heard has to do with parking.

"Where are the customers for 11 shops and offices going to park their cars?"

It's a good question concerning, a pressing problem --- one that deserves immediate action by Charlevoix merchants and City Fathers.

For years, downtown merchants have worried privately about the possibility of sprawling shopping centers opening up on either the north or south outskirts of the city. Such centers, if they come to pass, could take away just enough trade to make a number of our downtown businesses unprofitable -- or marginal --- at best.

Downtown businessmen also have been concerned that the state Highway Department might some day decide to ban parking on Bridge-st., a move that would take away more than 80 parking spaces in one fell swoop.

Last fall, a number of businessmen put their heads together to discuss the parking problem and the possibility of establishing a parking authority to create more auto spaces in the downtown section.

There also has been talk around the council table about a special assessment district among downtown merchants to buy up available land in the valley for parking.

But the time for talking has past.

Charlevoix needs more parking spaces today. And it will need them desperately by next summer.

We have little doubt that the long-feared suburban shopping centers will soon be with us. But we also feel that downtown merchants will have a chance to remain competitive if they offer their customers places to park within easy walking distance of their shops.

The providing of more parking spaces certainly should be high on the city's list of priorities.

There's Lots of Skiing Ahead for True Believers

With February half over, we don't know whether we should "Think Snow" or start thinking sunshine and flowers.

The miracle of this off-again, on-again winter is that two of our major ski resorts --- Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highlands --- have been able to offer better than average skiing almost without interruption since they first cranked up the tows in early December.

Many downstate skiers looking out their windows at winter-brown lawns simply can't believe that skiing has seldom been better in north-western Michigan.

Sometimes it's even hard for us localites to believe, viewing the skanty snow covering on our own back forties.

We forget that the major ski areas can and do manufacture their own snow --- huge quantities of it --- whenever the temperature dips into the 20's.

Although we're tempted to wish winter away, we won't. There's still plenty of beautiful spring skiing ahead for the true believers.

Catholic Leaders Rap Decision on Abortion

The Michigan Catholic Conference Board of Directors today released the following statement on the U.S. Supreme Court Decision on Abortion:

"As Christians, we hold that human life comes from God. He is the Lord of life from its very beginning. Life is a continuum from conception to death. The directly intended termination of life by the hand of man is an immoral act whether it occurs in the earliest months of pregnancy or at any other time.

"The Blackmun Decision of the United States Supreme Court invalidating the abortion statutes of Texas and Georgia and this setting a precedent for the invalidation of abortion laws around the country does nothing to alter the essential fact which is at the heart of this controversial issue; that is, abortion at whatever time is occurs takes a human life.

"As religious leaders in the Community of Michigan, we can never abdicate our responsibility of proclaiming what God requires of all men: that they love and respect and safeguard human life. As citizens, we have a commensurate obligation to speak against injustice done to fellow citizens whether born or unborn.

"At this time in the history of our country, what are the obligations of individuals in the light of this decision of the Supreme Court?

"...It is obvious to us that we must invoke a higher law than the one interpreted by the Supreme Court. Abortion, which is the taking of human life, is an act against the Law of God and cannot be condoned.

...Clearly, as Christians, we must speak whenever possible against permissive abortion and work to create a climate in which the sacredness of human life will be respected.

...Finally, each of us must renew our faith in the message of Christ – the risen Christ – who, by His birth and death, confirmed the inestimable worth of all human life.

"Michigan voters overwhelmingly confirmed their belief in the sacredness of life by turning down abortion-on-demand in November of 1972. That strong belief in life can be our strength and our hope for the future. While the Court has made abortion legal, no man can make it right."

Members of the MCC Board of Directors include: John Cardinal Dearden, Archbishop of Detroit; Bishop Charles A. Salatka of Marquette; Bishop Edmund C. Szoka of Gaylord; Bishop Joseph M. Breitenbeck of Grand Rapids; Bishop Francis F. Reh of Saginaw; Bishop Paul V. Donovan of Kalamazoo; Bishop Alexander M. Zaleski of Lansing; Mr. Michael R. Capo of Royal Oak; Mrs. Helen Casey of Midlnnd; Reverend Michael Danner of Grand Rapids; Mr. Kazimierz Olejarczyk of Dearborn; Sister Ardeth Platte, O. P., of Saginaw; Mr. Frank Vargas of Saginaw and Mr. Jean Worth of Escanaba.

Michigan's four Auxiliary Bishops, who include: Bishop Thomas J. Gumbleton of Detroit, Bishop Joseph McKinney of Grand Rapids, Bishop Walter J. Schoenherr of Detroit and Bishop James S. Sullivan of Lansing, also endorse this statement.

Questions & Answers On Zoning

(Following is the first installment of a series of questions and answers on county-wide zoning prepared by William Mercer of the County Planning Department. A referendum vote on county-wide planning is in the offering for later this year.)

Q. Does a zoning ordinance restrict me in any way from selling my property? D.A.C.

A. No. All a zoning ordinance does is require the property owner (whom ever that might be) to comply with a set of minimum restrictions as to use of the property and location and size of the building on the property.

Q. What does zoning cost the average taxpayer? S.T.

A. The costs of zoning include planning commission meeting time, legal notice publication expenses, administrative time, and occasional minor expenses (telephone calls, mailing costs, etc.). There is no millage set aside for zoning, and the majority of costs are covered by the fees collected as part of the program.

Q. I was told that a State Constitutional provision states that once the referendum petitions have been filed, the zoning program is stopped until an election is held. Is this true? L. A. W.

A. Our legal counsel (Prosecuting Attorney's Office) tells us that this is not the case, and that we should go on implementing the County Zoning Program. The Statute governing zoning (Act 183, P.A. 1943, as amended) supports this by stating, "Upon the filing of such petition (for referendum), such ordinance shall not be invalidated until the same (the ordinance) shall have been rejected by a majority of the voters residing in and owning property assessed for taxes located in that portion of the County outside the limits of incorporated cities and incorporated villges:..". Therefore, the Planning Department will go on implementing the Zoning Ordinance until the voters turn it down.

Clockwise
The Waltons

By BOB CLOCK

If you haven't met the Waltons, I hope you'll invite them into your home this Thursday night at 8 p.m. on Channel 9 (CBS)

The Waltons live somewhere in the South at a place called Walton's Mountain. There's mama and papa, grandma and grandpa and a houseful of Walton children including a handsome 17-year-old son named John-Boy who wants to become a writer.

In fact, the story line unfolds through the entries John-Boy makes in his journal every evening.

There have been plenty of family dramas on television over the years, but none of them, for our money, can hold a candle to The Waltons.

In the first place, it's not a comedy, although there is plenty to laugh at, or better, to smile about.

In the second place, The Waltons are a complete family. in so many of today's TV offerings, either the mother or the father has disappeared somewhere in the misty past and the remaining parents is faced with the responsibility of keeping the family together, all the while maintaining a healthy romantic interest in every member of the opposite sex who comes down the pike.

Thirdly, The Waltons don't have an English butler or a Japanese maid underfoot to do their bidding, as is the case in most of the contemporary family dramas.

Although the exact geographical location of Walton's Mountain has never been pinpointed the community could be any rural small town in the 1930's.

The Depression is in full swing and many of the dramatic episodes have to do with raising the necessary wherewithal to keep the wolf from the door and meet unexpected living expenses.

For example, in last week's installment, Grandpa Walton discovers that his forebears never had a clear title to the woodlands atop Walton's Mountain. A big lumber company strikes a claim on the property and is preparing to move in and cut off the timber. The Waltons need $200 in court fees and attorney fees to get title to land that has been in the family since the Revolution.

The oldest daughter sells a prized peuter teapot; John-Boy quits school and gets a job in Wheeling; papa, grandpa and the other boys rig up a sawmill in the backyard to make a few bucks sellling two-by-fours; mama and grandma do their best to scrimp and save in the kitchen.

And, by golly, they raise the money they need.

Sounds a little corn-ballish, doesn't it, in these days of court-appointed attorneys for the indigent and federal hand-outs of $1.60 an hour to keep young people from tearing out cities apart? But it's not. I remember families in Detroit during the Depression who had their telephones taken out and did without electricity just so they could keep up with their mortgage payments.

The Waltons keep a cow and a hen house full of chickens, meeting their own needs for milk, butter, chicken and eggs. They also sell butter and eggs when they have more than enough to go around.

My favorite room in the sprawling Walton house is the kitchen, where the family gathers three times a day for meals around a huge rectangular kitchen table. Mama and grandma cook on a big, black wood range, turning out vast quantities of oatmeal, mashed potatoes and fricassed chicken. Mama Walton keeps their cups filled from a white enameled coffee pot that has an honored place on the back burner.

Mama and Papa Walton have most of their heart-to-heart discussions at the same kitchen table before the kids are up in the morning or after they've gone to bed at night. And the big coffee pot never runs dry.

The Waltons certainly don't lead very flashy lives, but, then again, who did in the 1930's? Their main enjoyment is sitting on the front porch in the cool of a summer evening, watching the kids play in the front yard.

When things don't go well, the are apt to snap at each other, but for the most part they are loving, lovable people who cherish their elders as much as they do their children.

The 30's were a terrible time for many Americans, yet I think that families were closer then they are today when so many activities are centered outside the home.

If you remember the 30's, you'll enjoy meeting the Waltons. Even if you don't remember the 30's, there's a lot to be learned from The Waltons. The program is an authentic documentation of life in this country a generation ago, right down to the fringed lamp shades, the wooden screen doors that slam beautifully and the "Tire swing" in the front yard.

DPH for Everyone

By JIM FITZGERALD

Professional baseball, American League variety, is showing the rest of us how to live. What this world needs is more Designated Pinch Hitters (DPH).

There may be some of you who don't know what I'm talking about. Generally, it is hard for me to communicate with anyone who wouldn't faint at the sight of Hank Greenberg. But herewith is a quick explanation of DPH for all you opera lovers...

Historically, with the exception of guys like Red Ruffing and Freddy Hutchinson, pitchers have been lousy hitters. Which is really not as unbalanced as it might sound because it is just as historical that hitters are lousy pitchers. I remember once when outfielder Rocky Calovito tried pitching. He was so wild all people sitting within 50 yards of home plate were automatically placed on the endangered species list.

Of course, there are some hitters who not only can't pitch, they can't hit, either. They are generally called fielders when they are on defense. When they are at bat, they are called bums. DPH will have an effect on the lives of baseball players who can't hit because they are pitchers, and also upon the lives of players who can't hit because they are bums.

Another thing: DPH will also make a big change in the lives of players who can't pitch and can't field but can hit. There are a lot of these players. They are generally known as big bums except when they get a hit. The Detroit Tigers have a couple of these nonfielding hitters. One is Frank Howard who is so big that, during night games, the other players have to keep telling him not to stand in the light. Howard can hit a ball 52 miles but he can't hang onto a ball unless it is mailed to him in a box. The Tigers had planned to station Howard in deep centerfield this year, with the American flag tied to his head. But now they can use him as a DPH.

By now, DPH is probably clear to even those readers who never had beer dripped on them from the upper deck. The idea is that the pitcher, or maybe the slick-fielding bum, won't bat anymore.

Say the Tiger Pitcher is Mickey Lolich. Your sick grandmother on crutches can hit better than he can. So when it is Lolich's turn to go to the plate, he sits down instead. Frank Howard takes his place. (Unless your grandmother is available.) This goes on for the entire game but Lolich can keep pitching and Howard doesn't have to try to catch the ball unassisted by a mailman.

I probably should have pointed out earlier to you opera lovers that, under the old rules, Lolich could not have returned to the game after Howard batted for him the first time. He would have taken "an early shower" as clever sports announcers are often heard to say. Under DPH, Lolich will work longer between showers which may cut down on the number of conferences between Lolich and his catcher.

Also, before DPH, Howard could not bat for Lolich more than once unless he also played a defensive position, usually left field or 1st base depending on which way his manager wanted the field to tilt.

Now that you understand what a Designated Pinch Hitter is, you can certainly see how wonderful it would be if we all had one. I am a marvelous driver, for instance, but I am no good at changing license plates. My DPH would do it for me.

You might be good at reading the financial pages, but lousy at reading this type of nonsense. Your DPH could read it for you. I'd part his hair with participles.

HST Tossed Horseshoes On White House Lawn

The ancient art of horseshoe pitching has soared in popularity.

Once confined to barnyards and backyards, horseshoe courts now adorn countless playgrounds and recreation areas in the United States, the National Geographic Society says. From five to nine million players will aim for ringers this summer.

The 1972 World Horseshoe Tournament, July 29 to Aug. 8 in Greenville, Ohio, is expected to draw 500 top "pitchers" and thousands of spectators. Men, women, and children, ranging from 8 to 86, will compete.

The National Horseshoe Pitchers' Association of America, which sponsors the event, claims 5,000 members from every state in the Nation and seven Canadian provinces.

500 SHOES A NIGHT

"It's a tough, demanding competition," says NHPA's secretary-treasurer, Robert G. Pence. "Including warm-up throws, the leading pitchers can toss as many as 500 shoes a night – that's more than 1,000 pounds – and walk four to five miles. For a shot at the title, a man must get ringers on more than 80 percent of his throws."

Noboby yet has matched the legendary Ted Allen who once clanged 72 consecutive ringers in tournament play.

The horseshoes used in competition bear little resemblance to the ones worn by Old Dobbin.

"Anyone who showed up in Greenville and tried to use the real thing would probably be laughed out of the place," said an East Coast enthusiast.

Most pitchers prefer steel shoes weighing about 2½ pounds and measuring not more than 7 inches long. The opening between the tips or calks at the heel cannot exceed 3½ inches.

Players have been trying to throw ringers at least since Roman times. Legionnaries spread the game to England where it challenged quoits in popularity.

SMITHYS HELPED

English settlers brought both pastimes to the New World, but horseshoes won out. Horseshoe stakes soon sprouted outside almost every blacksmith shop in the colonies.

A disgruntled English general supposedly commented that the American War of Independence was won "on the village greens by pitchers of horseshoe hardware."

President Harry S Truman never forgot his state's traditional sport. He set up the first and only horseshoe court ever to grace the White House lawn.

Stumping the Woods
...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Unwritten zoning and building codes existed long before the alphabet-numeral controls which enjoy varying degrees of popularity today.

We impose a minimum of one acre to commute from, while Uncle Charlie required 40 acres to live on. Our present minimum of 1,200 sq. ft. of living area applied then to income producing livestock and the code demanded barn construction which would last for generations.

The first home was a temporary shelter limited in occupancy by a unique ruling -- build what can be paid for before the first child enters school. At the behest of the bankers this rule has been revised to read "before the first grandchild graduates."

Compliance with the early code required certain economies in construction. Three rooms were built on cedar posts over a crawl space. The vaulted ceiling was exposed spruce poles and rough hemlock lumber accented by knotholes. A section was floored as a sleeping loft for visiting youngsters. The chimney was a flanged metal sleeve on the roof into which the stovepipe was inserted.

Rough pine floors boasted hand-braided rugs. Tarpaper was the common exterior finish, and half dollar size tin discs and shingle nails were used to hold the paper in place. Thus the drab color was relieved by these silvery polka dots glistening in the sun.

Often the house was double sheathed, with sawdust between the walls for insulation. The single thickness of tarpaper sufficed for the ceiling. This meant sawing an extra ten cords of firewood but this was deemed a small price to pay for the healthful air circulation which, coupled with a steaming teakettle, accounts for the mint condition of the antique furniture we prize today.

Charlie's house was situated on a high knoll behind screening trees to the North, a bit off the road down which today's city dweller drives in search of a compact home built over a crawl space. It must have a cathedral ceiling of exposed beams and a sleeping loft. The chimney can be of metal and the roof is usually black.

The ultimate in simplicty on a one-acre "viewsite" is a bargain today at $35,000. Uncle Charlie's first home cost $300.

Later, when he moved into a new house, he was blissfully unaware that like many creative geniuses he was throwing out the baby with the bath-water. Michigan's first rustic chalet, became a tool shed.

JAMES BOGGS, proprietor of Boggs' Pastry Shop, gives visitor from the Charlevoix Nursery a bird's eye of his cake batter kettle. Nursery classes visited the pastry shop last Wednesday and Thursday with their teachers.

He is a Boy Scout committee member, has managed the Charlevoix Independent Basketball league for the past two seasons and has been active as a coach in Charlevoix's summer baseball and softball programs.

Novetny says he is running for the council because he is "interested in the future of Charlevoix."

If elected, he promises to work toward the adoption of a city charter.

"Most of our problems stem from the fact that we're still operating under the out-dated Fourth Class Cities Act," he says.

offer was the swap of a parcel of city land 104 feet square on Stover-rd. Mrs. Campbell has a buyer for the Pine River Channel property, but she offered it to the city for $11,600, for a scenic reserve.

Approved the appointment of Alderman Richard Fochtman to the Planning Commission succeeding Alderman Sam Supernaw, who has resigned because of the press of other business.

--Agreed to meet with Health Department officials and engineers from McNamee, Porter and Seeley at the City Hall next Monday night to discuss the city's future water needs.

--Gave William Stokes permission to move the former Dyksterhouse residence from W. Dixon-ave. to Carson-ave. in the township, providing Stokes posts a $2,500 deposit with the city to cover the moving of electric lines and added police services during the move. City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna expressed concern that moving of the two-story frame dwelling will necessitate considerable tree-trimming along the proposed route. The Dyksterhouse garage was moved to the new location Monday.

--Learned that Hanna and Fochtman will meet with state and federal aeronautics officials in Lansing Wednesday to discuss proposed improvements at the Charlevoix Airport.

--Paid bills totaling $114,570.91.

WMU Names Honorees

Five students from Charlevoix County have made the dean's list at Western Michigan University during the fall semester.

They are Eric L. Peterson, Gerald W. Fochtman and Randall L. Penn of Charlevoix, Ronald L. Wojan of St. James and Lorie E. Neymark of Boyne City.

Schools Will Rate Each Other on Sportsmanship

A new program to improve sportsmanship throughout the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference was started Friday night at the Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game, according to Charlevoix High School Principal Vane Smith.

The conference has set up a rating system whereby cheerleaders and one spectator from each school will rate the opposing team's players, cheerleaders, coaches and spectators on their sportsmanship.

Game officials will be asked to evaluate each of the opposing sides.

Smith says if the pilot rating system works, it will be used during all varsity sports events next year, with an all-sports trophy going to the school which displays the best sportsmanship.

Results of the initial ratings will be tabulated by Rod Place, principal of Boyne City High School, who drew up the plan with the assistance of Gaylord Principal William Granlund. It was later approved by Conference members.

Smith said sportsmanship throughout the conference appears to have degenerated during the present school year. Sports events have been punctuated by poor conduct by both players and spectators and visiting school busses have been splattered with eggs on a number of occasions.

Demand Up

In the past hundred years, overall demand for energy of all kinds in the United States has increased twentyfold.

ROBERT NEFF'S building on the east side of Bridge-st. has been purchased by Market, Ltd., and will become office space. Nell will manage a new food store opening in the arcade across the street.

Mrs. Lawrence (Jeannine) Wallace was elected Second Ward Alderman over Harry Wayne Carter in the city primary Monday by a vote of 159 to 76.

In the Third Ward, George W. Plumm also won a seat on the council, polling 124 votes. His opponents Condit B. Drury and David J. Novotny polled 113 and 28 votes respectively.

The ward races were the only contests in the election, which drew only 582 votes from a registered voter list of 2,105.

In the First Ward, incumbent Alderman Richard Fochtman polled 64 votes. He was unopposed.

Also unopposed were Mayor Edward P. Hansen, 459; Clerk Ida A. Heise, 485; and Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham, 486.

Barring write-ins in the general election April 2, the 1973-74 council will be made up of Aldermen Fochtman and Sam Supernaw, First Ward; Mrs. Wallace and Robert Timms, Second Ward; and Plumm and Gerald Selph, Third Ward.

Mrs. Wallace will succeed Robert Gill, who is stepping down after a decade on the Council. Plumm will succeed Clifton (Kip) Sundberg who also is retiring.

A total of only 481 voters visited the polls Monday, with 101 casting absentee ballots. Seventy persons voted in the First Ward, 241 in the Second Ward and 271 in the Third Ward. The First Ward has 614 registered voters, the Second Ward 775 and the Third Ward 716.

Mrs. Wallace is a native of Grand Rapids but has made her home in Charlevoix for the past 20 years. She owns and operates The Shop of the Gulls on Bridge-st.

Plumm was born in Bellaire but has lived most of his life in Charlevoix. He is manager of the Water's Edge Resort.

March of Dimes Gifts Total More Than $1,100

William Wilson, county chairman for the March of Dimes, reports that more than $1,100 has been donated to the campaign in the Charlevoix area, a new record.

Coordinating the Charlevoix drive as Mothers' March chairman was Mrs. Michael (Janet) Ready of Alice-st.

Wilson said that returns are incomplete to date for the Boyne City and East Jordan areas.

Working with Mrs. Ready in Charlevoix were the following volunteers:

Mrs. Arnold Loper, Mrs. R. Sutton, Mrs. Marianne Thomure, Mrs. Leonard Dubey, Mrs. Larry Warner, Mrs. Roger Westenbroek, Ann Kelly, Mrs. Norman Helms, Nancy LaBrecque, Mrs. Dennis LaCroix, Dorothy Miller, Mrs. Robert Tollas, Mrs. Dave Novotny, Mrs. William Graves, Mrs. Dorothy Porter, Pauline Russell, Mrs. E. Racignol, Mrs. Rosalee Donnelly and Mrs. Sam Supernaw.

Others were: Mrs. Melvin Saunders, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Randall Williams, Joyce Wells, Mrs. Robert Wise, Mrs. Albert Seger, Mrs. Robert Wexstaff, Mrs. David Hebboldsheimer, Carolyn Battdorf, Mrs. Cass Russell, Joan Avery, Mrs. Harold Bliss, Mrs. Steve LaBlance, Mrs. Ken Wojan, Mrs. Jerry Left, Mrs. Keller, Mrs. Donna Bonar, Kathy Krueger and Linda Hall.

On Beaver Island, $265 was collected for the March of Dimes, including $33.49 from the school children alone. With a winter population of fewer than 200, the island's per capita donation is probably the highest in the state.

The island drive was headed by Mrs. Walt Wojan, assisted by Joy Green, Skip McDonough, Lillian Gregg and Loy Malloy.

Started by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in an effort to combat infantile paralysis, the March of Dimes today earmarks most of its funds for the continuing war on birth defects.

Snowmobiles Welcome On City Streets Sunday

The annual Lions Club Winter Outing will be held this Sunday, Feb. 25, at Ferry Avenue Beach on Lake Charlevoix.

The club has planned plenty of activities to keep spectators and participants busy for three hours, starting at 1 p.m.

To assist in the Lion's program, the City Council has agreed to permit snowmobiles to run "at large" throughout the city from 12:30 until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The only restricted area will be Bridge-st., between Park-ave. and Hurlbut-st.

Snowmobilers from the North Side may cross the bridge, turn right on Park-ave. and proceed up State-st. to the South Side.

"If everything goes well this year, with no accidents or complaints, things might even be better for next year," commented Bill Supernaw, the Lions Club's project chairman.

Scheduled for the afternoon are snowmobile hockey, poker runs, informal races and other events.

The club's chuck wagon will be on the site with hot beverages, hot dogs and bean soup.

About 3:30 p.m. the winner of the grand prize — a 27-horse Johnson snowmobile — will be announced, along with the winners of other prizes.

All proceeds from the Winter Outing will be used by the Lions to improve the Charlevoix area and assist those in need.

Lions President Ray Wood expressed appreciation to Mayor Edward Hansen, City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna, Police Chief Jack Mol and James Bellinger for their assistance in helping the club prepare for the outing.

Firm Honors Redeker

Jerrald Redeker recently was honored during Farm Bureau Insurance Group's annual convention in Grand Rapids. During a six-week period proceeding the convention, he provided more than $100,000 of life insurance coverage for new clients.

Redeker is a member of the 16-man Dawson Way Agency, servicing the Charlevoix area. He recently joined Charles Elzinga at the Farm Bureau office in Charlevoix, following his resignation as president of the First State Bank.

City Firemen Kept Busy

Charlevoix firemen were called to assist in four small fires Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Damage in all was minor.

Friday morning, a plane at the Charlevoix Airport owned by the Charlevoix Flying Club caught fire.

Later Friday, trash near a furnace at the Corbin Realty office on Antrim-st. caught fire.

Saturday evening overcooked food caused a smoke problem at 207 Belvedere-ave.

And Sunday evening a small electric heater caused a fire at 302 Park-ave.

CONG. PHILIP RUPPE (standing) lunched with Charlevoix civic leaders Friday noon at the Weathervane prior to holding office hours at the County Building. At left is Robert Wise, county Republican chairman. Flanking Ruppe on right are Mayor Edward P. Hansen, Max Novak and former Mayor William Fochtman. Ruppee told the group that he would support aid for North Vietnam only if it were part of an overall economic assistance plan for Southeast Asia. He also said he would support a ban on "Saturday Night Special" handguns, claimed some cuts in the military budget are possible and said he would work to restore some REA and FHA funds where needed.

John W. Lachman and Thomas G. LaBlance of Charlevoix, have been named to the Admissions and Budget Committee of the United Way of Michigan (UWM), formerly the Michigan United Fund.

The announcement of their appointment was made by William C. Crick, of Flint, committee chairman.

According to Crick, the appointees will be assigned to panels at UWM's annual budget conference to be held April 17-18 at the Kellogg Center, Michigan State University.

Each panel reviews the budget presentations of two or more UWM member agencies and then makes recommendations for the funding of the agencies during the following calendar year.

UWM has 26 health and social service agencies as members. It helps plan programs and provides budgeting services and financial support for them.

UWM receives its funds from local campaigns conducted by 150 United Funds and Community Chests throughout Michigan. The Charlevoix Community Chest is providing $3,028 for UWM services during 1973.

Lachman, who lives on Route 1, Charlevoix, is plant manager for the Hoskins Manufacturing Co., of Detroit. He has been chairman of the Industrial Division, campaign chairman and president of the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Community Chest.

GI Dividend Story A Nationwide Hoax

A story published recently in the Charlevoix Courier regarding a life insurance dividend for World War II veterans was part of a nationwide hoax, according to Robert Wasoski, Charlevoix County veterans' counselor.

Wasoski says no such dividend is in the works and never has been.

A Veterans Administration bulletin published last October gave this run-down on the rumor. It was entitled "Insurance Divident Rumor a Big Hoax."

"That special World War II insurance dividend rumor is back in the news.

"The Veterans Administration says a 'cruelly deceptive and false leaflet is being circulated in many U.S. cities saying that veterans with World War II GI insurance will get a special dividend.

"This is entirely false," the VA said.

The leaflet is being circulated widely among Defense Department employees in the Washinton, D.C., and Newark, N.J., area. The VA said the leaflet has been 'popping up all over the country' with an application blank attached, resulting in numerous phone calls to the VA.

"The VA said it did not know who is circulating the leaflet or why.

"The hoax that has swept the nation usually involves accumulated dividends that are supposed to have piled up on World War National Service Life Insurance policies – even if no premiums have been paid on the policies since the end of World War II.

"The VA says the stories may stem from an action taken in 1948 when payment of a special dividend on these same policies was authorized. These dividends were derived from premium overpayments because of a lower than anticipated casualty rate during the war. All payments of these special dividends ended years ago," the agency said."

Loggers Add $140,000 to State Economy

Timber stumpage receipts for Northern Michigan last month were the highest for any Januory on record.

Private commercial loggers paid $140,000 into the State's general fund for rights to cut timber on State forest land in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula.

Robert Borak, Roscommon, Regional Forester for the Department of Natural Resources, said this compures with $80,000 in stumpage receipts for the preceding January.

It also was the second highest total for any month on record, being exceeded only by the $142,000 collected in August of 1972.

Borak said the unusually mild weather played a significant part in boosting the stumpage receipts. The light snow cover made it easier to operate heavy logging equipment and keep snow plowing to a minimum.

Colorful Murals Blossom In Charlevoix High Halls

What's going up in Charlevoix High School?

Graphics, that's what.

Upon entry into CHS you are welcomed by silhouetted guitar players painted by Dave Streeter. In other parts of the building you'll find a mural of huge colorful sun by Brenda Forbrig, a combination of geometric designs painted by Joani Dove and Dan Austin, a painting by Bill Mascioli and Denise Fuller of a funny little man saying, "Ha, Ha, Ha", Candy Klooster's characters living in the grass outside the teacher's lounge and also a mod painting by Carol Cunningham that occupies a wall in study hall "A".

And these are just in the main building!

Building "B" exhibits a pop art painting outside one exit of the cafeteria by Patti Marsh and Patty Warner and another painting by Robin Ferguson and Eric Johnson outside the other exit.

The "Graphic Idea" was one of the results of the School Board's professional study committee comprised of Board and Faculty members. The idea was first tried in the Middle school somewhat unsuccessfully due to little supervision of the designs to be painted.

The High School graphics are being supervised by William Murray, the school art teacher, one of the main promoters of the graphic project. One of the limiting factors of the project is that the students have to buy their own paint, but students still seem very enthusiastic and interested.

In reference to future projects Mr. Murray remarked, "If these graphics meet with good public acceptance, the art classes would like to do more of them in the future."

All Classes Busy Raising Money

All four classes at Charlevoix High are busy planning activities and money making projects. The Freshmen class president, Sandy Vanloo, says the final arrangements for a "Record Raffle" are now underway.

A "Marathon Dance" is on the activity calendar for the Sophomores. It is scheduled for sometime in March according to Class President Cindi Fassett, but details are not yet available.

May 5 has been chosen by the Juniors as the 1973 Prom date. They are still busy earning money for this big event and are planning a "Dinner Raffle" for in the near future. Sheilah Brady, class president, also said that ideas were being discussed on planning the senior trip next year.

The Seniors held a class meeting on Thursday, Feb. 8, to vote on where to go on their senior trip. Cedar Point, near Sandusky, Ohio, was the winner, but final details aren't available. Class President Tom Duke also mentioned that their money making projects, like the concession stand at home basketball games are doing rather well.

Honored By Olivet

Deborah Evans, daughter of Mrs. Edith Stenman of Charlevoix, made the Academic Achievement list for the first semester at Olivet College.

To qualify, a student must have at least a 3.5 point average for the semester.

Glee Club Program Set For Feb. 27

The Glee Club will hold a program for the community, Feb. 27, 7:30 p.m. at the high school in building "A".

The girls will sing several groups of numbers ranging from serious to popular. The songs will be interspersed with several different soloists and small ensembles.

Refreshments will be served following the program. There will be no charge for the program.

Stockholders to Meet

The Production Credit Association of Traverse City will hold its 38th annual stockholders meeting at two locations on two different dates.

Stockholders living in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula are invited to a meeting planned Thursday, Feb. 22, starting at 10:30 a.m. at the Livingston Town Hall located three miles north of Gaylord on Old U.S. 27.

Stockholders living in the Traverse City-Cadillac area are invited to the second meeting on Friday, Feb. 23, starting at 10:30 a.m. at the Twin Lakes 4-H Club Camp, located five miles west of Traverse City on County Highway 610.

At both meetings, the business session will start at 11:15 a.m. General Manager Leonard A. Chrestensen will attend to report on matters of interest to the farming community and will answer stockholders' questions.

The association will provide a free lunch at noon.

In the afternoon, two directors, will be elected for three-year terms.

Speaker at the Gaylord meeting will be Peter Grieves, president of the Michigan Forest Association, who will discuss various aspects of the logging industry in northern Michigan.

Speaker at Traverse City will be Dr. Leonard Kyle, head of the Farm Management Division of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Michigan State University; His topic will be "Who Will Control American Agriculture?"

Mod Theme Adopted for State Week

Michigan Week marks its 20th anniversary this year with a mod theme: "Michigan – What You Seek Is What You Get". The 1973 theme relates to the state's official motto, "If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you" (Si Quaeris Peninsulam Amoenam, Circumspice).

"Michigan – What You Seek Is What You Get" was the brainstorm of the Council on Planning, an under-35 committee nominated by board members of the greater Michigan Foundation which sponsors Michigan Week. Chairman of the council is Stuart Strait, Alma College director of alumni and community relations.

May 19-26 are the dates of the 20th annual Michigan Week observance.

Library Notes

By Eleanor Ratigan

The Library would like to acknowledge the fifth volume in the handsome series of albums which Bob Miles has prepared especially for the Library. Oldtimers and newcomers alike have had many hours of pleasure turning the pages of these beautifully assembled albums. Each one, beginning with the very first days of Charlevoix, contains unique, one-of-a kind photographs with appropriate comments and historical information. We are all very grateful to Bob Miles for this outstanding and permanent contribution.

Everyone remembers Merriman Smith, the great journalist who knew and reported on six presidents from Franklin D. Rossevelt to Richard Nixon. Now his son has came out with a fine book which contains the best of his father's writings, half from unpublished notes and half from Smith's published works, such as "Thank You, Mr. President," and his Pultizer Prize coverage of the John Kennedy assassination. The book describes the presidency and six presidents in very human terms – what it's like to live in the White House and to belong to the first family either by birth or by duty. There are marvelous photographs in "A White House Memoir."

In these days of land booms and property prices hikes, the new "U.S. News World Report - How to Buy Real Estate," will be of interest to many of our patrons. There are two basic aspects of real estate, and this book deals with both of them. Part I deals with the investment opportunities offered by the real estate boom. Part II serves as a guide for those to whom real estate means a home. Whether the reader is interested in real estate for housing or investment, a careful study of these pages should prove helpful in avoiding the pitfalls in order to reach the profits. As Will Rogers said: "Buy land – they ain't making any more of that stuff."

The Library has just received a new Memorial Book contributed by the Women's Club. It is David Halberstam's long-awaited book on America in the last decade and of what happened when the best and the brightest men in the country when to Washington to serve the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and exercised, or failed to exercise, their power in office. This book is more than a volume of portraits. It is a narrative of the decision-making process by which we arrived in Vietnam, and how that decision affected not only the lives of these men but the future of America. How did they react at crucial moments? What was the effect of their day-to-day decisions on the war? On the policies of this country and on America's future. "The Best and the Brightest is an enormously important book.

Bat Sonar

The fishing bat of Central America and the Caribees uses echolocation "sonar" to find food, according to the National Geographic Society's recent book, "Animal Behaviur." When the bat locates small fish at the surface, it skims the water and spears its prey with strong talons.

Letters to the editor

They Dodged Their Duty

Dear Sir,

To start my letter I will mention that I am a woman. The importance of this, is that, as a group, women comprise the largest group of war haters. We are the ones that send our sons, husbands, brothers and friends off to fight in the stupid wars that are instigated, generated and perpetuated by world financiers. Be that as it may, a few points need to be brought to focus in regards to the draft dodgers.

There were many young men who did go to Canada or simply kept moving in this country, never acquiring an address long enough for their local draft boards to catch up with them, They dodged their duty as citizens of this country. It's pure hogwash to try and make heroes out of them and give them credit for the end of the Vietnam war. They did not stand, they ran away and not to fight another day. If they held their principles so highly, they should have been willing to fight to change the existing conditions.

A fact that too often goes unnoticed is that this is not the first time that the young men of this country dodged the draft. They have done it in every war we have ever fought. Surely the men of previous wars have tried to rationalize their desertions also. However never has the press cried such tears of compassion for those men.

It's sadly amusing to see your two quotations of "Don't shoot 'til you see the whites of their eyes" uttered preceding our war of independence when we really didn't want a war and were also trying to conserve our ammunition. Then Teddy Roosevelt's quote of "Walk softly but carry a big stick." When he was Sec. of Navy he was instrumental in our becoming involved in the Cuban insurrection or civil war that could be described as a Vietnam type of war. We as a country were not immediately concerned.

You mention when as a child, Americans took pride in never firing the first shot. Was that always wise? Col. "Billy" Mitchell described in the early 30's exactly how Pearl Harbor would come about. For this and other equally unpopular views he was court-martialed and never had to live and see the enactment of his prophesy. Was Pearl Harbor really necessary? Could we not have avoided that by giving more aid than we did to countries fighting the Axis? Did we really have to lose all those men, battleships and other vessels to prove that we could still come back and win? Did we need that type of disaster to awaken the American isolationists to world involvement? And the price that must be paid for leadership?

Our young men of today have a difficult time of it. A lot of the parents have raised their children to follow the line of least resistance. Many of the teachers of today – primarily in the history department – have somehow failed to learn the important facts and meanings of history. A country that does not know its history is doomed to repeat its errors.

There were other alternatives to the young men other than running away. The most drastic was going to prison. At least those few that took that path followed their conscience and were willing to stay and face the results.

Let me finish this by finishing some quotes of yours and others. Lincoln's "with malice toward none" ends "...to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations." Albert Einstein's comment on the atomic bomb "As long as there are sovereign nations possession great power, war is inevitable." And the last one "Our country right or wrong. When right, to be kept right; when wrong, to be put right."

Sincerely,
Carol Morris (Mrs. C.W.)
R-2 East Jordan, Mi. 49727

Let 'Em Meet POW's

(The following column by Ernest B. Furgurson was submitted to the Courier by Thomas H. Loeb of Atlantic Beach, Fla., in response to a recent Clockwise column objecting to President Nixon's hard-line on amnesty for deserters and draft-dodgers during the Vietnam War. Mr. Loeb is a former resident of Charlevoix.)

By Ernest B. Furguson

WASHINGTON -- The anti-war movement is meeting the threat of unemployment in its ranks by turning its efforts now to obtaining amnesty for those Americans who fled from military service.

Dozens of shaky precedents are dragged out of history to prove that amnesty is just, and indeed demanded, by what was done after earlier wars. Mr. Nixon, the villain a few weeks ago for ordering bombing of Hanoi-Haiphong, now is the villain because he believes the draft-dodgers and deserters should be treated precisely according to the law.

It is perhaps inevitable but also appalling, that the agitation for amnesty reaches a new peak just as the first American prisoners are heading home from captivity in North Vietnam.

Inevitable, because some politicians, including both George McGovern and Mr. Nixon himself 13 months ago, spoke of the prisoners' release as a barrier that would have to be passed before amnesty was granted (or considered, in the President's case). Appalling, because – well, if you don't understand that part there is little point in explaining it.

The most common comparison made by those plumbing the history books is between Abraham Lincoln's attitude toward Southern soldiers after the Civil War and Mr. Nixon's attitude today. It is absurd.

Lincoln was concerned with half a nation split away, with soldiers who had made a choice to fight for one side or the other, sometimes against their own brothers. He was not dealing with draft-dodgers and deserters, as Mr. Nixon is. (In the Civil War, the punishment for desertion was death or in the Army of Northern Virginia, imprisonment at hard labor, regular flogging and being branded with a capital "D" in the palm of the left hand.)

No one who comes home to face the law he so knowingly broke during the Vietnamese war will have to fear any such punishment. In fact, of nearly 5,000 draft-evasion indictments in fiscal 1972, only one-third of the defendants were convicted and sentenced.

Among deserters convicted by court martial, 44 percent got off with no imprisonment at all, and only 6 percent got 13 months or more. Compared that with what happened to approximately 46,000 young Americans who did their unpleasent duty during the recent war.

That, of course, is a fact of which the exiles are more aware than most people. The amnesty movement would have you believe that those who fled are moral heroes who had the courage and foresight to run away from an illegal war – heroes, plus an admitted few who had committed crimes and found flight with the others a form of socially protective camouflage.

But nowhere in the propaganda do you find any acknowledgement that just maybe a high percentage of them ran away because they were afraid of the danger and drudgery of doing their duty.

To hint at such a thing in the better circles is to slander these modern heroes. After all, it was they who had the fortitude to endure the rigors of life among the girls of Stockholm and to rough it in Toronto, when with less moral fiber they might have taken the easy way–boot camp, combat training, digging holes to sleep in the rain, perhaps losing their legs to a trip mine.

And since – if – they are such heroes, then that suggests a form of service, a test, by which they might prove themselves appropriately eligible for amnesty. Mr. Nixon rejects the idea of a "junket in the Peace Crops" as penance, and the exiles themselves reject the idea that they have done anything wrong at all.

In which case, it might be instructive to allow them all to return today, and fly them out to Clark Field to be the welcoming committee when their fellow Americans arrive there from their cells in North Vietnam. Those few who were able to look the homecoming prisoners in the eye might be future candidates for forgiveness, which is a step beyond amnesty proper – and much, much further away.

More Views On Amnesty Question

Bob Clock Editor,
The Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Mr Clock:

You may cancel my subscription to the Courier as of this date. Spare me from another issue!

Your Clockwise desertation on amnesty for deserters and conscientious objectors who fled the country was the pry that tipped over the wagon. Your persistent encouragement to our enemy, apparent for a long time, is in my opinion a shameful position.

The Courier on pink paper would be quite appropriate so long as it pursues the course on which you hold its editorial wheel.

Frankly,

(Editor's Note: Mr. Alderton may be interested to know that the "pinko" Courier was the only business in downtown Charlevoix that saw fit to fly Old Glory out on Bridge-st. the day the Vietnam cease-fire agreement was signed in Paris. How's that for aiding and abetting the enemy?)

Dear Bob:

Invariably I find your articles interesting, sometimes they are amusing as well. Your "I'm Guilty, Too," however, was something I too felt very deeply about. Not only do I agree whole heartedly with what you said, I think you did a wonderful job of saying it. I just thought I'd drop a note and say so.

Clockwise

The Dollar

By BOB CLOCK

Anyone who took one look at my checkbook would know I'm not much of a hand with figures. And goodness knows I'm a total stranger to the world of high finance.

But, holy Moses, I got worried last week when President Nixon devalued the dollar by 10 percent.

It's not that I hadn't realized that the dollar is not worth what it once was. When you pay 85 cents a pound for hamburger and 75 cents for stunted head of cauliflower you know that all is not right in the dollar department.

But when the President himself comes out and says the dollar is only worth 90 cents on the foreign market, it sort of shoots holes in your politics as well as your pocketbook.

I remember those awful newspaper photos a generation ago of German housewives carrying bushel baskets full of marks to the grocery store to do their shopping.

Fortunately, the nation's top economists don't seem to share my concern for the health of the lowly dollar. They hailed the devaluation, pointing out that it simply means foreign goods coming into the United States will cost 10 percent more and that American goods sold abroad will cost 10 percent less and hurray for our side.

In theory, the devaluation should tighten up foreign imports and improve our balance of payments by making American products cheaper abroud. Which is a fine state of affairs, in theory.

But as a practical matter, it seems that devaluation of the dollar will lead to only more inflation at home.

Take the price of hamburger, for example. The only reason many grocers have been able to keep the cost of hamburger almost within reach is the fact that they have been able to purchase frozen Australian beef for much less than domestic beef. As I understand it, the Australian beef isn't so red hot for steaks and roasts, but it grinds up into beautiful hamburger.

So you can look for the price of hamburger to take another jump of at least 10 percent when the next shipment of imported beef arrives.

The same goes for a wide range of consumer items which we purchase from overseas, from foodstuffs to appliances. Even many so-called American-made products have components manufactured and assembled overseas and they almost surely will reflect the 10 percent increase in the cost of imports.

So what's wrong with that, you say. Americans should be buying American-made products in the first place.

Again, this sounds good in theory. But that the fact remains that American-made goods are priced far beyond the means of many of us, and that's the godawful truth.

If you have a union scale job in a union town, well and good. You can afford union-made goods.

But if you live in northwestern Michigan where unions are practically unknown except among municipal workers, teachers and employes of certain select industries that are unionized by virtue of the fact that their parent companies are unionized, then you're in trouble.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not anti-union. But I do know it is increasingly difficult for the non-unionized segment of the economy to remain solvent in a unionized society.

The auto companies recently made a big splash in the news by reporting that the average guy on the assembly line in Detroit is making more than $5 an hour, plus another $2 or $3 an hour in fringe benefits.

That's fine for them. But how do they expect a little fellow out at Freedman's making half that much to buy their automobiles?

The truth of the matter is that a lot of us have been subsisting on our sub-union incomes simply because we have been able to buy foreign imports. And now that little advantage is being taken away from us.

Of course, none of this should come as news to residents of northern Michigan. We've been pulling in ourt belts for too long not to realize that the belly button is getting awfully close to the backbone.

As I said, I'm not much of a hand with figures and it's totally ignorant of high finance. But I have a hunch that the American economy is riding for a bad fall.

Too many of us have not been earning our keep for too long. The old idea that a man should give a day's work for a day's pay is as out-dated as high-button shoes.

The nation has become top-heavy with "service" employes who are not contributing a dime to the national economy but who constitute an ever-increasing drain on local, state and federal tax dollars.

An increasing number of Americans has discovered that they fare better on welfare than they do working.

Twenty-and-out and 30-and-out retirement plans in business and government place an additional burden on the economy as a whole.

Is it any wonder the dollar is in trouble? Bad trouble?

Lost Weekend

By JIM FITZGERALD

Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will remember my report on that Monday when a co-worker asked me what I'd done over the weekend. "I softened the water," I told him. "That doesn't take all weekend," he said. "It does if you do it with a hammer," I said.

Well, this will be a similar report on what I did last weekend. I changed the license plates on my car.

I was armed with a screwdriver. I've been changing license plates for 25 years and a screwdriver has always been sufficient unto the task. But not this time. Not with the tricky, flippy plate-holder that hides the gas cap on my merry lousy Oldsmobile.

Honest, I thought I'd lost my mind. There were two screws with no slots for the screwdriver. What type of horrible mutation is this? I asked myself after skinning several knuckles in a vain attempt to carve my own slots.

I have cried real tears while attaching – slotted screws with a + screwdriver. I've worried about violating the Carpenter's Code of Ethics while using a – screwdriver on a + screw.

But never before, dear God, have I thrust a screwdriver into a screw and found no slot.

Could it be a nail? Whoever hear of nailing a license plate to a car?

I looked at the flip side of the plate. Both screws were screwed into nuts. After thinking and cursing for several minutes, sitting there on my cold driveway, I hit upon the answer. I would have to unscrew the nuts, rather than the screws.

You can't do that with a screwdriver, + or –.

"I need a monkey wrench," I said to myself, wondering when I might borrow one. My do-it-yourself carpenter's kit is limited to two screwdrivers, a hammer no one can ever find, and a rusty saw borrowed from my father-in-law 14 years ago to shorten a Christmas tree.

It took awhile, but I finally found a neighbor willing to lend me a monkey wrench. By this time it was getting dark out and my wife appeared on the scene with news about dinner. She looked at me and the monkey wrench and the license plate.

"What you need is a pair of pliers," she said, making public a secret suspicion which had been slowly prickling my skin as I discovered there was no room behind the license plate for both my hand and a monkey wrench.

It was then that I began to blubber and roll down the driveway. By the time I regained my composure, my wife had located a pair of pliers. Back to the job.

Unless I crawled into the gas tank and reached back up the spout, it was difficult to get decent leverage on the nuts. The plate hadn't been changed in two years and the screws were rusty. I finally loosened the nuts but the screws simply spun around with the nuts. Clearly it would be necessary to hold the screws firm while unscrewing the nuts. But how could I hold the screws firm when there were no slots for the screwdriver? My sobbing became uncontrollable.

"You need two pairs of pliers and another person," my wife said.

She was right. She dug up another pair and she held the screws still while I finally removed the nuts and changed the plate in the moonlight. She then helped me into the house where I collapsed in a state of shock for four hours.

That's what I did last weekend and I really don't give a damn what you did.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: When school buses are inspected in the check lane system of the Department of State Police, does the procedure include checking the calibration of the speedometer? R.H., Sparta

ANSWER: It does not. Safety regulations require that the bus be equipped with a speedometer which includes an odometer giving mileage to the nearest tenth.

Normal checking procedures do not include test driving the school bus. It may be put in motion for a few feet to check the air brake system. However, due to incurance liability problems, no attempt is made to operate the bus at speed sufficient to check the accuracy of the speedometer.

QUESTION: Do the Motorcycle standards set administratively by the Department of State Police require reflective tape on the helmet, and, if so, how much and in what position must it be applied? P.B., Fenton

ANSWER: Rules approved by the State of Michigan authorities in June, 1967, read: "A helmet approved by the department (state police) shall have a reflectorized surface, or have securely affixed thereto reflectorized material on both the left and right side of the helmet. The reflectorized surface shall cover an area of at least 4 square inches (25.8 square centimeters) on each side of the helmet. If the reflectorized material is attached to the helmet, it shall be affixed to the helmet with a suitable, permanent, weatherproof and water resistant adhesive substance.

QUESTION: Can you suggest any good "driving" tips for operating my brand new snowmobile (if and when we get snow down here)? R.C.N., Adrian

ANSWER: According to Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center, snowmobiling requires signigicantly different know-how than that of operating an automobile.

The experts point out that an average snowmobiler is exposed to a collision rate three times higher than for a car driver, and a death rate that is four times that experienced for motor cars.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Ignored by Washington, and ignoring Lansing, early county commissioners administered welfare according to their collective conscience. This policy, like blinders on a horse, confined their vision to the goal ahead unhampered by legal technicalities along the wayside. Thus, a working widow could enroll her child in school at the age of four rather than five. Use of a tax supported institution as a child care center was felt to be a purely local matter.

By changing the word "welfare" to "widows assistance" the number of eligible applicants was reduced significantly. The amount of assistance to the elderly was regulated by the Philosophy that if one or both parents can support several children, then several children should be able to support one or both parents.

A widow with two children received $16 a month after investigation by the head of Social Services, who was the sole case worker for the entire county. She checked continuing eligibility when she chose to. Implied consent justified any invasion of privacy until reams of "clarifications" from higher more knowledgeable sources began to monitor such humiliating penny-pinching tactics.

Auto license tags became a necessity rather than a luxury. Heating allowances put an oil tank in every yard; thus keeping the wood lot intact as a hunting preserve for the developing leisure class who soon began demanding free grocery orders to supplement their diet of rabbit and illegal venison.

Their request met with the sympathetic approval of the legislators, deaf to the pleas of farmers unable to hire help to harvest their crops, since it provided pocket money for the recreational needs of their cashless constituents. They could now trade staples for the money required for some essential, such as a night on the town to relieve the constant tension of evading employment.

At this point the commissioners surrendered to the growing army of civil servants, who continue to proliferate heedless of public indignation. Belatedly, the anguished cries of taxpayers are being heard in far off Washington. Future guidelines are being viewed with alarm in many quarters for it is hinted that they will be exhumed from the dusty archives of the aforementioned commissioners.

A solution of the "welfare mess" (quote), by replacing cash with aching muscles and callouses is of course too ridiculous for words!

Or is it?

Poet to Launch Book At Open House

By FRAN MARTIN

Clarence S Way, whose poems have appeared in this publication and have been heard at special events in the area, has compiled those and others into a book which he has entitled 'Rhyme, Rhythm 'n' Reason'.

Within its 84 pages, the author, who classifies the publication as 'home spun', has included poems relating to such subjects as the family nest, the boys on the service flag, thanksgiving and Sunday morning prayer....subjects of everyday living and family life

His son, the Rev. Robert R. Way of Houston, Texas, best describes the book in the introduction in which he wrote "from farm and factory, out of fun and frustration, during war and peace have emerged these verses. They were all lived out in his very real world....the intimacies of the family, the coldness of fact and the victories of faith "

The book, published by Graven Image Press of Ann Arbor, will be introduced at an open house and autograph party to be held at the Assembly of God church at 203 E. Upright-ave. from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Born at Rapid City in 1899, Mr Way received his early education there and, at that time, penned his first poems. At the age of 18 years he left the farm for the city where he was employed at the U.S. Rubber Co. in Detroit for 35 years. After World War 11 he returned to northern Michigan to purchase a farm in Norwood township from where he looks out on rolling hills and Lake Michigan. More recently he has been employed at the Brumm Studio at Norwood where he does torch welding on the delicate items of art done in enameled copper made by Judy and Norman Brumm. He loves this for, like his poems, their art pieces reflect the beauty of the simple things...a strawberry plant, a patch of Mayflowers, a bird perched on a branch of apple blossoms.

Devoted to his church, he has taught Sunday School all his adult life, has served it in various other ways and has ministered in his own and other churches.

Among his inspirations have been his wife, the former Ruth Olson, whom he married in Detroit Oct. 10, 1920 and their five children, Douglas of Atwood, Dawson and Richard of Charlevoix, their son, the Rev. Robert of Houston and their only daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Geraldine) Hittenberger of Detroit.

Pair Plead Guilty To Lesser Counts In Fettig Murder

Larry Raymond Fitzpatrick, 24, of Boyne City, plead guilty last Thursday to a reduced charge of second degree murder in the shooting death of his hunting companion, Donald Fettig, 29, last Nov. 19 in Evangeline Township.

Fitzpatrick originally had been charged with first degree murder and conspiracy in Fettig's death, but both those charges were dropped as a result of "plea bargaining" between Fitzpatrick's attorney, Jack Carpenter of Petoskey, and Charlevoix County Prosecutor Harvey Varnum.

A charge of conspiracy lodged against Fettig's widow, Lillie Lou, also was dropped in exchange for a plea of guilty to the lesser offense of "concealing and compounding" the murder of her husband by not reporting it immediately to law officers.

Mrs. Fettig was represented in her appearance before Circuit Judge Edward H. Fenlon of Petoskey attorney Stephen Graham.

Both Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Fettig will be sentenced after a pre-sentence investigation. Second degree murder carries up to a life sentence. The charge against Mrs. Fettig carries a sentence of up to four years in prison.

Dressed in blue jeans and a dark ski jacket, Fitzpatrick appeared less tense than he did in his prior courtroom appearances. He answered Judge Fenlon's questions in a low voice that was scarcely audible in the rear of the courtroom.

At one point Joe Flynn of Petoskey, who was sitting in the gallery, rose to his feet to ask the judge to have the defendant speak up so he could be heard.

Fitzpatrick told the court that he and Fettig went hunting on Nov. 18 and again on Nov. 19. He said they ran into Garth Hall and LaVerne Hall about 10 a.m. and exchanged a few words.

At 12:30 p.m., when Fettig was walking about 10 yards in front of him, Fitzpatrick said he shot him in the back with his .33 caliber rifle. He said the shooting was not accidental.

Fitzpatrick testified that he called Mrs. Fettig about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon to tell her that he had shot her husband. He later contacted Joseph Washburn of Boyne City and asked him to help establish an alibi and get rid of the weapon.

It was Washburn who later notified sheriff's deputies that Fitzpatrick told him he had shot Fettig. Washburn was to have been the prosecution's star witness if Fitzpatrick had stood trial for first degree murder.

Mrs. Fettig plead guilty to concealing Fitzpatrick's telephone call before the conspiracy charge against her was dropped.

She said after Fitzpatrick called she notified neighbors and asked them to look for her husband.

Under questioning by Judge Fenlon she admitted that she had been "seeing" Fitzpatrick for a number of years and that she had expected Fitzpatrick to ask her to marry him if the murder were not detected.

Asked why she didn't notify law officers of Fitzpatrick's telephone call, Mrs. Fettig responded:

"If I had called the police every time he told me something like that I would have called them every day."

Mrs. Fettig wore diamond-checked blue and white slacks with a bulky sunburst yellow ski jacket. She chewod gum and spoke so softly that she could scarcely be heard by the spectators.

In a press briefing after the court session, Prosecutor Narnum said that the conspiracy charges were dropped because it was "highly improbable" that the prosecution could have proven conspiracy and "make it stick."

He said that the first degree murder charge against Fitzpatrick, which implies premeditation, was reduced after he, Assistant Prosecutor Donald Berlage and police officers involved in the investigation decided they had a better case of second degree murder on their hands.

The prosecution need not prove premeditation in second degree murder.

"It is our duty to see justice done," Varnum added.

Second Body Found In Jordan Tragedy

Seek 3rd Victim Under Ice

Divers Monday recovered the body of Mrs. Marie Yentz, 33, of Boyne City, one of the three persons who lost their lives Saturday morning when three snowmobiles and a sleigh, carrying eight persons in all, plunged through thin ice on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix about 100 feet north of the East Jordan city dock.

The search for Mrs. Yentz' husband, Richard, 35, was expected to continue Tuesday, according to the Sheriff's Department.

Shortly after the accident, at 10:15 a.m. Saturday, the body of James David Curtiss, 7, was pulled from the icy waters along with five other members of the two-family snowmobile party.

Taking part in the outing were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Curtiss, both 30, their son, James, and daughter, Kimberly, 9; Mr. and Mrs. Yentz and their two sons, Hans, 9, and Karl, 7.

The Curtisses and Kimberly and Hans and Karl Yentz were all taken to Charlevoix Hospital for treatment. The only one remaining Monday was Hans.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo Sumner, the two families left Boyne City on their snowmachines early Saturday morning and traveled on the ice around Hemingway Point and into the South Arm.

Just as the machines were approaching the East Jordan city dock, Curtiss told the sheriff he felt his machine starting to sink and tried to veer shoreward but it was too late.

Witnesses rushed to the scene with life rings to pull the survivors from the water.

East Jordan patrolman Kenneth Downing went into the water himself when he slid out onto the thin ice on his stomach to reach the fully clothed snowmobilers foundering in the icy water.

Divers, including Robert Timms and Jerry Left of Charlevoix, were called to the

BIG ROCK BY-PRODUCT

Wilson Discounts Report Of Plutonium Hazards

Small quantities of the man-made element plutonium have been added to fuel bundles at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant "off and on" since May of 1969 without incident, William Wilson, public information officer at the plant, reported Monday.

Wilson revealed that the plant already is using the new fuel in small quantities after the Detroit Free Press reported that scientists are at odds over the safety of the new fissionable material.

The Free Press quoted former Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Glenn Seabord, who won a Nobel Prize for discovering plutonium, as calling his discovery "fiendishly toxic."

Seaborg reportedly said the element is so "unstable" that even small amounts, if they collide or touch, can produce a nuclear explosion.

Wilson said that plutonium actually is a by-product of present operations at the plant. Even without the addition of plutonium to fuel bundles, plutonium is responsible for between 15 and 20 percent of the heat generated by the nuclear reactor.

According to the Free Press, the Atomic Energy Commission last Dec. 6 gave Consumers permission to begin loading the reactor at Charlevoix with plutonium, stating that the element "does not present significant hazards considerations not described or implicit in statements of the Big Rock Point plant."

"There is reasonable assurance that the health and safety of the public will not be endangered," the AEC said.

Wilson said that plutonium will be added gradually to the fuel bundles and that by 1977 it will be the prime source of fuel, replacing uranium-235.

He said the plant is in the unusual position of creating its own fuel, since plutonium is one of the elements salvaged from expended fuel bundles in the plant.

The Free Press also said that on Dec. 16, the Big Rock plant experienced a sudden rise in radiation "150 times what is considered normal." A plant official notified the AEC of the incident a month later.

Wilson said the increase, which was still only a fraction of "allowable increase", occurred when the plant was cranking up after refueling. He said an alarm in the stack sounded and the reactor was shut down. Since then subsequent start-ups have been without incident.

New Trailer Court Needs Utilities

The Charlevoix City Council Monday night:

–Heard a request that the city extend water and sewage lines down Norwood-rd. to serve a trailer court in Charlevoix Township planned by William Bellows. Bellows said he has room for 24 units on his 24 acres of property near the corner of Norwood-rd. and Carpenter-st.

--Learned that Granger Engineering, Inc., of Cadillac stands ready to assist northern Michigan communities with engineering problems. Jim Granger, co-owner, attended the meeting to introduce himself.

--Heard a complaint by Gunnar Lundteigen that the move of the Dyksterhouse residence down Burns-st., as planned by Bill Stokes, will damage too many trees. Stokes already has his permit to move the two-story house from W. Dixon-ave. to a new location on Carson-ave.

–Gave Hal Forbrig 28 days to do something to improve his Colonial Club property on Meech-st. Forbrig, who was represented by attorney John Michael, says his hands are tied until the property on which the old clubhouse stands is removed from a mortgage on the apartment house nextdoor. The mortgage is held by Hartger and Willard of Grand Rapids. In the meantime, Michael said the iron gate has been replaced and the building secured against intruders.

--Authorized the Special Assessment Board to proceed with a special sewer assessment on May-st., Hampton-ct., Carpenter-st., Leonard-st. and Eaton-ct., involving 113 parcels of land. Cost of the project is estimated at $250,000, of which the city will pay about $30,000.

–Transferred $18,500 from the electric fund to the general fund; $4,000 from the electric fund to the water fund; $13,000 from the electric fund to the sewage fund; $20,000 from the electric fund to the public improvement fund; $4,817.28 from the parking meter fund to the general fund; $7,500 from the general fund to the local streets fund.

--Bought $10,000 in certificates of deposit from both the employe benefits fund and the special assessment fund and about $156,000 in CD's from the revenue sharing fund.

Board Weighs Staggered Bus Routes

A feasibility study on staggered school starting times will be conducted during the coming weeks, Clement J. Wagner of the transportation committee of the Charlevoix Board of Education, told the board at a special meeting Monday night.

He said that with the growth in the district, two additional buses will be needed if the present bus routes and schedules are to be followed. The study will be conducted to determine if a change in the school starting times would permit the district to get by with the number of buses now in use. At the present time 14 buses travel 800 miles daily.

The study will also determine if maximum use is being obtained from equipment now on hand.

He went on to say that the school district has reached the point where new bus routes are being added and it is also necessary to replace other buses. This can become a costly situation. If staggered starting times at the High School, Middle School and at Elementary School will relieve the situation, the possibility of utilizing the system may be initiated.

Supt. Robert L. Miller added that generally speaking, the costs of bus drivers would be cut down for there would be a saving on fringe benefits and other expenses.

If the staggered starting time is initiated, it will not be until fall, Wagner said.

A delegation of students from the senior class was present to request permission from the board for a senior trip to Cedar Point, Ohio, in May. Tom Duke, class president and spokesman for the delegation, asked that the trip begin either May 23 or 24.

A survey made by the class reveals that approximately 75 of the more than 100 in the class will make the trip. Others are not going for various reasons which were listed on a sheet distributed by Duke.

The trip, via chartered bus from Charlevoix to Sandusky and return with one night at the resort, one meal a day for three days and tickets for rides would cost an estimated $3,610 to $3,720, depending on the number of students. The class presently has $3,500 in its treasury and has plans for an additional $400.00 for an anticipated surplus.

The class was advised of the 180 day attendance required by the state. To justify this, students would be required to write a report on the educational worth of the trip. Class advisors Nelson Green and William Murray will accompany the class as chaperones with two others to be named.

The board, after the lengthy discussion, gave its approval to the proposed trip.

A Fire Marshal's report on the Southgate Service station where classes in auto mechanics and small motors are taught was discussed briefly. Robert Bogart, business manager, will present proposals relating to the heating plants at the next meeting.

Dale Burge, athletic director, was present to make a report on the school's athletic programs. He was that teams participate in 181 events in which either officials or bus transportation are necessary during the school year. This includes fall sports including football, JV football, cross country, golf and girls' volleyball for a total of 45 trips during the fall; seventh and eighth grade basketball, freshmen basketball, JV basketball, Varsity, girls Varsity basketball, wrestling, and skiing for a total of 118 in winter sports and boys track and girls track, for an additional 20 trips or officials for spring sports.

He also listed many of the other needs of the program including football lockers, a weight machine which would be impossible at this time for there is no space for it, a fence around the football team area, improved lights on the football field, a seven-man sled for use by the football team, new and improved laundry facilities and improved visitors bleachers at the football field, to name a few of the needs.

He mentioned the cost of equipment and said good equipment was necessary if you are going to field a team.

He spoke at length the scheduling problems for all the teams participating in various program and of the need for an additional track coach and the need for a track program in the Middle School.

He also said that more than 250 boys and girls participate in the athletic programs being offered in the High School.

March 12 and 26 were listed as meeting dates next month. The 1973-74 budget, the annual school election and teacher evaluations were named as future topics for discussion.

Other bands winning the top rating were the East Jordan Concert Band (Class C), directed by Dwight Smith; the Petoskey High School Band (Class B), directed by Max Smith; and the Gaylord Symphony Band (Class B), directed by Gary Waldo.

Fluoride Treatments Set For Non-Protected Kids

The topical fluoride program will again be held this summer for Charlevoix area children who do not drink from a fluoridated water supply and for certain children recently moved into the City of Charlevoix who have not been served by a fluoridated water system.

Topical fluoride applications are being offered to children in specific grades and according to residence as follows:

a) Preschoolers (3 years and over) second, fifth and eighth graders who do not drink water from the Charlevoix water supply.

b) Eighth graders who have lived in Charlevoix less than seven years,

c) Fifth graders who lived here less than five years, and

d) Preschoolers and second graders with less than three years residence in the city.

At approximately these periods many new teeth have erupted into the mouths of children and they should be protected with fluoride. The program is conducted annually so that children not eligible this year will have an opportunity to participate in the future.

An effort has been made to contact the parents of all eligible school children in the Charlevoix school district. Others in the district who are interested in having their children receive the topical fluoride applications but who do not have the necessary registration cards may contact the program co-chairmen, Mrs. Linda Oostmeyer at 347-3555 or Mrs. Jean Davis at 547-4105.

The topical fluoride program is conducted under the direction of the Michigan Department of Health and sponsored by the Charlevoix District Health Department in cooperation with the Charlevoix District Schools. A dental hygienist, employed by the Michigan Department of Health, will be available to operate the Charlevoix clinic in May (definite date yet to be established). The procedure involved in the fluoride treatment consists of four visits to the clinic. The child's teeth are cleansed on the first visit and a fluoride solution is applied directly to the surface of the teeth. The fluoride application only is then repeated during the three succeeding visits. A minimal fee of $4 is required of participants to cover costs of operating the clinic.

This technique has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about forty percent, compared with sixty to sixty-five percent reduction obtained with fluoridated water, according to Department of Health Information. In addition to providing protection against cavities, the program offers a valuable dental experience for children with no discomfort. Dental health education by the clinic personnel including instruction in the proper method of brushing teeth, also is an important part of the program.

Friske Heads Am. Party, Tough Platform Adopted

Richard Friske, former Republican state representative from the 106th District, was elected state chairman of the American Independent Party at the group's convention recently in Flint, according to Rita Rosenthal, secretary of the Charlevoix County chapter.

Friske joined the American Independent Party after losing the August primary last year to Ralph Ostling of Roscommon.

At the convention, delegates voted to change the name of the party to simply the American Party.

Serving with Friske as chairman will be Roland Smith, vice chairman; Mrs. Josephine Chapman, 2nd vice chairman; Westly Baller, secretary; and Deloyd Hessling, treasurer.

Delegates attending the convention from Charlevoix County were Lorraine Hoffman, chairman; Gary Graye, executive committee; Ivon Muchlavitch, ways and means committee; Diane Graye, campaign committee; and Judy Muchlavitch, party organization committee.

On platform resolutions, the delegates voted to:

–Repeal the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

–Change the party symbol from a likeness of George Wallace to the American eagle.

–Support a $20 million lawsuit against CBS, NBC and ABC charging an alleged news blackout on American Party activities during the last national election.

–Support the Liberty Amendment which would do away with the federal income tax.

–Conduct a petition drive to protest as unconstitutional a two-cent gasoline tax for mass transit.

–Support the death penalty for capital offenses.

Protest any form of regional government.

–Protest the recent Supreme Court decision supporting abortions after the people of Michigan rejected abortion reform at the polls.

–Take a stand against the rebuilding of North Vietnam with U.S. tax dollars.

Library Notes

Edith Gilbert has recently presented the Library with a copy of "Let's Set the Table --a dramatic and unusual presentation dealing with all phases of table settings from a Lazy Susan Breakfast to a formal dessert setting. The pages, of colorful green and orange and red, carry suggestions and how-to-do-it ideas for making entertaining a pleasure. Special credit should be given to the artist responsible for the unusual layouts and graphic charts. The combination of talents has resulted in an extremely attractive and helpful addition to the kitchen of any hostess who wants to entertain successfully and properly.

New on the Library shelves in "Green Darkness" in which the author, Anya Seton does for the 16th century England what her Katherine did for the 14th century. This great new novel weaves mysticism, suspense and mystery into a web stretching from the 16th century to the present day. We meet Celia living in 1968, and then the reader is carried back to an earlier time when Celia lived and knew the same people. It is an exciting, frightening, absorbing book written by a foremost author.

When Georgette Heyer comes out with a new book, it's banner news. "A Lady of Quality" is another of her light-hearted and spirited romances which will delight her ever-increasing throng of readers. The setting is Bath in the last years of the Regency. The lady of quality is Miss Annis Wychwood, rich, beautiful, independent and, at twenty-nine, considered long past marriageable age. What happens when the charming heroine meets the irresistible hero makes this one of the entertaining novels we have come to expect from Miss Heyer.

"Gentle Greaves" is by Ernest Raymond, an English author whose "Georgian Love Story" was one of last year's major fiction success. He was made a Knight Officer of Merit of the Italian Republic for his books dealing with Italy and he has been a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature for many years. From this master storyteller comes a marvelous love story, although actually it could be called a tale of three loves since it deals with a boy's love for his father, a young man's love for a beautiful, delicate girl, and an old man's tender affection for his daughter. It is an absorbing story – the kind that doesn't come along too often.

Cutter Sundew's Bubbler Topic at Library Meet

By Edith Gilbert

About 50 persons were present to view a color movie entitled "The 8th Mission", a resume of the exciting work of the Coast Guard in it's "service to humanity" at the Charlevoix Library Sunday night.

Speaker for the evening was Ensign Arthur Butler who described the new bubble Coast Guard vessels as it cuts through the ice. This new system which is now being tested here is composed of pipes under the hull through which air is pumped. This creates a cushion of air bubbles around the hull which prevents friction.

The 183-foot Sundew is named after a carnivorous plant that eats flies was another hit of obscure information passed along during the refreshment hour where punch and cake was served.

Other guests during the evening included Lt. Commander Jeff Bull from the Sundew and Chief Robert Smith, Commander in Charge of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station, and Petty Officer David Otero who brought several lamps which he made of wooden blocks and some string art for display. He expects to exhibit these at the Hobbycraft Fair this summer.

Recruiting officer Don Schneider from Traverse City was also present. A new pamphlet entitled Mrs. ? Miss? Ms? designed to appeal to women between the ages of 20 to 35 along with other literature is available at the Charlevoix Library for anyone interested in volunteering for duty with the Coast Guard.

Women are needed to fill clerical and bookkeeping type jobs at the present time. Anyone who is interested may contact Chief Smith at the Charlevoix Station.

Ltr. Cmdr. Bull feels that the servicemen today are quite different from the men who were drafted in the 40's. Today's Coast Guardsmen for the most part are married and they are volunteers who want to be part of the community in which they live.

Red Rayders Chalk Up Win Against Chiefs

Charlevoix Red Rayders won their second game hand-running Friday night, defeating the Cheboygan Chiefs 66 to 60 on the Chief's home court. The win was Charlevoix's fifth of the season.

It was a come-from-behind victory for the Rayders, who found themselves with a tie-score of 16-all after the first period and trailing by one point, 29-28, at the half and trailing by two points, 44-42, at the end of three periods of play.

However, in the finale, the Rayders caught fire, pocketing 24 points to the Chiefs' 16 for the final six-point winning spread.

High point man for Charlevoix was lanky Dale Boss who racked up 17 points on 7 field goals and 3 free throws.

Close behind were Jerry Skippergosh with 13 (5 and 3); Steve McClellan, 12 (5 and 2); and Randy Faust, 11 (5 and 1). Also scoring were Dennis Fram, 9 points on 4 field goals and 1 free throw and Clint Berlage, 4 points on 1 field goal and 2 free throws.

Jim Watkins stole the show for the Chiefs, scoring more than half of his team's points. Watkins scored 31 points on 12 field goals and 7 free throws.

Following were Smith with 8; Jewell, 7; Panosso, 6; LaFrinere, 4; and Clark and Towe 2 each.

The Rayders' last game before the tournaments will be Friday at Grayling.

Charlevoix Included In Ambulance Study

A survey of ambulance services in 18 northern Michigan counties, including Charlevoix County, will begin shortly, according to the North Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning Council, Inc., headquartered at 1515 Howard-st., Petoskey.

The survey hopefully will provide the council with data necessary for the development of a comprehensive ambulance service plan, including the training of emergency medical technicians.

Patrick D. Russell of Lansing, a consultant for the council, will contact all licensed ambulance operators in the area to arrange interviews.

"Because of current problems in ambulance service in Petoskey and Traverse City, the council feels that the information which will be gathered by this study is needed before intelligent decisions can be made about future ambulance services in the entire area," according to Victor Sztengel, council director.

Writer Catches Color Of Ski Season Wind-Up

By Pam Fochtman

Five a.m.: The dawn sky has long since turned from black to blue as the Charlevoix Ski Team members prepare for their journey to Sugarloaf. There's a crunching sound as the boots hit the hard, frozen snow, then the echoing voices of the coaches, Miss Hinds and Mr. Murray break the stillness of the dawn.

"All right, load your skis on the bus. Let's go!"

As each skier arrives, it's the same message.

For the majority it is a long ride. You would rather linger, to let the rising sun awaken and take the stiffness out of you, but the coaches encourage you to exercise, then begin looking at the course.

It reaches 9 a.m. The first Charlevoix racer carefully edges forward into position, trying not to disturb the wax, stopping with the toes of their boots just behind the electronic start. Their skis lie in the hard-packed snow by those who have gone before. They arch forward and lean on the extended poles.

It is almost time for the ten second count down - a world of time ticking away in slow motion. The racers moves his skis back and fourth. The snow speaks in the February cold, and the sun in the pale sky offers little warmth.

A hand falls on the right shoulder and the warning has been given. You are confident and strong. Your mind starts down the course.

The ten second warning has gone by and now you are part of the five second countdown, your body picking up rhythm. It is time to explode with- ONE- the signal that allows the initial thrust with your poles...the quick skate...the folding tuck into your first gate, and the confidence that you, the C.H.S. skier will do as well as each of you did this season, come next year.

All of this took place Feb. 15 when the team competed in the regionals held at Sugarloaf. With the 17 area schools, the C.H.S. girls placed seventh and the boys sixth. Honors going to the girls were Terri Morris placing fifth in both giant slalom and slalom. Gretchen Olsen placed sixth in giant slalom and seventh in slalom.

The conference meet was held Feb. 21 at Sylvan Knob, ending the C.H.S. Ski Team season. With the seven competing schools, the Charlevoix girls placed third and the boys fourth. Terri Morris placed second in giant slalom and third in slalom. Gretchen Olsen placed second in giant slalom and fifth in slalom.

YOUNGSTERS and adults line up for helicopter rides offered by Tom Duke as part of the Lions Club's Winter Outing held Sunday afternoon at Ferry Beach.

Boy, 9, Awarded S'Mobile

Nine-year-old Greg Whitley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Whitley, 511 W. Lincoln, Charlevoix, was awarded the snowmobile in the Lions Club's annual winter outing Sunday at Ferry Beach.

The snowmobile suit went to Jack Erber of Trout Creek and the snowmobile boots were won by Gary Murdick, 110 Belvedere-ave.

Chuck Winnell of Upright-st. won the toboggan offered by the Little League.

In races, Gary Pettis placed first, Pete Zink and Jim Pettis third among machines in the 300 cc class in one heat.

In the 340 Class (2 heats) Tim Coen was first, Bob Alger second and Jim Marsh third.

In the 400 Class (2 heats) David Mutz placed first and Mark Essenburg second.

In the 440 Class, T. Charbonneau placed first and J. Drost second.

Lion Don Brown reports there were several other winners but they failed to register after their respective races.

Next year, the club plans to have a pre-registration for racers and to award trophies.

More than 150 snowmobilers and their machines showed up for the annual outing in bone-chilling weather. The chuck wagon and the soup kitchen did a marvelous business.

Notice to Telephone Customers of Proposed Rate Increases

For Michigan Bell Customers:

Michigan Bell Telephone Company filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission an application to increase its rates and charges. Along with that application the Company also filed its direct evidence upon which the application was based. The application states, among other things, that the revenue produced by existing rates is unreasonably and unjustly low, and that to attain the level of earnings previously approved by the Commission, the Company requests rate increases and changes in service offerings which would produce additional annual revenue from its intrastate operations in the amount of $29.7 million based on 1972 operating results.

Notice of Hearings

The Michigan Public Service Commission will hold public hearings on the application of Michigan Bell Telephone Company for a rate increase. The hearings are to determine whether, and to what extent the existing rates, charges, and service offerings should be altered because they provide either an inadequate or excessive level of earnings to the Company.

The dates and places fixed for the hearings are as follows:

1. The first hearing will be held on March 26, 1973, at 9:30 a.m. in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan. This hearing will be in the nature of a pre-hearing conference to identify intervenors and their interests, to establish a schedule of further hearings beyond those established by this notice, to agree upon procedures to discuss the issues involved in the Company's application, and similar matters.

2. A further hearing will be held on April 11, 1973 commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the first floor Banquet Room, Veteran's Memorial Building, 154 W. Jefferson, Detroit, Michigan, for the purpose of receiving testimony or statements of position from all persons desiring to be heard on this subject. An evening session will be held at the same location commencing at 7:00 p.m. on the same date. Persons desiring to testify or make a statement of position may do so during the hearings in Detroit or in subsequent hearings in Lansing without formal intervention.

3. Hearings will continue on April 16, 1973, at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing testimony or statements from any interested persons and for the further purpose of cross-examination of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company witnesses. Such hearings will continue from day to day thereafter or on such adjourned dates as the Hearings Examiner may set.

Persons intending to petition for leave to intervene in this case shall file an original and 6 copies of a petition to intervene with the Commission at least five days prior to the date of the first hearing on March 26, 1973 in accordance with Commission Rules of Practice and Procedure. Persons filing such a petition to intervene may request from the Company a copy of its direct case. Persons filing petitions to intervene subsequent thereto will be required to take the case and schedule as they find it at the time of their intervention.

Michigan Bell Telephone Company delivered for filing copies of its proposed direct testimony and exhibits, including the proposed new schedule of rates with the Michigan Public Service Commission on February 15, 1973. Interested persons may examine that material during business hours in the offices of the Commission, Fifth floor, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 or at any business office of Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Effect on Customers

The changes in rates, if approved as proposed, will affect residence and business customers as follows:

1. Proposed increases in basic residence rates range from 0 cents to 90 cents per month. No increase is proposed in the rates for Budget Services. One-party and two-party flat rate residence service in Detroit will not be changed.

2. Basic monthly exchange rates for business customers with measured service would be unchanged, but local message charges for these customers would increase from the present 4½ cents to 5 cents. Business Metro calls would be increased 1 cent from 6 cents to 7 cents. Proposed exchange rate increases for flat-rate business customers range from 70 cents per month for 1- and 2-party service to $2.10 for a flat-rate PBX trunk. Increases for semi-public coin service would range from 50 cents to $1.60 per month. All single line instruments, furnished with business service, including the first one on the line, would be charged for at $1.65 per month (excluding coin telephones). In addition there will be a separate charge of 40 cents per month for each instrument equipped for TOUCH-TONE® calling.

3. The line charge portion for installing telephone service in a home or business where service has never been provided would be increased from the present $10.00 to $25.00.

4. Residence and business customers would be charged for calls to Directory Assistance (Information) starting in 1974-1975. Customers could make five calls per month to Directory Assistance at no charge. For over five calls the charge would be 10 cents each.

5. Rates for Centrex, PBX and Key services would be restructured resulting in increases in monthly charges for most customers.

6. Nickel-A-Minute service would be discontinued and replaced by Budget Toll Dialing Service.

7. Long Distance calls within Michigan would be increased 1 cent per minute for operator-handled calls beyond 25 miles and a lesser amount for dialed calls. Monthly rates for WATS, INWATS and TWO WAY WATS would be increased 3% rounded to the nearest dollar. Hourly WATS rates for usage over allowance under measured service would be increased 3% rounded to the nearest 25 cents.

The details of the above changes will be given to all Michigan Bell Telephone Company customers by mail. If after receiving this mailed information, you have any questions regarding it, please call or visit your local Michigan Bell business office.

The changes proposed by the Company are subject to approval by the Commission after public hearings. The Commission may approve different service offerings or rates which may be higher or lower than those proposed.

Commission jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 13 and 21 of Act 206, P.A. 1913, as amended, M.C.L.A. 484.101 et seq., Sections 3 and 4 of Act 419, P.A. 1919, as amended, M.C.L.A. 460.51 et seq., Sections 1, 4, 6 and 6a of Act 3, P.A. 1939, as amended, M.C.L.A. 460.1 et seq., Chapter 4 of Act 306, P.A. 1969, as amended, M.C.L.A. 24.201 et seq.; and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R 460.11.

This notice is published pursuant to [illegible]

For customers of Telephone Companies other than Michigan Bell:

In order to have uniform long distance telephone rates throughout Michigan, all other telephone companies operating in Michigan concur in the long distance rates presently established for Michigan Bell.

Accordingly, any changes in Michigan Bell's intrastate long distance rates, charges, and service offerings approved by the Commission, including those proposed in items 6 and 7, will also apply to customers of telephone companies other than Michigan Bell for long distance service within Michigan.

The attention of customers of other telephone companies is directed to the Notice of Hearings and those matters pertaining to long distance service set forth in the information to Michigan Bell customers.

Details of the proposed changes in long distance rates, charges, and service offerings proposed by Michigan Bell are available by calling or visiting your telephone company business office or any Michigan Bell Telephone Company business office.

Cities, Counties Share Highway Fund Receipts

Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections for the fourth quarter of 1972 – up 12.4 percent over the same period in 1971 – are now being distributed to Michigan counties and municipalities, the State Highway Commission announced today.

State Highway Director John P Woodford said net receipts of the Highway Fund for the October through December period, totaled $104,332,739, an increase of $11,475,439.

All state taxes on gasoline and diesel fuel, plus license plate fees, go into the Highway Fund.

Woodford said the unusually high increase of 12.4 percent over the same quarter in 1971 can be traced to a 31 percent increase in license plate fees at the end of 1972. The Secretary of State's new program of issuing license plates by mail is largely credited with the huge increase of early registrations.

After deduction of collection costs by the Department of State and 1.5 percent for the Michigan Waterways Commission, the funds are distributed according to a formula established by the Legislature.

The present formula provides 46 percent of the funds for the Department of State Highways; 34 percent for the state's 83 counties; and 20 percent for the state's 530 incorporated cities and villages.

Under this formula, the Highway Department will receive $48 million as its share of fourth quarter receipts: counties, $34.3 million after deduction of $1.08 million for previously distributed snow removal assistance; and incorporated cities and villages, $20.8 million.

Fourth quarter distribution amounts to counties, compared to the same period in 1971, are:

Cheboygan Defeats JV Squad, 53-48

Junior Varsity cagers lost to their Cheboygan counterparts Friday, 53 to 48.

Charlevoix had a good start, chalking up 16 points to the Chiefs' 13 in the first period.

However, Charlevoix came through with only 8 in the second period, compared to 14 for the Chiefs, giving the Cheboygan team a three-point edge, 27-24 at the half.

In the third period, Charlevoix came back with 14, but the Chiefs turned in 18, giving the Cheboygan team an 8-point margin.

Charlevoix managed 10 points in the final period on field goals, compared to Cheboygan's 8, but the last minute rally didn't last long enough to put the Rayders ahead.

All of Charlevoix's points were scored on field goals.

High-point man was Mike Streeter with 18, followed by Ron Kewagshken, 16; Chuck Faust, 8; Dan Greene, 4; and Jim Donaldson, 2.

For Cheboygan, Tallman had 14, Lange, 13; Gowell, 10; Ormsbee, 8; Dave Lindsay; 6; and Eustice, 2.

O Say Can You Sing?

Before every Charlevoix football and basketball game, the High School Band breaks into the stirring strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" and players and spectators dutifully rise to their feet and face the flag.

But not one in ten even attempts to sing the words of the National Anthem.

We'll have to admit that the anthem is not the easiest song in the world to sing. It ranges so far up and down the keyboard that you would have to have professional vocal training to even begin to do it justice.

But "The Star Spangled Banner" is our National Anthem, the only one we have, and our opportunities to sing it are altogether too few and too far between.

Males might have to change octaves from time to time throughout the song in order to hit the high notes, but who cares? They're not auditioning for the Metropolitan Operä and no one is waiting in the wings to pull them off center stage with a hook if they hit a wrong note.

What really galls is to see full-grown men standing at attention, eyes glued to the flag, lips tight but with jaws working furiously on a wad of chewing gum while the band plays the National Anthem.

Think about it. Let's really raise the roof the next time the band starts to play "O say can you see....." And leave your chewing gum at home.

Unborn Need Emancipator

Feb. 15, 1973

Bob.

Just wanted you to know that you should be commended for your last printing of the abortion decision by our Supreme Court – the Christian idea, that is! Enclosed is a clipping I thought was very appropriate also.

Thank you,
Mary M. Gelken

(The clipping shows a kneeling statue of Abraham Lincoln. The cutlines read: The Emancipator: Tomorrow the nation observes the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, shown here in the sculpture of Herbert Houck at Washington Cathedral. A little more than a century ago, after the Supreme Court had ruled that Negro slaves were not humans, he freed the slaves. His anniversary has a particular timeliness in 1973 when the Supreme Court ruled that infants in the womb had no human rights, and now unborn children wait for their emancipator.)

Clockwise

Neverville Revisited

By BOB CLOCK

Clockwise was as surprised as anyone in town last week when Neverville, Mich. popped back in the news. I had assumed the town had washed into Lake Michigan years ago and would never be heard from again.

If you followed Clockwise in the Petoskey News-Review back in the late 1960's you might remember Neverville, the tiny Upper Peninsula which had turned it's back on the 20th century in favor of a quieter pace of living.

At the time I thought that Neverville was a good idea. I had been catching quite a bit of flak from irate readers on just about every subject I dared to write about, so decided to create my own town, populated with my own kind of people and let them catch the Old Harry for a while.

The people of Neverville were among the first in the state to realize that super highways, flashy automobiles, consolidated schools, glittering billboards, more and bigger industries and urban renewal were not necessarily indicative of Progress. Nor were such accoutrements a necessary perrogative for happiness, the pursuit of which was their main goal in life.

Their jovial Chamber of Commerce manager, a rotund gentleman by the name of Status Quo, managed to have Neverville taken from the state road maps. The sign indicating the road to Neverville on U.S. Highway No. 2 was removed. The road into Neverville soon fell into disrepair and those residents wishing to communicate with the outside world used an old wagon trail from the lumbering era, scarcely wide enough for two cars to pass. They were proud of the fact that there had never been a fatal accident on the Neverville-rd.

The town was a Currier and Ives print, with trim white framed dwellings lining its peaceful streets, sleighs and surreys carrying Nevervillians about their business and an immaculate downtown section that survived by catering to the needs of Neverville residents at prices they could afford.

Half the town was engaged in the education of Neverville youngsters, with businessmen and tradesmen teaching their respective skills to the next generation on a volunteer basis.

Every home in Neverville had a garden plot and every housewife in Neverville "put down" in Mason jars a large proportion of the food her family would need for the coming year.

The elderly and sick were taken care of by relatives and friends. There was no need for welfare.

When the people of Neverville recognized the futility of the Vietnam War, they closed their draft board and shipped their conscription records to Afghanistan "by mistake." The records were never found and no more young men from Neverville were drafted.

The first installment of "The Neverville Papers" was scarcely on the streets when I began receiving telephone calls, letters and postcards from area residents asking how in the world they could get to Neverville. They wanted to spend their vacation there.

One woman called from East Jordan to say that her bags were packed, the family was waiting in the car and would I please give her directions.

Oh, how it hurt to have to admit that there was no such place as Neverville!

The influx of mail became heavier with each succeeding installment, and finally I was forced to write a form letter explaining that Neverville didn't really exist – except in the minds and hearts of those who remembered such towns from their childhood.

I was surprised at the time that so many people missed the significance of such obviously manufactured names as "Status Quo," the chamber manager; "C.T. Hall," the mayor of Neverville; "Ed Jucation," the superintendent of schools; and "Morris Chair," the owner of Neverville's largest industry, a furniture factory.

After four or five installments, I abandoned Neverville. The residents had said their piece and I felt better for it.

Then last Monday Jack Rader called from Petoskey and told me to turn on WJML quick! Neverville had been resurrected on the morning opinion program, "Sound Off."

Sure enough, the station was receiving call after call with references to my fabled town. Seems the first caller wanted to know how to get to Neverville and there was plenty of response. One woman said you turned toward Lake Michigan near the Cut River Bridge.

Then a gentleman with a quavery voice got on the line to say he was calling from Neverville. Claimed there were twins born in the town the night before, bringing the population to 52.

Finally program moderator Mike Herrington summoned Clockwise to the phone and I was put through the agony of admitting all over again that poor little Neverville never existed.

But I am sure no one paid any attention. Other callers came on the line to say they had been there, or they knew exactly where the town is and would be only too happy to give directions.

Now I am beginning to have my doubts. When it comes right down to it, Neverville is my kind of town. The next time I visit the U.P. I'm going to do a little scouting around to see if can find it. As I understand it, you turn south at the Cut River Bridge and follow a bumpy road...

If it Fitz

Flying High

By JIM FITZGERALD

I am fascinated by the TV commercial that urges me to Fly United and get a free golf lesson from Arnold Palmer in the airplane cocktail bar.

Come to think, I am fascinated simply by the idea of bars in airplanes. Some of these airborne taverns even contain pianos and tenors singing Melancholy Baby. The world has truly come a long and marvelous way since Tailspin Tommy and Scorchy Smith (Hello there, nostalgia lovers. Whatever happened to Jimmy Allen?)

Up until now, my idea of how to get to heaven was by railroad, in a club car. There was a khaki period in my life when I often used this mode of transportation to get from here to there – and when I got there I would simply board another club car and go back to here. Getting there was half the fun and getting here was the other half.

Club car travel enabled me to do simultaneously 2 of the things I like most:

1) Stand at a bar with 1 foot up on a rail, leaning on 1 elbow. Some people gain a feeling of security by curling up in bed. But this is my fetal position and it has nothing to do with booze. I also like to lean on soda fountains and front desks in hotels, just so long as they have a rail for my foot. I don't know why. I can't know everything.

2) Watch the world go by outside my window. Ahh. I'm a peeking Tom in reverse. I like to peek out of windows, to see what the guy next door is doing. I always stand back from the glass, so he can't see me, just in case his car is stuck in the snow. Hernia. But the view from home and office windows doesn't change much. On a train, it's flick, flick, flic, different picture in every window every second. Beautiful. Once, between St. Louis, and Chicago, with 1 foot up, I discovered it took me 52 telephone poles to chug-a-lug 1 bottle of beer.

I never liked airplane travel. Eating off those trays makes me feel like a kid in a highchair and twice as sloppy. It's nice to have a stewardess bring me a drink but I can't prop my foot up on her phony smile. There's nothing flicking by the windows except clouds. Did you ever see a cloud you recognized from a previous trip? Boring.

But if TV tells it true; if Arnold Palmer is really teaching his swing to barflies in flight; well . . . please pass my hat with the goggles and stick my bubble gum on the wing for good luck.

Naturally, I realize TV commercials are made in fantasy land. I can hardly expect to find Palmer in every airplane bar. I'll settle for a pool table and a used car salesman to pluck. Or, as long as my fetal position is possible, I'll be content to time my chug-a-lugs against the passing clouds.

But if Palmer ever does saunter in, smiling his Fly United smile, I have got a real problem for him. He can improve my golf game 100 percent if he can show me how to drive the ball with 1 foot propped up on the tee marker.

Upward and Upward.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

The early butcher certainly fulfilled both definitions of his title as given by Webster.

He dressed carcasses for meat from the farmers sled to the pot or pan with knife, cleaver, and saw. The slang term means one who botches things up. As a "botcher" he was even better qualified in the opinion of his profit minded employer who moaned that with beef at eight cents a pound one should never fraternize with the ever-scheming customers.

Such intimacy invariably resulted in free suet for boot grease and nickle soup bones adorned with a pound or more of meat. The quantity of scraps from the meat processing appeared to be governed more by wistful youngsters and their ever hungry poochs then by any concern for the interests of the prematurely bald shopkeeper.

The small mark up on lunch meat bypassed the till when the half inch thick heel of the loaf was tossed in free by the jovial meat slicer. He gave generous samples of cheese to purchasers as freely as he donated the wooden drums they came in, to serve as basketball hoops on the barn wall.

When he delivered orders after store hours with horse and sleigh he gave free rides to the children who hitches on with sled. He sure was the givinest guy around!

Though somewhat inept at merchandising, he excelled in the art of estimating weights be it cheese, butter, fish, beef, or ground meat. He ladled hamburger or sausage from an enameled pan, and butter from a wooden tub within an ounce of any requested amount. He could exactly slice a pound and a half of cheese, four pounds of roast, cut up two pounds of stew meat, or tell the weight of a fish hanging from his forefinger by the gills.

Plucked turkeys and chickens, whiskered with pin feathers, hung head down from an overhead wire. He would heft the designated bird, state its weight, dress it out, and hand it wrapped and priced to the customer while inquiring about Florabelle's arthritis.

Slowly he drew the curtains on a 20 year's performance when slide rule cost accounting and mandatory use of the scales ushered in the master meat cutter. Ironically, he helped set the stage for the surgical team approach of our pre-packaged society by his persistence in messing up the profit structure of the developing supermarket. With stubborn pride he refused to charge the customer for an occasional overweight estimate, and compensated for the slightest shortage with conscientious generosity.

Our "butcher-botcher" had his day, and part of his nights too, plying his trade. He knew about the WPA, NRA, and the OPA; but to him the CPA was a bookkeeper.

Today we have two CPA's. One records the profits, the other the complaints; both of which seem to grow in direct proportion. The complaint department is our Consumer Protection Agency–at the federal level no less.

Yup, necessity is the mother of invention!

Zoning Questions & Answers

Q. If the Planning Commission rezones property at this time, will these actions still be legal if the voters say no to county wide Zoning? C.C.

A. All actions taken by the Planning Commission will be cancelled by a no vote on the Countywide Zoning Program. This means that any land use that is proposed for a rezone, but that is turned down by the County Board will be allowed to develop if the Zoning Program is voted down. This is particularly meaningful in the event a use such as a sawmill or junkyard is turned down by the Board. If the zoning is voted down, these used could be developed.

Three of the four years were spent in the South Pacific where he served in the jungles of New Guinea and later in the Philippines. For valor in action he was awarded one of the United States highest awards, the Distinguished Service Cross. He also was awarded the Purple Heart, medal after being wounded in action.

He returned to Charlevoix in 1945 and was married to the former Elverta Johnson the same year. They resided here for several years before moving to southern Michigan about 25 years ago. For the past 19 years he has been employed by a construction company. He was a member of the Commerce Township Fire Department.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, Orin C., Larry and Gary, all of Walled Lake; one grandchild; three sisters, Mrs. Michael Saganek of St. Clair Shores, Mrs. Harry Howard of East Jordan and Mrs. Homer Hill of Fremont, and four brothers, R.M. Sutton of Charlevoix, Harry of East Jordan and Robert and Burton of Walled Lake.

scene immediately and the grim search for Mr. and Mrs. Yentz began. Also taking part in the search were State Police divers from Traverse City, Hart, Manistee, Saginaw, Bridgeport and Houghton Lake and three divers from the Antrim County Sheriff's Department.

The East Jordan Iron Works kept its offices open throughout the long weekend as headquarters for the search.

Mrs. Yentz' body was found about 500 feet north of the spot where the snowmobiles slid through the ice. The swift current of the Jordan River, which empties into the South Arm a few hundred yards away, swept the bodies in a northerly direction under the ice, according to deputies.

The fast river current also prevents a hard freeze at the south end of the lake.

Funeral for James Curtiss was held Monday at the United Methodist Church in Boyne City, with burial in Maplelawn Cemetery. He was in the first grade at the Boyne City Elementary School. Mrs. Yentz' body was taken to the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey.

Big Rock Plant Clean, State Health Tests Show

Air, Milk, Water Checked Daily

The State Health Department confirmed Friday that it is continuing to monitor the safety of Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear plant on a daily basis.

In a telephone interview with the Courier, Joseph Hennigan, radiological engineer, said his department runs continuous tests on air particulate, vapor and external radiation in the vicinity of the Big Rock Point plant and other nuclear facilities in Michigan.

The interview was prompted by an article in the Detroit Free Press Feb. 26 claiming that the addition of plutonium to the fuel charge at the plant may constitute a health hazard to residents of the area.

The article said that "several hundred tons" of plutonium would be added to the fuel rods.

In reality, only 300 pounds of plutonium will be used when the new method of refueling is completed in five years, according to William Wilson, plant public information officer.

Hennigan said that his department's tests at Big Rock Point show no increase in radiation in the vicinity of the plant.

He said background radiation is present, as it is everywhere, but that the level has been dropping ever since the nuclear powers ceased the testing of atomic weapons in the atmosphere.

The Health Department also runs continuous tests on drinking water in the area as well as on milk from dairy herds in the vicinity. Neither the water nor the milk tests have ever shown any increase in radiation.

"We have never found anything attributable to reactor operations," Hennigan asserted.

He emphasized that the tests are parallel to tests run by Consumers Power Co., but they are conducted independently with the assistance of personnel assigned to District Health Department No. 3.

MORE THAN 450 area residents attended a casserole supper at the American Legion Hall Friday evening, with all proceeds going to the Keeley Smith Fund. The daughter of Chief and Mrs. Robert Smith, Keeley, 13, is a victim of leukemia and has been hospitalized nine times in the past year. Above, Mrs. Richard Wood and Mrs. Harry Custer arrange donated casseroles before first diners arrive. More than 60 main-dish casseroles were donated, in addition to dozens of pies and cakes. The supper was sponsored by the Charlevoix Women's Club.

$911 Raised For Keeley At Potluck

Mrs. William Brady reports that $911.70 was raised last Friday at a casserole supper at the American Legion Hall for Keeley Smith, 13, a victim of leukemia.

Mrs. Brady says that more than 450 meals were served from 60 donated main-dish casseroles and dozens of desserts and salads.

An addition $160 was raised by men of the Coast Guard who sold tickets for a bicycle.

The funds will help defray Keeley's hospital expenses.

Firm Says Plutonium Will Lessen Hazard

The addition of plutonium to the fuel charge at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant will, if anything, reduce the already minimal chance of radiation contamination in the event of a "leak."

This was the jist of a message conveyed to a group of area businessmen and civic leaders who met at the First State Bank last Tuesday night to hear a panel of power company officials explain why plutonium is being added gradually to the fuel rods at the nuclear plant, located five miles northeast of Charlevoix on U.S. 31.

Plutonium, it appears, is a rather stodgy element that doesn't travel very far from home, even when it has the chance.

The meeting was called by a group of area bankers, headed by Tom Duke of Charlevoix, who were concerned over a story in the Detroit Free Press on Feb. 26 by Staul Friedman of the newspaper's Washington staff. The story quoted the discoverer of plutonium, Glenn Seaborg, as describing his brain-child as "fiendishly toxic."

The article also quoted Dr. Ernest Sternglass, director of the radiology physics laboratory at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, who said the change from uranium to plutonium in the Big Rock Point reactor raised "the danger possibilities by a factor of 100."

On Dec. 6, 1972, the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) gave Consumers permission to increase the number of fuel bundles containing plutonium at Big Rock Point over the next several years.

Contrary to the Free Press article, the use of plutonium in atomic reactors is not new and has been the practice in Britain for several years because of a scarcity of uranium-235, the most common fuel used in U.S. reactors.

Consumers officials attending the meeting included Area Mnaager Robert Hilty of Traverse City; Plant Engineer Donald DeMoor of Charlevoix; Consumers AEC liaison man Mike Sewell of Jackson (a former Charlevoix resident); Ernie Murray of Jackson, a Consumers physicist; and William Wilson of Charlevoix, public information officer at Big Rock Point.

Sewell explained that plutonium has been a by-product of operations at Big Rock Point ever since the plant went into operation 10 years ago. In 1969, the company began adding small amounts of plutonium to the uranium charge for two reasons:

–The addition of the man-made element to the fuel rods will result in a cost savings of from 15 to 20 percent.

–Uranium is in short supply and it is simply good conservation to make do with the more abundant plutonium.

He added that all of the plutonium to be used at Big Rock Point will be salvaged from fuel rods expended at the plant itself. After purification, the plutonium will be mixed with uranium-235, pelletized, coated with a ceramic material and returned to the fuel rods for placement in the reactor. Uranium will still make up the bulk of the fuel charge.

Sewell admitted that although the rods are welded shut and the piping walls in the reactor are from one to one and one-half inch thick, there is always the possibility of a leak.

However because plutonium has a tendency to cling to anything it touches, it is about 25 percent less dangerous than the more volatile uranium-235.

Murray emphasized that the characteristics of both the uranium and plutonium used at Big Rock Point are so different from the super-refined fissionable materials used in weaponry that the possibility of an atomic explosion at the plant is practically nil. The possibility of such an explosion was mentioned in the Free Press article.

Lou Gordon To Interview Our Friske

Richard Friske, former state representative from the 106th District, will be a guest on the Lou Gordon Show Sunday March 11.

The show may be seen Charlevoix Cable TV, Channel 50, at 10 p.m.

Gordon is known for his no-holds-barred interviews of local, state and national figures.

Friske was elected chairman of the Michigan American Party at the group's convention in February. The party formerly was called the American Independent Party.

An Antrim County orchardist, Friske is a leader of the John Birch Society in northwestern Michigan. He was defeated in the House race in the August primary last year by Republican Ralph Ostling of Roscommon.

After his defeat, Friske changed parties and ran for Congress in the 10th Congressional District. He was defeated.

Weight Limits Now in Effect

The Charlevoix County Road Commission reports that weight restrictions are in effect on all county roads, effective at 7 a.m. Tuesday, March 6.

The restrictions will remain in effect until the frost leaves the ground, according to Oral Sutliff, commission secretary.

Here, accompanied on the piano by Miss Marina Anegon, Fourth Graders perform "Chimes of Dunkirk," a French dance. Other cultures represented were Jewish, Swedish, Bohemian, German, Old American, British, Danish and Mexican. The same program was presented to students from St. Marys School Tuesday afternoon.

Board OK's Breakwater At Irish Boat Shop

The Charlevoix Township Board gave David Irish of the Irish Boat Shop its blessing for a proposed 150-foot breakwater in front of the marina on Lake Charlevoix, despite objections from property owners that the structure will restrict the flow of water in the area.

A second question on the placing of mooring buoys in front of the Irish property was referred to the Planning Commission and the Department of Natural Resources for deliberation.

Chief spokesman against the Irish breakwater was Tony Barone, a resident of Lakeview Court nearby and president of the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Assn.

He said the breakwater would interfere with a lateral water flow which is necessary to clean the beach.

He also said Irish had failed to secure permission for the project from the DNR.

Irish told the board he does have the required DNR permit, along with approval of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The project actually was approved by the Corps several years ago. However, Irish had to go through the Corps again after he decided to change the material used in the breakwater from sheet piling to rip-rap, which will provide a

But in the fourth period, Benzie Central turned on the steam, racking up 29 points to Charlevoix's 14.

Quarter scores were 16-14; 31-29; 46-43; and 75-57.

Leading scorer for Charlevoix was Jerry Skippergosh, who was credited with 20, followed by Steve McClellan and Dennis Crain with 10 each.

Diane Alexander Wins CHS Homemaker Award

Diane L. Alexander has been named Charlevoix high school's 1973 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow. Chosen on the basis of scores in a written knowledge and attitude examination administered to high school seniors here and throughout the country last Dec. 5, she will receive a specially designed award from General Mills, sponsor of the annual Betty Crocker Search for American Homemakers of Tomorrow. In addition, she remains eligible for state and national honors.

The State Homemaker of Tomorrow, to be selected from all school winners in the state in judging centering on results of the Dec. 5 test, will receive a $1,500 college scholarship. A 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," will also be presented to the state winner's school by Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation. The second-ranking student in the state will receive a $500 scholarship.

In late April, the 51 Betty Crocker Homemakers of Tomorrow representing every state and the District of Columbia — each accompanied by a faculty adviser — will gather in Washington, D.C. for an expense-paid educational tour of the capital city and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Personal observations and interviews during the tour will be added to state-level judging results in the selections, to be announced at a dinner in Williamsburg, of the 1973 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and three runners-up. Scholarships of the four national winners will be increased to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

Diane L. Alexander

Instituted in last year's Betty Crocker Search, a $1,000 Nutrition Scholarship is also part of the program again this year. Recipients of this award will be the participating students who plan a college major in nutrition or a related field, ranks among the highest in his or her state on the overall examination and, from those meeting these two criteria, achieved the top score on the exam's nutrition questions.

Science Research Associates, Chicago, constructed and grades the written examination, and is responsible for all judging and selection of winners.

A total of 665,600 seniors were enrolled in this year's Search, the first in which boys were eligible to participate. Approximately nine million students have taken part in the program since its inception in the 1954-55 school year and, with this year's grants, total scholarship awards will exceed $2 million.

Regarding the inclusion of boys in the program, General Mills said, "While, historically, the feminine homemaker has usually exerted the major influence in shaping the home, teamwork between husband and wife has long been the ideal. In today's changing society, the teamwork will undoubtedly become increasingly important during the years ahead. That is why high school senior boys as well as girls are now eligible to join the Betty Crocker Search with full opportunity to earn scholarships and, hopefully, gain the other educational benefits of participation."

The group reports that 5,600,000 coupons are needed, carrying a cash value of $33,000.

General Mills has approved the project, with the stipulation that the project be completed within 18 months of the approval date, Oct. 25, 1972.

Coupons should be turned in at Staley's grocery store on Antrim-st.

At a recent meeting at the post home, the group voted a donation to the Keeley Smith fund.

Local License Offices Clearing Suspensions

Michigan drivers who have had to travel extended distances to get immediate clearances of suspension for failure to appear in court to settle traffic tickets may not terminate these suspensions at any local Secretary of State Driver License Bureau.

The new state-wide policy began Feb. 20, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin said.

"Drivers who often had to travel many miles to either Detroit or Lansing clearance locations will find our new policy easier, handier, and time-saving. Many persons, who had to take several hours or an entire day off from their jobs often resulting in economic loss for their families, are able to handle the clearance in a few minutes, close to their homes."

Austin cautioned suspended drivers that they first have to appear in court, settle their tickets, obtain their clearance cards, and then present these cards at a Secretary of State driver license bureau.

"I hope suspended drivers do not get the impression that Secretary of State driver license bureaus are handling ticket payments," Austin said.

All court clearance cards must be presented along with a mandatory fee of $2.00 to any state license bureau to receive a termination of suspension on the spot.

To persons who wish, mail terminations are still being continued. But in these cases, it takes from 10 days to two weeks to handle the necessary work and suspension continued during the period.

Mailing address for individuals who wish to handle clearances in this fashion is: Michigan Department of State, Driver Improvement Division, Lansing, Michigan 48918. A check or money order for $2.00 must accompany the clearance card.

Austin said that while drivers are in licensing bureaus to get suspension clearances, that a check of their driving record will be made.

"If they have any other problems that we can help them with or questions about their record or driving privilege, these inquiries will be handled on the spot while they wait," he said.

Last year, some 122,000 drivers were suspended under Public Ace 332, the state's unpaid ticket suspension law. During this period, clearances for suspensions numbered 100,00.

"Unpaid tickets are by far the largest contributing factor in the state's rising number of driver license suspensions," Austin said. They accounted for nearly two-thirds of the 193,000 suspensions handled by the driver improvement section of the Michigan Department of State.

Orchids Are Topic For Garden Club

By Hilda Alexander

Members of the Garden Club held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. William H. Wilson at North Point, with Mrs. Edward Lewand as co-hostess.

The roll call was a personal response of each member naming the deciduous trees and shrubs in their home landscape.

A most interesting talk was given by Mr. Wilson on orchids, followed by a tour of his greenhouse where he has several varieties in bloom, along with other interesting varieties of house plants.

Orchids are a group of plants consisting of about 15,000 different species or wild types distributed throughout the world, except in the coldest regions. In addition to the wild varieties many thousands of hybrid have been raised and each year the number increases. No other plant family contains so great a variety of different flowers. The beauty, the strange shapes, and the longevity of many orchids together with the ease with which many kinds can be grown have drawn attention to these plants.

Orchids from different countries and the hybrids which have been raised from them can be grown in the same greenhouse for many kinds need similar conditions. One of the most common potting materials is shredded tree bark. And the plants require a very light deluted fertilizer and little water and cool temperatures.

The speaker presented an orchid blossom to each member.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, March 13 with Mrs. Jeanne Michael on Park-ave., with Mrs. Marge Saunders as co-hostess.

Mathers-LaBrecque Rites Solemnized on Saturday

Nancy Elaine LaBrecque became the bride of Charles P. Mathers in ceremonies March 3 at the First Baptist Church, the Rev. John Call officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William LaBrecque sr., of Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. Ray Mathers of Boyne City.

Two hundred guests witnessed the double-ring ritual performed by candlelight.

Given in marriage by her brother, James LaBrecque, the bride wore an Empire-styled gown of nylon acetate with a lace bodice. She carried a bouquet of red roses and pink carnations.

Soloist was Mrs. Jenny Carey of East Jordan who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Sharon Olson was maid of honor and bridesmaid was Julie Wells, a niece of the bride. They wore Empire-styled gowns of pink sheer nylon organza with taffeta acetate linings and carried bouquets of carnations and pink roses.

Justine LaBrecque, a niece of the bride, was flower girl and Tommy Olson, a nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

William Blitchok and Robert Blitchok, nephews of the bridegroom from Saginaw, were best man and groomsman respectively. Ushers were Donald Wells jr., and Glenn Lemoir.

Assisting at the reception given by the bride's parents at the VFW Hall were the bride's sisters, Mrs. Donald Wells and Mrs. Walter Olson.

Following a wedding trip to Florida the couple will live at 402½ Antrim-st., Charlevoix.

There's a Hint of Spring In Activities for March

There's a hint of spring in several events scheduled for the month of March in Michigan, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

The Camper and Travel Trailer Show at the Westmain Mall, Kalamazoo is fanning the embers of wanderlust in summer nomads. The show opened February 26 and runs through March 4.

Outdoorama, March 2-11, at the West Eight Mile Armory, Detroit, will have something for everyone, for all outdoors. The exposition will include displays and exhibits of the latest in equipment and accessories for boating, hunting, camping, scuba diving, fishing, auto racing and much more.

The Sportsman and Vacation Show, State Fairgrounds, Detroit, March 9-18 and the Boat, Sports and Hobby Show, County Center Building, Kalamazoo, March 20-26, are also designed with the warm weather months in mind.

Cars, cars, cars, from "mod rods" to the early motorized machines that started it all, are spotlighted this month. Modern day hot rods, sport cars, motorcycles and imaginative paint jobs will star in the Car Show at the County Center Building, Kalamazoo, March 2-4. Sports Cars in Review - which traces the development of road and track cars through three-quarters of a century - is scheduled for March 2-25 at Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn.

Spring antique shows are in bloom this month starting off with the Antique Show and Sale at the State Fairgrounds, Detroit, March 2-4. Dealers from all over the eastern half of the United States will gather at Grosse Pointe Farms March 9-11 for the 18th Annual Grosse Pointe Rotary Antique Show and Sale. The Detroit Spring Antique Show and Sale will attract dealers from some 100 cities in 29 states to the Light Guard Armory, March 14-18.

A good sign that spring is on its way is the annual Maple Sugaring Weekend at the Nature Center, Kalamazoo, March 17 and 18. Visitors are given a first hand look at pioneer and modern methods of making maple sugar and syrup, sap collecting and operation of a sugar house.

Winter oriented events scheduled for the third month of '73 include: State Indoor Speedskating Championships, Wyandotte and the Brockway Mountain Cross Country Ski Race, Copper Harbor, March 3; Kiwanis Invitational and International Tournament of Champions at Pine Mountain in Iron Mountain March 3-4; Snowmobile Safaris, Manistique, March 8-11; Grayling's Mardi Gras and the MISA Invitational Snowmobile Race at Traverse City March 10-11; North American Indoor Speedskating Championships, Wyandotte March 17-18; and Sled Dog Races at Cedar March 24-25.

There are also March events keyed to specific interests. The Hobby Show, March 9-11, at the Light Guard Armory, Detroit, is bound to offer encouragement to all those pursuing a creative pastime endeavor, and inspire those looking for a spare time activity. Fast paced individuals should enjoy the NCAA Indoor Track Championships at Cobo Arena, Detroit, March 9-10. For numismatists, a Coin Show at the County Center Building, Kalamazoo, March 17 and for "busy fingers and fancy doers," the Midwest Home Sewing and Needlecraft Show, State Fairgrounds in Detroit March 23-25.

The Science and Engineering Fair of Metro Detroit at Cobo Hall March 25 through April 2, should serve as a testimonial that the younger generation is not a lost cause. The Fair will feature winning research projects, experiments, collections and graphic ideas of junior and senior high school students from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties. Twelve students will be selected, from this impressive group, to represent Detroit at the National Science and Engineering Fair which will be held in San Diego sometime in May.

For a complete listing of Michigan events scheduled for the spring and summer months, write the Michigan Tourists Council, Lansing 48926.

Ironton

Mrs. William La Valley has returned home from the Charlevoix Hospital after being a medical patient several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nielsen were guests Saturday afternoon and evening at the home of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Vincent in East Jordan. Mr. and Mrs. Ole Nielsen were also guests.

Mrs. William Harmon, wife of the pastor of the Ironton Church, broke her left arm below the shoulder while snowmobiling with the Douglas Knudson family last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Harmon's snowmobile overturned.

The Ladies Church Fellowship, which meets every other Tuesday evening at the church, is looking for new members. Guests are also welcome.

What changeable weather! Our new snowfall is gone and it looks like spring again. The fog was so dense this Thursday that M66 could not be seen from Washington-st. The temperature has ranged from 35 to 40 degrees following as steady rain Wednesday night. Sunday was sunny with temperatures in the 40's. If the old timers' prediction hold true, we can expect stormy weather the last of the month. But who knows?

Beef Critter 'Sacred Cow'

There was a time not so long ago when the cow was sacred only to the Hindus of India.

Today that lowly critter has become one of the most revered animals in the United States as a result of the skyrocketing price of beef at butcher counters across the country.

Sometimes the price jumps three or four cents a pound while you are waiting in line for the meat cutter to fill your order.

Of course, beef is not the only commodity caught in the upward spiral. Pork and chicken, which were still within the price range of most shoppers not too many months ago, have joined the bandwagon.

Our butcher tells us that chicken will move into the 60-cents-a-pound price range this week. Most good cuts of pork already have passed the $1-a-pound level.

Reliable sources inform us that the price rise has resulted from three factors:

--Unseasonably cold weather in the Southwest has caused unusually heavy losses of beef cattle.

--The cost of animal feed has risen alarmingly because of poor harvests in 1972, resulting from cold, wet summer weather.

--Devaluation of the dollar has resulted in higher price tags on imported meat. There also is added demand abroad for U.S. foodstuffs, which are 10 percent less expensive since the devaluation.

Up on Drummond Island, irate citizens are planning a one-week nationwide boycott of meat merchants, starting March 11. They reason that if everyone in the country refuses to buy -- or eat -- any meat what so ever for a solid week, prices will come down.

We are with them in spirit, although we abhor the idea of any kind of boycott since it invariably hurts people who are not responsible for the problem in the first place.

If the boycott comes off as planned, we envision thousands of tons of meat products either spoiling or aging past their prime in butcher's showcases or coolers.

And the butchers aren't to blame. They are as chagrined as the rest of us at the prices they are forced to ask for meat, and most of them have already cut their profit margin to the bone, if you'll excuse the expression.

We are willing to chalk up the increase to lousy weather and poor planning by the Department of Agriculture which, through subsidies, has created artificial shortages of foodstuffs in order to shore up the prices of farm commodities.

Unfortunately, the problem is one that cannot be solved overnight, or even in months, as President Nixon would have us believe. It will be years before we see the results of increased productivity down on the farm.

Gives Labor's Viewpoint

Dear Bob:

As chairman of the Top of Michigan AFL-CIO, please permit me to respond to your recent article, "The Dollar."

Your article seems to lay the blame of our economic crisis on organized labor.

I would like to present the other side of the devaluated coin from the standpoint of one union member.

First of all, the problems as you so clearly state are complex, but you suggest that the answer is simple: "Blame it on union labor and the high wages that labor can gouge from a poor, struggling boss. Lower the wages and everything else will fall in line."

The facts don't bear this out. We have observed the highest gain in food prices in recent history at a time when wages are strictly controlled. Farm labor, by the way, is mostly non-union. So the "wages rise and prices follow" theory doesn't apply here. Further, in the President's freeze, many costs were not included: rents, interests, real estate, insurance rates and new farm products to name a few. These are hardly areas where organized labor can be in control. But workers and people on fized incomes are put in a squeeze anyway.

Your observation that a citizen cannot compete unless he belongs to a union may be true, but even that doesn't help our working poor in many cases. For instance, local government workers are underpaid despite being organized. At any rate, it is a known fact that where union concentration is highest, prices are lowest. Ask some of our local professional and business leaders why they spend a weekend shopping in Detroit if not to save money.

You also believe that a worker is not productive and we don't "earn our keep." The federal government's own figures show a three percent annual increase in productivity and in the second quarter of 1972 it jumped to six percent. (Productivity is output per man hour). This might help explain some of the record breaking profits made by our large corporations.

I hope that you are not serious when you condemn service employes as being unproductive. I consider your newspaper a very valuable service as well as police and firemen, doctors, lawyers and most of the people in our local area who depend upon the influx of vacationers. Who would or could do without any one of these services? Also high rates of productivity are useless without application of products by "service" employes.

Finally, you take a poke at the favorite whipping boy, the welfare client. Better to "ride the rolls than work." I feel that people are on welfare because they are poor, not only poor in money, but poor in everything. Poor education, poor health care, poor housing and poor prospects. You know as a newspaperman, that many people regard the printed word as Gospel truth. A good example is your own series of beautiful stories about Neverville. Some readers don't understand satire and are still searching for this lovely place that doesn't exist. It is so completely misunderstood that you might try to inform your readers of these facts.

Nobody gets rich on welfare and in no state does a welfare client receive enough to live above the poverty level. Check with your county Social Services and find out. We cannot help people in need by ignoring them and objecting to their plight.

We of organized labor feel the dollar pinch as much as anyone, but we do not feel that we are guilty as charges.

Thank you.

Claims Food Costs More In Southwest

Dear Editor:

My name used to be Cora Howe. My father's name (now deceased) was Sherman Howe. I grew up in Charlevoix County. My mother, May Howe, still lives in the same place about two miles west of Horton Bay.

My aunt, the former Alice Howe, who also lived in Charlevoix County for many years, subscribed to the Charlevoix Courier for me for this year. I have a sister who also lives out here, and we are really enjoying the "home paper".

It's interesting to note the changes that are taking place, and brings on a bit of nostalgia to see the familiar places. I believe our food prices are a little higher, but real estate appears to be about the same–high!

My sisters and I didn't go to Charlevoix High School. We were just over the line, and we went to Boyne City High School. And Charlevoix is still beating Boyne in basketball! Couldn't help but feel a bit of remorse; sorry 'bout that, but I can only remember one time when Boyne beat Charlevoix when I was in high school. I graduated in 1951.

The school menu is interesting each week. It's a bit different from ours. Enclosed is one of ours for you to see. (I have a girl in the 6th grade, and twin girls in the second.)

I am also enclosing an article which appeared last week. Most people in other parts of the country believe cattle rustling doesn't happen anywhere but in the movies anymore. "Tain't so!" It still goes on out here.

People also don't believe that because of our location on the map, that we have cold weather out here in winter. Our elevation is 3620 feet above sea level, and we always have cold weather; but this week, we have had more than usual. It has been the wettest Feb. in 50 years. We have had several snows, and enclosed is a picture of our most recent, last Thursday.

Looking forward to the next Charlevoix Courier–

Sincerely,

Mrs. C.M. (Cora L.) Clarke
2228 Acoma Dr.
Hobbs, New Mexico 88240

(Editor's Note: Following is the hot lunch menu that appeared in the Hobbs, N.M., Daily News-Sun. Note the number of Spanish dishes that are included.)

Monday: Deep fried burritos, meat sauce, hash brown potatoes, buttered black-eye peas, mexican salad, sweet oil dressing, chilled peaches, hot rolls and creamery butter.

Tuesday: Sloppy Joe sandwich, potato salad, buttered pinto beans, shredded lettuce, coconut wafer pudding, homemade buns.

Wednesday: Ole Fashion Beef Stew, fresh vegetables, buttered whole kernel corn, cole slaw with slaw dressing, golden layer cake, hot cornbread and creamery butter.

Thursday: (Washington's Birthday).: Chili Mac with meat sauce, seasoned fresh frozen spinach, tossed salad, dill dressing, George Washington cobbler, hot rolls and creamery butter.

Friday: Bar-B-Qued turkey sandwich, French fried potatoes, creamed green peas, special salad, special dressing, chocolate chip cookies and homemade buns.

(As in Charlevoix, a half-pint of milk is served with all meals.)

Questions & Answers On Zoning

Q. My lot has a drop-off roughly 80 feet from the road frontage. I am in the Agricultural zone and want to build a house 30 foot wide by 40 foot long. If I comply with the setback requirement (50'), in this zone, my back door will be right on the edge. What can I do? L.L.R.

A. This situation calls for a variance from the Zoning Ordinance requirements. The procedure used to get a variance ruling is to apply to the Zoning Administrator. He then forwards this request on to the Zoning Board of Appeal Chairman. The Chairman calls a meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Your attendance at the Zoning Board of Appeals meeting is required to give comment and testimony on the situation. A decision to deny or grant the variance is made and copies are forwarded to you and to the Zoning Administrator.

In this particular situation, refer to Section 11-5 c) 6) of the County Zoning Ordinance for further information. (Actual Case - Variance granted.)

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Miss Barbara Christensen's language arts students are only in the Third Grade today. But hang on to your hats when they reach the age of majority.

Last week, Miss Christensen asked her young charges to take a good look at the world around them, decide what is wrong with it and come up with some "letters to the editor."

Drunkeness, litter, stray dogs, high taxes, the high cost of food, drugs – just about every evil in today's world came under fire from Miss Christensen's students, aged 8 and 9.

I hope I'm around when they have a real voice in shaping the world they live in. Read on, but be prepared for the worst:

VANCE REUSCH: "As I was waiting for the bus, last week I saw some dogs that I never saw befor, and they were into somebodys trash! I think stray dogs should be taken care of."

COLLEEN SMITH: "I moved in my new trailer lot that somebody gave to us. In a few days somebody else was in our lot to. I didn't like it when they were driving up and down out driveway! Also I don't like how noisy the trucks are. People don't wear their seatbelts. To me I think they just want to get in to a accident and kill someone."

GARY DRURY: "Their are not enough places to ride snowmobiles. A lot of people have bought snowmobiles this year. You should have a lot of room to ride snowmobiles. Like in the woods wear their is a lot of room to ride snowbiles. We can ride snowbiles and not get heurt."

MR. KEVIN MORT: "I'm against drinking and drugs. To many people have gotten sick and killed. And I'm against people not wearing safty belts. I think there should be markers on the ice where snowmobiles should not go and wher they can go. I'm against smoking."

TANYA MARIE FORD: "I want some advice. About water pollution. How do we stop it. I would like to know. Please answer my qusgen. Water has to be clean. Or people will get germs and get sick."

MARK BEAUDOIN: By Depo Beach swiming area there are some bords sticing out of the water they mite hert people. I hope they get fixed."

SCOTT G. SHEPHERD: "I ride the bus to school every single day and sometimes the bus is just to crowded. So I want you to make either a bigger bus or put more seats in the buses."

JIMMY BOGGS: "To me I think drinking is a problem. In 1972, someone from the liquor store barfed on the porch of the old bakery. I think that they shouldn't have liquor stores. Don't you think so?"

MICHELE BOECK: "I think something should be done about all forests being torn down. Because then the deer can't run from people with out being seen. And besides to many deer will got killed. Or else the hunting season cut down."

RICHARD MCLENON: "I was thinking about snowmobileing. I thought people should be careful on snowmobiles. More people are getting hurt on them. For example, people are falling through the ice and hitting bobwire and things like that. Thats about all."

PATRICIA MORGAN: "I feel that drinking is a big problem. People get to drunk. When they drive home that night they will get into an accident. People would be much safer is people wouln't drink so much."

ROBERT MUMA: "I think there should be quieter snowmobiles in Charlvoix. It would make less noise pollution. And not to go on the ice."

MIKE PAUL: "I feel that taxes are to high. Poor people can't buy food. We should lower taxes so they can buy food."

JAMES DUKE: "Snomobiles are fun to ride on but some people don't follow rules. Some kids were riding on the roads. Or some people go across our lawn."

BILL HORTON: I think that snowmobiles should not be allowed. They make to much noise and they pollute the air. To many people are getting hurt on snowmobiles. If people want to ride snowmobiles they should have a place like the golf course to ride them."

AMY MILLER: "I think everyone should use their seatbelts. Many people think that seatbelts rinkle their clothes. But they should be asked, "What is more important, clothes or lifes?" They can fix rinkles in clothes but they can't fix dead lifes. When I heard about the automatic seatbelts that are being used in Japan I was so happy! I hope they save alot of lifes."

JOY HICKS: "Last Saturday I think it was a drunk man came and knocked at our window. Then he went somewhere around our back door. And he had parked his truck up on the hill and left it in gear. Then he came back to the window to ask where in the world his truck could of gone. And my mom told him that it had rolled down the hill down by the wellhouse. So he found his truck and my dad called a recker to come and pull it out and that is why I think something should be done about drinking."

CYNTHIA ENGLER: "You know it is muddy out in the country. And we live out there. You see the road commission only comes out there when we don't need it and sprinkles dirt and the dirt turns the road into mud and we're stuck in mud. On school days we have to walk in mud to get home! But I have a sulution for that. When ever we realy need the road commission to come out, we can call them and tell them to come!"

The Sergeant & Friend

By Jim Fitzgerald

A few days after I wept to see the POW's come home on TV, there was something else about the military on the tube.

It was R.H.I.P.

Walter Cronkite or one of his crudite henchman was telling how the Pentagon spent $16 million yearly training soldiers and sailors to be servants for generals and admirals. Thousands of enlisted men spend their military careers shining the general's boots, or pushing his wife's shopping cart through the supermarket.

"R.H.I.P.," explained the TV announcer, "Rank Has Its Privileges."

And whamo, it was nostalgia time. The first time I'd heard that R.H.I.P. jazz was in 1945, in Camp Polk, La.

Both wars were over. Army camps were bulging with civilian-soldiers like me, doing little more than drink beer and count the days until the discharge came. I was a sergeant by then, with overseas service behind me and only a few more months before I would go home and drink beer and count the days until the unemployment checks came.

For the first time in my military career, I wasn't sleeping in a barracks room full of foul-mouthed, messy soldiers who talked and looked as bad as I did. Instead, I had the private room at the end of a barracks, and only one roommate, Pfc. John McDonald of Topeka, Kansas. We rated this luxurious privilege by virtue of exemplary conduct, battlefield bravery, and the fact we got into the room first and locked the door until our homestead was firmly established in our footlockers.

The company commander, a Capt. Parker, came inspecting one day. He looked at me and he looked at McDonald, and then he looked back quickly at me. He gestured for me to follow him into the hall.

"R.H.I.P.," the captain whispered into my ear.

"Huh...sir?" I asked.

"Rank Has Its Privileges," Capt. Parker said. "You're a sergeant. You don't have to share your room with that Indian if you don't want to. He's only a P.F.C."

The captain then left, leaving me to consider a switch in roommates. McDonald was an Indian, despite his name which I had accused him of stealing from a wagon train. And there were several paleface corporals and sergeants in the barracks room who would be tickled to exchange bunks with McDonald if I wonted to exert my holy rank.

I didn't. And that night Chief McDonald and I drank firewater and did a war dance outside the captain's quarters. It might have been the first peaceable protest. Not one scalp taken.

I might add that PFC McDonald has spent several months in a German POW camp.

I might also add that things haven't changed a lot since 1945. Now, us then, there is much to weep about.

The Old Timer

"A space explorer is a fellow driving around downtown looking for a place to park."

Dear Editor

BILLY BIDDIN: "The dogs around our nabehood get loose and chase our dog and tear our garbage up. I get tired of picking up the garbage. The Charlevoix dogcacher better pick them up."

KRISTINE M. KELLY: "As my counsen, Karen, and I walked down the sidewalk we said that we wished one of us would of brought a bag along so we could pick some litter up there was to much to take in are arms. I hope you can understand our concern over this problem."

JOEL SMITH: "There are a lot of holes in Sheridan St. I think we can keep the cars off the street long enought to fix it."

CHRISTIA NORTH: "My family many times has come past where the condominiums are being built. It blocks the view of the lake. One day I had to walk home from school. As I went by the place where the condominiums are being built the sand was coming out on the sidewalk. My friend and I had to walk through it. It was so wet and deep and we got mud on our slacks. If there is a sidewalk under all that I'd like to see it!"

MARK MORGAN: "A few weeks ago on Old 31 a car went down a clift, but that clift was right by our barn, and our horses were there our horses could have jumped over the fence and could have ran away. So could you put a strong rail there. there was already a fence there but it was at the bottom of the clift and the car flew over it. So could you just put a rail there to remind them."

SALLY WESTENBROEK: "I feel that women should get the same chance to do what men can do. So many women don't have anything to do but womens lib gives them something to do."

ROSS CAREY: "Two years ago snowplows came by and plowed our sidewalk, now it doesn't come. Why? Will you please put more waste cans on the sidewalks. And I think that food prices our to high."

DAVID R. STAUBLIN: "I think Prospect Street down by the Chicago Club needs to be paved. In the summer time cars go by fast and dust always gets into our house."

SCOTT KELLY: "There should be more places for snowmobilers to ride in the winter. All kinds of people have bought a snowmobile this year and hardly have any place to ride them. My family has two snowmobiles and we can only find very few places to ride our snowmobiles. You should try and convince some of the people who own some of the land to see if they will let other people ride on their land."

CHRISTINE CLIFFORD: "I'm sure you heard about the people who fell into Lake Michigan that were on a snowmobile. Well I want you to do something about people going on the ice with snowmobiles. You could put signs on the ice saying "Danger thin ice."

MARTHA STALEY: "How are you? I am fine, but Charlevoix isn't. Do you know about the condominiums being built around town in Charlevoix? What's your opinyon? My opinyon is that they should not be built. All it's doing is wasting money. If people want to live in Charlevoix, why don't they live in hotels or motels already built? Of they can build there own house. P.S. What's your opinyon?"

HEIDI OESTRIKE: Me and some of my friends live in the country on Pine Point and my dad has a toyota so he has to plow out the whole neiborhood streets and I feel that the city board should do somthing about this."

CRAIG SHEPPARD: "As I was going through the woods one day I heard a shot. Somebody shot a bird. It was a hawk. Well, one more gone! I wish people would stop shooting birds. Hawks are almost extinct."

KAREN ELZINGA: "I want something done about the setbelt. Can you make them bulkel by themselfs? Can you make the war stop? Did you here about the snowmobel that went throw the ice, could you make some sings and have the sings say, "Danger stay off" and another say "Do Not enter."

JAMES BUCHANAN: "I think something should be done about pollution cpeshly in big cities like in New York. I have another prollem about drinking. Drunk people should not be on the road."

KATHLEEN CLOCK: "I seem to wonder if Detroit is just jealous of the Plutonium because they say it will cause cancer. In the Courier it says nothing about cancer. I think they did that because we can pay less for fuel oil and other needs, when they pay more for fuel oil and other needs. Is Detroit right? It will cause cancer! Or are we right? it will not cause cancer!"

CHARLEVOIX'S Freshman basketball squad has chalked up an enviable record of 11 wins against 3 losses for the season -- all of which indicates Charlevoix has some cracker-jack teams coming up through the ranks in the next few years.

Rayders Lose to Grayling

The Red Rayders lost their final game of the season Friday night, bowing to the Grayling Vikings 80 to 73.

Grayling led from the start, with quarter scores of 25-16, 51-27; 72-51; and 80-73.

The loss left Charlevoix 5 and 9 for the season.

High point man for Charlevoix was Steve McClellan with 25 on 12 field goals and 1 free throw.

Close behind was Randy Faust, 21 (9 and 3); followed by Dale Boss, 10 (5 field goals); Jerry Skippergosh, 7 (3 and 1); Jones, 4 (2 field goals); Dennis Crain, 4 (1 and 2); and Doan, 2 (2 free throws).

The JV's also lost to the junior Vikings, 57 to 43.

It was a come-from-behind victory for the Grayling team which trailed by eight points (16-8) at the end of the first period.

High point man for Charlevoix was Ron Kewashgen, who scored 16 on 7 field goals and 2 free throws.

Also on the board were Mike Streeter, 11 (5 and 1); Dan Greene, 8 (3 and 2); Dave Martinchek, 6 (3 field goals); and Chuck Faust, 2 (1 field goal).

Sewell added that "Consumers' license from the AEC prohibits the company "from even possessing the kind of material necessary to make a bomb."

Referring to an increase in radiation at the plant Dec. 16 which also was mentioned in the Free Press article, Sewell said engineers suspect the problem originated in an emergency condenser. Company officials are still investigating the problem, although they have been unsuccessful in duplicating the conditions under which it occurred.

Ibity said that as long as there are nuclear plants there will be failures. However he added that nuclear plants are designed to protect the public from radiation exposure when such failures to occur.

Murray said that monitoring equipment dragged along the bottom of Lake Michigan shows no change in normal background radiation in the vicinity of Big Rock Point since the plant went into operation a decade ago.

Another POW On Bracelet Is Released

Mrs. Jack (Diane) Rosendahl learned last week that Capt. Martin Neuens of Ironwood was among the prisoners of war who were to be released over the weekend.

Mrs. Rosendahl has worn a POW bracelet inscribed with Capt. Neuens' name for more than a year.

She said she learned of Capt. Neuens' impending release while watching television alone at home and let out such a whoop the dog started barking.

Although Mrs. Rosendahl has never met Capt. Neuens or members of his family, she said the wearers of POW bracelets develop "a kind of kinship" with the particular prisoner they're rooting for.

She said she intends to write a letter to Capt. Neuens' relatives in Ironwood expressing her satisfaction at his release.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Lillian Hull of Charlevoix learned that her bracelet POW was coming home. He is Capt. Joseph Shanahan of Grand Rapids.

To Address Historians

Harriet Kilborn, Emmet County Clerk, will be speaker at a meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society Thursday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Courthouse Annex.

Miss Kilborn will discuss "How to acquire a building site for a Charlevoix Museum."

Zoning Hearing Draws Small Audience Monday

Only a handful of Charlevoix residents turned out Monday night for a hearing on a proposed zoning ordinance for the city which updates the 30-year-old ordinance now in effect.

After reviewing proposed changes step-by-step, the council adjourned the hearing shortly before 11 p.m. Examination of the proposed ordinance will resume March 19.

The ordinance was drawn up by the firm Williams and Works of Grand Rapids, the city's planning consultants, and is broader in most respects than the present law.

One of the toughest questions weighed Monday night was whether side and rear yard set-backs should apply to small utility buildings cropping up all over town. In the past, any variation in set-backs had to be cleared by the Board of Review. The council was unable to agree on language to give residents a degree of latitude on where such buildings are placed.

The ordinance provides for three residential classifications, one for large single family homes on large lots, one for smaller single-family homes on smaller lots and another for two-family residences. A fourth category, R-4, for apartments and condominiums was approved by the council last December.

There also is an R-5 category for mobile home parks.

The ordinance also provides for four commercial zones, an office and professional zone, an industrial zone, a marine industrial zone and agricultural zone and a scenic reserve zone.

When the hearing resumes March 19, the council will consider parking zones and signs.

County Planner William Mercer, a former employe of Williams and Works, was on hand to make suggestions and answer questions.

Ivan Phillips, owner of the Standard Station on Petoskey-rd., objected to a 150-foot frontage requirement for gas stations, saying it is excessive.

better water flow into the lagoon.

He said the breakwater is necessary to protect boats in the marina from easterly winds.

The meeting was chaired by Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud who came home from Florida to attend.

State Home Aide to Speak Here Monday

"Community and Outpatient Services" will be the topic of a talk scheduled Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. at the First State Bank by the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children.

The speaker will be Marge Ward, a representative of the Gaylord State Home.

On Jan. 1, the Gaylord facility became the admitting institution for northern Michigan, taking over functions formerly provided by the facility at Mt. Pleasant.

The public is invited to hear Ms. Ward's discussion of the new role of the Gaylord State Home.

February Snowfall Totaled 6.6 Inches

Charlevoix has only 6.6 inches of snow in February, making the month one of the driest in recent history.

The scanty fall brings the city's total for the season to date to 70.4 inches, a good 30 inches behind the city of Petoskey only 17 miles away. Petoskey has logged more than 100 inches so far this year.

Charlevoix's weatherman Lloyd Kuebler says the city had 6.1 inches of snow in November, 40.5 inches in December, 17.2 inches in January and a meager 6.6 inches in February.

Suicide Clouds Probe Of Robison Murders

Northern Michigan's most baffling murder mystery took another bizarre turn last Thursday afternoon when Joseph Raymond Scolaro III, 37, former business associate of Richard C. Robison was found dead in his Southfield business office, an apparent suicide victim.

For almost five years, Scolaro has been the chief suspect in the murder of Robison, 42, his wife, Shirley, 40, and their four children at their summer home at Good Hart on the Lake Michigan shore.

A typewritten note found near Scolaro's body read: "I am a liar, a cheat, a phony but I am not a killer. I am scared and sick." In a hand-written P.S. he added, "I did not kill the Robisons."

The Oakland County Medical Examiner's office has tentatively labeled Scolaro's death a suicide. The office said he died of a gunshot to the right side of the head. A .25 caliber automatic pistol was found at the scene.

It is uncertain what tack the continuing Robison murder investigation will take now that Scolaro is out of the picture. If lawmen discount Scolaro's profession of innocence in the suicide note, the investigation may be dropped.

If they believe the note, apparently written in the last frenzied minutes of Scolaro's life, the investigation may be renewed with added vigor, possible in the Good Hart area.

Lt. Patrick Lyons of the Michigan State Police post in Detroit said Friday that the death of Scolaro did not close their investigation into the murders.

"We will not close this case until we issue warrants or decide there is just no hope of solving it," Lt. Lyons told the Detroit Free Press. "Hopefully the suicide may open up some information that may tell us more about Joe's possible involvement in the killings."

A ballistics test showed that the weapon Scolaro used to kill himself was not the same weapon used to kill the Robisons.

It was on July 22, 1968, that the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Robison, sons Richard, 19, Gary 17, and Randy, 12, and daughter Susan, 8, were found murdered in their comfortable log home at Blisswood, a summer resort colony between Good Hart and Cross Village.

They were discovered by caretaker Chauncey A. Bliss after neighbors complained of a foul odor coming from the Robison cottage.

Bliss and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey P. Bliss who live in the rambling Blisswood lodge on the high bluff above the Robisons' cottage, were under the impression that the Robison family was on a combined business and pleasure trip that would take them to Kentucky and Florida.

The Robisons' two cars remained parked and locked near the cottage and the Blisses assumed a friend had picked up the family and taken them to the airport.

A note on the door said the family would be back July 8 or 9. The note obscured some of the bullet holes found near the rear entrance to the cottage.

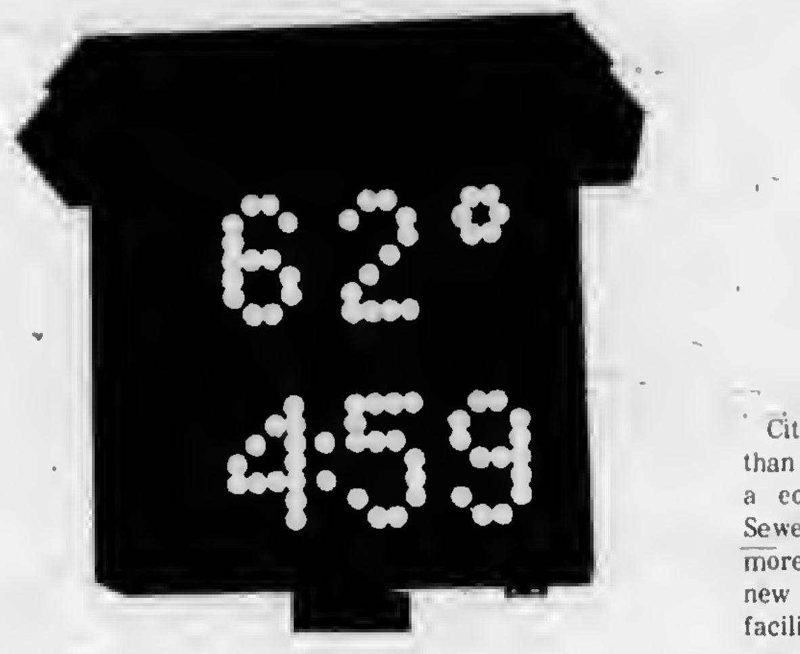
When Bliss forced the latch on the door and discovered Mrs. Robison's body sprawled on the living room floor near the fireplace, he hurried to his parents' home on the bluff and called the Emmet County Sheriff's Department.

By nightfall, dozens of law enforcement officers were on the scene, including investigators from the State Police Crime Lab in East Lansing who were forced to work with gas masks because of the badly decomposed bodies.

Although it is uncertain just when the Robisons were murdered, the killing probably took place almost a month earlier.

At the time, law officers said that the long delay between the time of the murders and discovery of the bodies probably would hamper their investigation.

Law officers agree that whoever killed the Robisons was familiar with the cottage and knew the Robison family.



IS IT REALLY Spring? The temperature climbed into the middle 60's Sunday, with clear skies and balmy southwesterly winds. At 4:59 p.m., the mercury stood at 62 degrees at the new Charlevoix County State Bank branch on M-66. A year ago the city was still buried under several feet of snow.

Sewage Rate Will Double Next Month

City sewage rates will more than double April 1 to make up a continuing deficit in the Sewer Fund and help pay for more costly operations at the new waste water treatment facility scheduled to go into operation shortly.

The City Council Monday voted to raise the sewage rates to 160 percent of the user's water bill. At present, city residents are paying about 65 percent of their water bill for sewage.

This means that if your monthly water bill comes to $4, you will pay $6.40 for sewage after April 1 instead of $2.60.

Alderman Gerald Selph was the only council member voting against the increase.

City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna has urged the Council for months to increase the sewage rate in anticipation of increased costs at the new sewage plant. He also reported a deficit of more than $12,000 in the Sewer Fund last year.

In a companion move, the council also established higher tap-in fees for persons hooking onto city water lines. The new fee schedule is $150 for a three quarter inch tap and $250 for a one-inch tap. Larger taps will be billed on the basis of time and materials.

An additional fee of $100 will be charged for each commercial, industrial or residential connection for "the privilege to connect."

The amendment to the water tap ordinance takes effect immediately.

In other business the council:

--Heard George Richardson of the Weathervane and George Staffan of Ski and Shore tell of plans to convert the Weathervane Inn from private ownership to condominium ownership. Under the plan, each motel unit would be individually owned and the owner would be guaranteed a given number of days occupancy each year. The motel would continue to function as a motel. The council was unsure whether any zoning change would be required and referred the question to the Planning Commission.

--Sent to the Planning Commission a request to vacate an alley between Upright and Lincoln-sts. and Sherman and Grants-sts.

--Took under advisement a

Court Asks Briefs In Dunes Lawsuit

The question of whether developer Ronald Steffes has a valid building permit to construct The Dunes condominium on Michigan-ave. went to Circuit Court Monday, but a decision won't be forthcoming until after attorneys on both sides file briefs March 16.

Charlevoix attorneys Donald Berlage and Thomas Pointer initiated the suit, claiming the council vote last July 31 granting Steffes the permit was illegal. The vote was split 2-2 and Mayor Edward Hansen cast the deciding vote in favor of Steffes.

Berlage and Pointner claim that the Fourth Class Cities Act requires a majority vote of all elected alderman.

Attorney Stephen Graham, representing Steffes, agreed that the vote was illegal. But he also said an earlier vote June 5 which took the power of granting permits for multiple family dwellings away from City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna was also illegal. The council itself claimed responsibility for issuance of such permits by a vote of 3 to 1.

Graham claimed that since the power to issue such permits hadn't been legally taken away from Hanna, that the permit Hanna issued to Steffes is valid.

Berlage and Pointner also maintain that The Dunes is in violation of a zoning ordinance which limits the height of building to two and one-half stories or 35 feet.

Pointner said The Dunes, located on a hillside, will have four and one-half living levels.

The case was heard by Judge Harold von Domelin of Hart in the absence of Circuit Judge Edward Fenlon who is on vacation.

School State Aid Dips To 5.5 Percent of Cost

The Charlevoix School District will receive an estimated 5.5 percent of its revenue for the 1973-74 school year in State Aid as compared to 12.7 percent during the current school year, the Charlevoix Board of Education was informed by Supt. Robert L. Miller at its regular meeting Monday night.

In other action, the resignation of Max Novak, Middle School principal, effective June 30, 1973, was accepted, six teachers were offered tenure; 11 other probationary teachers were offered probationary contracts; 61 tenure teachers were offered contracts; assistant track coaches were named and several other actions taken.

In explaining the State Aid revenue the local district can expect next year, Miller presented a chart showing the trend in State Aid for the local school district over the past 10 years. In 1964-65, the district received 43.9 percent of its revenue from this source. In 1966-67, the percentage jumped to 49.5 and then started dropping off until 1969-70 25.6 percent was received and this year an estimated 12.7 percent will be forthcoming.

This means that an additional two mills or a total of 22 mills plus .4 mill for the cost of operating the public library must be raised locally.

In a move that came as a surprise to most spectators at the meeting, the board voted to accept the resignation of Max Novak, a teacher in the Charlevoix schools for 31 years and Middle School principal for the past three years.

Before the board put the recommendation to a vote, a letter was read by Mrs. Lulla Brock, expressing the sentiments of the faculty and staff of the Middle School regarding Novak's resignation.

The letter stated: "The teachers and other employes of the Charlevoix Middle School hereby express concern over the resignation of Max Novak as our principal. Although none of us knows for certain why Mr. Novak has decided to resign at this time,

Hearing Slated Friday In Plutonium Lawsuit

A show-cause hearing will be held in Federal District Court in Grand Rapids Friday on a lawsuit initiated last week by the West Michigan Environmental Action Council challenging the introduction of plutonium to the fuel charge at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

Consumers Power Company, the Atomic Energy Commission and its representatives are named defendants in the suit.

The action stemmed from an article in the Detroit Free Press three weeks ago claiming that introduction of plutonium to fuel rods at Big Rock Point poses health hazards to residents of the Charlevoix area.

The suit charges that Consumers Power Company failed to file an environmental impact statement, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act. It also charges that public hearings were not held, in violation of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

Consumers says it has fully complied with all federal rules and regulations in obtaining a license to use mixed-oxide fuel assemblies containing plutonium and uranium at Big Rock Point.

Consumers Power Company Monday received a point-by-point refutation of the Free Press article from Glenn T. Seaborg, discoverer of plutonium. He claims no new safety problems exist because of the introduction of reprocessed plutonium to the fuel charge.

Hess Breakin Nets $265

Charlevoix police are investigating a break-in at Hess Furniture either late March 7 or early March 8.

A total of $265.65 was missing from the filing cabinet safe which had been pried open.

Entry gained by forcing open a window on the second story at the front of the building. Police believe the thugs used a ladder at the rear of the Courier office next door to reach the roof.

The Hess building was entered last December but the intruders were unable to open the filing cabinet.

High School Getting Assistant Principal

Roy Fortin, presently in the Farmington school system, has been hired as assistant principal at the Charlevoix High School it was announced at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

This will mark the first time that the high school has had an assistant principal.

His contract calls for a salary of $14,500 for a 42 week school year. Vune H. Smith will continue as principal.

Fortin, 30, is a 1960 graduate of Handy High School in Bay City, received a B.A. degree from Western Michigan with majors in Education, Science and History in 1964; an M.A. degree from the same school in 1965 with a major in Guidance and Counseling and is presently working on Education Specialist degree in Educational Administration at Eastern Michigan University.

He has taught, counseled and coached at Warren Woods and Farmington since 1965.

He and his wife, Barbara, have two children, David, five and Andrew, two. The family lives in Livonia.

He will assume his duties prior to the beginning of the 1973-74 school year.

Mrs. Pidek Wins Suggestion Prize

The first winner in the Charlevoix Courier's Community Improvement Contest is Mrs. Phyllis Pidek, Box 89, R-2, Charlevoix.

Many excellent suggestions were received which are still in the running for next week's $10 prize.

To enter, simply fill out the suggestion blank which appears on Page 7 of this week's Courier.

Following is Mrs. Pidek's suggestion:

"My suggestion for the City of Charlevoix is a Community Center. This could be used as an ice rink in winter and a roller skating rink in summer. Hockey teams could be organized. Figure skating lessons given. No end of activities could be planned. Perhaps this would help the drug situation in this town and get kids involved in something other than hanging around the corner."

Rites Held for Leo Allard, Retired City Streets Boss

Funeral for Leo W. Allard, 78, retired Charlevoix street commissioner, was held at St. Mary's Church Monday, the Rev. E. Francis Denay officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Sunday evening.

Mr. Allard died unexpectedly at his home on S. Bridge-st. in Charlevoix Friday morning. He had been in failing health for several years.

Born in Chicago June 7, 1894, Mr. Allard came to Charlevoix when he was 10 years old and attended St. Mary's Elementary School and St. Mary's High School.

He was married to the former Lela Howe in 1916 and served with the U.S. Army during World War I.

He served as city street commissioner for 38 years until his retirement April 1, 1966.

Leo Allard

He was a 50-year member of the American Legion and was a past commander of the Leslie T. Shapton post in Charlevoix. He also was a member of St. Mary's Church and a life member of the Petoskey Elks' Lodge No. 629.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a brother, Joseph, of Wyoming; three sisters, Mrs. J.J. Robinson, Mrs. Henry Polderdyk and Mrs. Harry Hodge, all of Grand Rapids; a nephew, William Steffens of Petoskey, who made his home with the Allards as a student; and numerous other nieces and nephews.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mr. Allard's memory may contribute in his name to the Coronory-Intensive Care Fund at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

E.J. Teacher Dies In One-Car Crash

Mrs. James F. (C. Jane) Phillips, 54, of rural Ellsworth and a teacher in the East Jordan school system, was killed in a one-car accident five miles south of Charlevoix on US 31 shortly after noon Sunday.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department which investigated the accident, Mrs. Phillips, traveling north in her 1972 Chevrolet, had started down the long hill at Island View (known as Pavlik's hill) when the right wheels of her car apparently slipped off the rain-soaked highway on to the soft shoulder of the road, throwing the car through the guard rails and down a 20 foot embankment. She was pronounced dead of multiple injuries at the scene by Dr. Robert G. Martin, medical examiner.

The accident was witnessed at a distance by Mrs. Robert Stillwell who was traveling south on the highway and reported it to the Sheriff's Department.

It is believed that Mrs. Phillips, who lived in Banks Township, Antrim County, west of US 31 near Lake Michigan, was enroute to Charlevoix to visit her husband, who was a patient at Charlevoix Area Hospital at the time of the accident.

The body was taken to the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. Arrangements await the arrival of a son from the Flint area.

THIS CRANE was moved into position at the Irish Boat Shop recently to assist with harbor modifications, including construction of a 150-foot seawall extending southeasterly from the city boat-launching ramp. The seawall will be constructed of rip-rap to provide for a free flow of water into the yacht harbor.

The Young People's Auxiliary of the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children is canvassing the area for donations to help them with their activities.

The house to house convass was to take place in Boyne City and Charlevoix Sunday, March 11, and Tuesday.

Speaker Fails to Show, But Meeting is Success

What does a community service group do when the featured speaker fails to show up for a meeting?

This happened to the Charlevoix Historical Society Thursday when Emmet County Clerk Harriet Kilborn overlooked a speaking engagement before the group on her busy calendar.

Miss Kilborn was to have spoken on the subject: "How to acquire a building site for a Charlevoix museum."

To keep things moving, Mrs. George (Virginia) Nisson produced a card file of ancient Charlevoix photographs donated to the society by the Chamber of Commerce. The next half hour was spent trying to identify people and places.

Then Mrs. Julius Gilbert volunteered to speak on the former Beach Hotel on which she has been doing research for a magazine article. Speaking without notes, she was able to present a fascinating run-down on the history of Charlevoix's last resort hotel which was demolished in the late 1960's.

La Croft condominium presently is being erected on the same site at the foot of W. Dixon-ave.

Michigan State University archeologist Dr. Charles Clelland discovered last year that centuries before the Beach Hotel was constructed, the site was the scene of Indian encampments.

"Semi-Tough" by Dan Jenkins has been on the best seller list for a very good reason. It is a falling-down funny book about Billy Clyde Punkett of the New York Giants. Billy and his pals have come to Los Angeles for an epic duel with the hated Jets in the Super Bowl. There are some wonderful characters in this book and although it is comical, it is also very tender. "Semi-Tough" not only tells just about everything there is to know about football but it reveals even more about the game of living. Dan Jenkins, the author, has been a writer all his life, a former sports reporter and he is now Senior Editor of Sports Illustrated.

"The Taking of Pelham One Two Three" was written by John Godey whose previous novels are numerous short stories are already well known. This new one won't remain on the shelves long. The excitement begins on page one when a train has started its run from Pelham Bay Park at 1:23 p.m. "Pelham one two three" is subway parlance.) The train is hijacked by four desperate men. They cut one car loose and hold the motormen and 16 passengers as hostages. From then on, the reader will simply have to try and stay calm through this fast-paced adventure story.

The staff of the Library has recently had the unpleasant task of having to make a tabulation regarding over-due or misplaced books which were signed out to patrons over a period of the past three years. The total cost of replacement for the books still not returned has reached a total of $1,300.

We would like to ask our patrons, and particularly parents, to assist us in trying to get as many of these books back on our shelves as possible. No fine will be charged. We are simply eager to recall as many stray volumes as we can, and we thank you for your help and cooperation.

THE 'HUFEY', a stamping press sheet loader developed by Hufford Industries, Inc., of Charlevoix, was featured in a recent edition of Power Transmission Design Magazine. The automatic loader keeps the operator away from the press and relieves the demand on him for exact repetition of motion. A unique cam arrangement drives loader in one direction as pusher reciprocates. Hufford Industries, Inc., is owned by brothers Donald L. and Walter Hufford of Charlevoix. Donald Hufford wrote the article for Power Transmission Design, a trade publication covering motors, drives, bearings and controls.

Ma Bell Tells How To Cut Phone Bill

Michigan Bell says one way to save money is to have all your residence telephone work done at one time.

That tip is among several cost cutting suggestions which the company has put together in a booklet available to its customers.

Kenneth T. Harrold, local Michigan Bell manager, explains that if a customer wants a phone added and another one moved to a different location then both requests should be scheduled at the same time. If the installer has to come to the house twice to do both jobs, then there is a separate service charge for each visit. However, if both jobs are done at the same time then there would be only the one service charge.

Ohter money-saving tips in the booklet include a recommendation that customers make station calls, which are cheaper and faster than person calls. Michigan Bell also says that if you dial a station call and the person you are calling is not there, then leave a message since you're being charged for the call anyway. Find out when your party will be available, the booklet notes, so if you need to call back you can again dial the less costly station call.

Here are two additional tips for the budget conscious.

Let the operator know when you reach the wrong number on a long distance call so you will not be charged for it. And considered placing your home telephone service on suspension when you plan to be away for 16 days or more. The suspended service rate - for 16 days or more - is one half of the regular monthly rate.

Michigan Bell is distributing copies of the booklet to any organizations and agencies around the state, including consumer groups, retiree organizations, welfare and senior citizens groups; and local officials and governmental agencies associated with welfare and disadvantaged groups. Copies of the booklet can also be picked up at any local Michigan Bell business office.

"Just as we point out in the booklet," said Harrold, "residence telephone service in Michigan has been a household bargain for a long time. We want to keep it that way and we hope the booklet will help our customers," he said.

Harrold noted that in 1960 it took the average worker in Michigan one hour and 53 minutes to earn enough to pay his monthly telephone bill. Although increased usage has caused the monthly bill to become larger in the subsequent 12 years, he said that it now takes the average Michigan worker only one hour and 10 minutes of labor to cover his monthly telephone charge.

Ironton

A group of 15 local friends attended the anniversary party for Rev. and Mrs. William Harmon in Cheboygan last Saturday.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. John Glados in Athens, Greece. John Glados will be remembered as the brother and business partner of the last George Glados who sold his interest in the Sugar Bowl to return to his native home in Greece to be with his parents and other members of the family. He is now 102 and cares for himself.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vanderwall joined their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krupka in Lansing this Friday, and will spend the next three weeks visiting interesting places in Florida.

The chief topic of conversation is food and meat prices. We know they are high and home management is hard on a budget. But things still are not as bad as they were in the Depression of the 1930's. Food and meat were low in price, but no one had the money to buy them since there was no work for men or women. Even some banks went broke. Believe me, I know. We went through it with children and it was no picnic for anyone. We hope our government will get things straightened out soon.

Hunters didn't get all the deer last fall. Driving to Charlevoix this Friday morning we saw seven deer in the edge of the woods back of the gravel pit on M-66 feeding peacefully.

Gordon Bartlett is building a new house east of Washington St.

Sandy Harrison spent the past weekend visiting relatives and friends in Detroit.

What beautiful sunshine this Friday, with 42 degree weather. The snow is gone, with just small patches here and there. Lake Charlevoix is black, with places of open water. Lake Michigan never did freeze but had drift ice along the shores. But having lived in the north for many winters, we look for another snow storm before spring comes, but it won't last, we know, so it isn't too early to get all those usual spring chores started.

Penalties Provided Food Stamp Cheats

The following statement relative to the Food Stamp Program now in effect in Charlevoix County, was made by Walter K. Master, officer-in-charge of the Traverse City Field Office, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture:

"The Food Stamp Program is a family feeding program. The purpose of the Food Stamp Program is to safeguard the health of the nation's low-income families by giving them added buying power for more nutritious foods. "Non-food items such as soap and paper products, tobacco products, alcoholic beverages, drug items and pet foods, may not be purchased with food coupons. Coupons may not be accepted for deposits on bottles or other containers and they may never be exchanged for cash.

"Violation of the above rules constitutes misuse of the food coupons and is considered as a fraudulent act against the United States government.

"Conviction of violation may result in severe penalties which include possible monetary fines of amounts up to $10,000 and/or prison sentence for periods up to 5 years. The retailer may also face disqualification for a period not to exceed three years.

"Any person observing violations of the Food Stamp Program Regulations may report such violations to the Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, 311 East Front Street, Traverse City, Michigan 49684. Telephone number (616) 946-2110.

"The area served by the Traverse City Field Office includes the northern 27 counties of Michigan's Lower Peninsula."

LET'S KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT

On Friday, March 9, the West Michigan Environmental Action Council issued a news release stating its intention to seek an injunction in U.S. District Court to halt the fueling and operating of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

To keep the record straight, Consumers Power Company has made public the following statement:

Consumers Power Company has fully complied with all federal rules and regulations in obtaining a license to use mixed-oxide fuel assemblies, containing plutonium and uranium, at Big Rock Point.

Mixed-oxide fuel is 1 percent plutonium and 99 percent uranium.

The statement by the West Michigan Environmental Action Council, which calls plutonium fuel more hazardous than any other in use in any commercial reactor, is wholly inaccurate. The company's application to the AEC for permission to load mixed-oxide uranium and plutonium assemblies concludes that the impact of plutonium is equal to or less than that of uranium.

Public application was made in June 1972, and the license to use the reload fuel was granted in December, 1972.

The company regrets that the West Michigan Environmental Action Council has failed to inform itself regarding the proper licensing procedure, as well as the possible environmental effects of the use of plutonium. Further, the council has ignored the benefits of utilizing plutonium as a means of conserving uranium, a natural resource which is in great demand.

Finally, the council's press release completely ignores the fact that plutonium has been producing energy in commercial reactors for many years. In fact plutonium fuel rods have been in use at Big Rock Point since 1969.

Other statements in the press release are clearly statements designed to frighten the public, if not to mislead it completely.

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant was shut down for its annual fuel reloading and inspection late March 2.

It is expected that the plant will be out of service for approximately 21 more days. It is the plant's tenth refueling.

The plant, with a generating capacity of 75,000 kilowatts, has been in operation since late 1962.

Fuel reloading includes insertion of six demonstration fuel assemblies containing recycled plutonium and uranium in mixed-oxide form. This marks the first time that recycled uranium and plutonium have been returned to the same commercial reactor from which the used fuel was originally removed. There are 84 fuel assemblies in the Big Rock reactor when fully loaded.

Workshop 'Happy Place', New Director Finds

SHELTERED WORKSHOP employes clean wire spools used by Hoskins Manufacturing Co., one of the local companies contracted for piece-work. Employes are paid a salary geared to the U.S. minimum wage.

"I can't think of a happier place to work," commented Mrs. Michael (Janice) Raecke shortly after her appointment as executive director of the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children.

Mrs. Raecke's office is located in the association's Sheltered Workshop on E. Garfield-ave. where 11 employes from throughout Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties keep busy doing piece-work for local manufacturers.

Mrs. Raecke's job will involve lining up more work for her staff, which is expected to grow to 20 or more after the building is expanded this summer. A 28 by 40-foot addition will be constructed at the rear, doubling the floor space available.

At present, the workers are busy cleaning used wire spools for Hoskins Manufacturing Co., which has contracted to have the work performed by the Sheltered Workshop. The workers are paid salaries geared to the natural minimum wage.

The salaries of Mrs. Raecke and Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, workshop supervisor, are paid by the association, which is supported by funds from Charlevoix and Emmet counties and Community Chests throughout the area. The organization also receives funds from the federal government, a windfall which allowed the association to hire a full-time executive director.

In addition to the spool cleaning project, the workers recently completed assembly of 500 "nylon buds" to be used by Franks Flowers in Easter corsages. Thay also stuffed and addressed 2,800 Easter Seal letters being sent to residents of Charlevoix County. Another project in the offing is the stuffing of 5,000 Easter Seal envelopes for Emmet County.

The Sheltered Workshop also handles the screen printing of "Hot Seat" covers for the Paul-Reed Co.

Another recent Paul-Reed contract found the workers inserting swivels into luggage handles.

The workshop also has performed many routine tasks for Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp. over the years, including sanding of display cabinet decorations and minor assemblies.

Foreign Teachers Seek Area Homes

Charlevoix area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer, it was announced today by The American Host Program.

According to J. Stuart Perkins, Board Chairman of the Host Program, who is President of Volkswagen of America, American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way-of-life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.

Now in its eleventh year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 3,000 European teachers who have passed on their new understanding of America to their students.

Perkins said that being a "host family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. All American Host requires, he said, is hospitality – a private room for a guest and free time for one or two weeks to introduce the guest to friends, neighbors and perhaps fellow teachers.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their community. Teachers and host families have an opportunity to correspond for at least a month before meeting.

Arrangements for participating as a host family can be made by writing to: Mr. Tom Murphy, The American Host Program, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, New York, New York 10017, or call (212) 683-6567.

Yule Seal Donations Are Up 20 Percent

Charlevoix County residents have contributed $1,831 to the traditional Christmas Seal campaign conducted by the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, as of Feb. 26.

This is a 20 percent increase over last year's total, reports Thomas Cardinal, MD, president of the Northwest Region of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. He added that overall state contributions have reached 98 percent of the $925,000 campaign goal, excluding the Detroit Metropolitan area.

Residents in Charlevoix County who have not yet answered their Christmas Seal appeal letter are urged to do so by Dr. Cardinal. The campaign officially ends the last day of March and the funds contributed will help the Christmas Seal Association to continue its efforts in the control of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases.

Contributions are used for tuberculosis and respiratory disease research, establishment of air pollution monitoring systems, smoking education in schools and smoking withdrawal clinics, and many other community related programs.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Judge Arthur Relbel:

A charge of assault and battery lodged against Elmer Jess Peters, 39, Boyne Falls, was dismissed on a motion by the prosecuting attorney.

William A. Hutchins, 44, Boyne City, stood mute at arraignment on a charge of driving while his license was suspended and a plea of innocent was entered for him by the court. He was released on $50 bond. Trial will be held later.

LETS YOU WRITE YOUR OWN LOAN

Money When You Need It. It happens to everybody. You run across a bargain, or need extra cash; but the balance in your checking account just won't cover the amount you need. All too often, there's no time to go to the bank for a loan. That's why the Charlevoix County State Bank developed CHECKMATE; it gives you the money you need, the minute you need it.

Here's How CHECKMATE Works - When the need for extra money makes it necessary to write a check larger than balance in your checking account, we transfer funds automatically from your line of credit (in multiples of $100.00) into your account to cover your check. Just by writing a check, you've written yourself a loan - instantly and with no "red tape" - and confidentially too.

Pay Nothing Until You Use It - Obviously, when there is no loan, there's no finance charge, so CHECKMATE costs you nothing until you use it. And there's no charge for your checking account, either, so long as you keep a $100.00 minimum balance for the month. Repayments are simple, because they're deducted automatically from your checking account.

Stop in and ask for your application - soon.

Some Lakes Can't Tolerate People Pressure

Bio-Station Probes Development Limits

For the first time in 61 years, ecological research at the University of Michigan Biological Station at Douglas Lake has not been stilled by a frigid northern Michigan winter.

Founded in 1909 on the shores of Douglas Lake near Pellston, the 9,000-acre station has traditionally been shut down by deep snow and freezing weather. This winter, however, a small cadre of U-M scientists has accepted the challenge of cold weather environmental research.

"Winter conditions seriously hamper ongoing ecological field studies – test equipment often malfunctions, deep snow limits mobility, and daylight hours are reduced, not to mention the discomfort of the scientist when outside," explains U-M Research Limnologist John E. Gannon.

"As a result, most field work has been conducted during spring, summer, and fall, yet a realistic approach to ecology demands that winter receive equal investigative emphasis."

Gannon, who heads this first scientific probe into the icy secrets of the semi-wilderness area, points out that the station is the largest of its kind, and one of the oldest, in the world. It is also one of the most studied areas: hundreds of scientists have carried on research here through the years and over 1,400 scientific publications concerning their work have appeared.

"Nevertheless," Gannon adds, "the great bulk of this research was done in warm weather, which makes our efforts exploratory, even pioneering."

To enable year-round research by scientists-in-residence, some facilities at the Station were recently winterized. Numbering less than 15, the winter group is skeletal compared to the summer complement of around 250 faculty, students, maintenance personnel and their families. Size, however, does not reflect the diversity or potential importance of the research.

Gannon, for example, is studying lakes in northern lower Michigan, especially those in Cheboygan and Emmet counties. Although Douglas Lake is receiving the most emphasis this winter, the Michigan Limnologist has already sampled 33 other lakes in these counties.

"My preliminary work is designed to determine the water quality of the lakes, but in the future, I plan to subject them to more detailed limnological studies," he observes. Limnology is the scientific study of fresh waters, including physical, chemical and biological aspects.

According to Gannon, most of the lakes he has examined are in relatively good condition. But he voices concern that the land use policies responsible for the degradation of many lakes in southern Michigan are, for the most part, still perfectly legal in northern Michigan.

"The increasing recreational pressure on these lakes, manifested in new highways, cottage building, and multitudes of boats, could result in rapid deterioration," he warns. He also says that if protective ordinances exist – and in many cases they do not – they usually treat all lakes as if they were identical.

Characterizing such blanket ordinances as "wholly inadequate," Gannon points out that lakes vary considerably in their ability to cope with human impact. Generally, he says, large lakes can withstand more use than small, shallow ones. Flushing time, the time required for the water in a lake to be effectively changed or cleansed, is another important factor.

"Lakes with a rapid flushing system are 'tougher' than lakes with a slow system," he notes. "Further a polluted lake with a sound flushing system should respond favorably when pollution is abated."

When his findings on Douglas and other regional lakes are sufficiently conclusive, he hopes to assist local officials in drafting realistic zoning laws to protect the lakes.

"I think a very practical application of the knowledge would be a ranking system for the lakes," he explains. He says that the lakes could be categorized according to their capacity to handle man. A specific set of zoning laws would then be drawn up for each category.

"This procedure would differentiate between 'weak' and 'strong lakes,'" he notes. For example, lakes that are highly susceptible to pollution could be preserved through mandatory shoreline "green strips" where building would be prohibited. Stronger lakes could be more fully developed.

Regardless of the method, the U-M scientist argues, sewage systems and shoreline construction must soon be tightly regulated.

"The pioneer attitude of 'I can do whatever I want with my own property' is still widespread in northern Michigan," he maintains, "and if legal restrictions are not used to deal with this prevailing attitude, the result can only be the destruction of what is essentially everyone's birthright – clean lakes."

Gannon's pragmatic research typifies that of the Biological Station's winter crew. Research Assistant David Hofritz is studying the impact of recreational vehicles on wildlife. During winter his chief subject is snowmobiles, during summer he says it will likely be trail bikes. Another project now under way is aimed at analyzing the effects on soil of clean cutting, a controversial technique for harvesting timber.

Because the researchers are probing new areas, test equipment often must be modified or redesigned by Ole Lundin, the Biological Station's technical manager. Kevin Carter, a Pellston high school student, assists Gannon with the lake research while maintenance men Willard Sakerska and Patrick J. Cunningham keep the station operational despite snow and below zero temperatures.

U-M Botany Prof. David M. Gates, director of the station, says the winter group is "an instrumental part of the station's increasing emphasis on solving regional environmental problems."

"This first winter-long effort is a milestone in the history of the Biological Station," he says, "and it will accelerate our research while simultaneously enlarging the body of knowledge so vital to our educational program."

U-M Students Will Offer Low-Down on Campus Life

A panel of four University of Michigan students will offer a first-hand perspective of current campus life in Ann Arbor to alumni and friends of the U-M on March 22 at the "Loft" in Cheboygan.

A visit to Cheboygan High School to meet with interested high school students also is planned, according to Dr. Nicholas Lentini, president of the U-M Club of Cheboygan, which will be host to the group.

The students, all active in the Student Governors program of the U-M Alumni Association, are: Elizabeth Sayer, an English major from Ypsilanti; Pat Kearney, a sophomore from Grand Rapids Catholic West who is studying anthropology; Gary Humphries from Grand Rapids Ottawa High School, a premedical student in biochemistry; and Valerie Lentini, also a pre-medical student from Cheboygan.

Each student will present a short statement on an aspect of student life, housing class experience, extra-curricular activities and others. A general discussion will follow based upon questions from the audience.

Guests of U-M alumni and spouses are welcome from Cheboygan as well as Mackinaw City, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Boyne City, Charlevoix and other points in the area. A social hour at 6 p.m. will preceded the dinner scheduled for 7:00.

Puzzling Atomic World Needs an Interpreter

When it comes to evaluating the potential hazard — if any — resulting from the increased use of plutonium by Consumers' Power Company at its Big Rock Point nuclear plant, very few of us are in a position to draw on our own expertise in the area of atomic radiation. We must, of necessity, accept the opinion of others schooled in nuclear science.

Two weeks ago, many of us in the Charlevoix area were startled to learn from an article in the Detroit Free Press that Consumers is in the process of adding rods containing plutonium to its fuel bundles at the Big Rock Point Plant.

The article quoted Glenn Seaborg, the discoverer of plutonium, as describing his brainchild as "fiendishly toxic". It also said that "several hundred tons of plutonium fuel" will be used at Big Rock Point.

However, reporter Saul Friedman didn't spell out under what conditions the element is toxic and he was dead wrong on the amount of plutonium to be used at the plant. In five years, the full charge will contain only 300 pounds of plutonium, instead of "several hundred tons." As in past years, uranium-235 will continue to supply most of the energy.

Spokesman for Consumers point out that plutonium has been added to the fuel charge for the past four years without incident. They say it actually is a by-product of plant operations and that the plutonium used in refueling is and will be created in the Big Rock reactor.

Furthermore the State Health Department, which conducts tests relative to radioactivity in the area including air, water and milk, tells us that Consumers is running a clean operation at Big Rock Point. Radiation in the vicinity of the plant never varies from background radiation found elsewhere in Michigan.

The department points out that background radiation itself is on the wane ever since the atomic powers have stopped testing their weapons in the atmosphere.

Now the West Michigan Environmental Action Council is seeking an injunction to prohibit Consumers from adding any more plutonium to the fuel charge at Big Rock Point. The council says Consumers failed to provide an environmental impact statement on the addition of plutonium to the fuel bundles, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act. It further charges that Consumers has failed to hold public hearings on the matter as required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

Consumers, on the other hand, insists it has complied with all federal rules and regulations in obtaining a license to use mixed-oxide fuel assemblies containing plutonium and uranium.

Although we don't intend to take sides at present in the litigation, we feel that perhaps the time is ripe for municipalities in the area to hire their own independent atomic physicist to review the test data emanating from Big Rock Point and assess in layman's language any potential hazard to the well-being of area residents.

Hope of Conservatism Lies in Information

Dear Editor:

The spontaneous movement to stop truth decay appears to be gaining momentum across the land as evidenced by the New York City bastian of liberalism's turn toward Conservation as reported by the New York Times and reprinted by "Human Events" as well as the "Michigan Interpreter" of March 1.

A new wave of unabashed patriotism is also sweeping the country with the return of our POW forces from Asian cages. The POW praises to God and Country should shame recalcitrant demonstrators and protestors for peace-at-any-price as well as draft dodgers who have undermined the cause of Christ and country with communistic deeds and utterances.

For those among our citizenry who are still undecided about which way to go, there is plenty of instructive, informative material available to bolster faith in the old-fashioned American way and samples of such material are listed at public libraries in the area.

Of course liberal causes will not die out overnight: Common Cause, promoted by John W. Gardner as well as a new citizen's participation cause headed by George Romny are presently in the limelight it is to be hoped that Messrs. Gardner and Romney have seen the light as to the extent to which leftist movements have already impoverished the American Dream of our Founding Fathers and that the Gardner-Romney efforts will become constructive as they direct their goals toward the culmination of the aforementioned possible dream.

For those among our citizenry who wish to keep informed, politically, socially and religiously there are many organizations. On the Conservative issues American Christian College under Dr. Billy James Hargis of Tulsa, Okla., and retired Major Edgar C. Bundy of the Church League of America of Wheaton, Ill., publicize subversive action of minority groups on both the religious and political scene and have done so for a quarter century.

Herbert Armstrong and son, Garner (Ted) Armstrong of Ambassador College of Pasadena, Calif., attack the matter of conservatiive involvement from the ethical level of the Ten Commandments. Their publication, "Plain Truth", is written by the department of journalism of the college and cannot be purchased at news stands or subscription. It is free upon request of the college.

Liberty Lobby organization, headed by Curtis Dall, patriot and onetime son-in-law of President F. D. Roosevelt, published regularly scheduled information which is available to those who become members of Liberty Lobby. The organization also maintains a lobbyist in Congress to ride herd on legislation detrimental to the welfare of the Conservative Citizenry.

"Human Events," a Washington-based publication, "The Interpreter" of Grand Rapids, and the John Birch Society's publications – all available by subscription and membership are also excellent sources of information and keep the populace informed on both persons and events which shape the destiny of our USA either for good or ill.

With no discernable lessoning of Marxist objectives it is encouraging that so much is available to inform and direct concerned citizens to action that can preseve the dream of freedom forever.

(Mrs.) Arthur Wexstaff

WISH I'D SAID THAT

Reader Says French Motif In Poor Taste

Letter to the Editor:

A short time ago the Courier printed a picture of the first Charlevoix business sign in the French motif. In a radical departure from convention, a local gallery has adopted the artists palette colored with pertinent verbal clues. Though insignificant in itself, this incident was hailed as a sign of the future. Charlevoix, someone has decreed in a moment of romantic fetishism, shall become a French seaside village.

The scheme is esthetically, architecturally and outrageously absurd. The heritage of the name Charlevoix is indeed French. The heritage of this community most definitely is not. Preserving, modifying, remodeling and reconstructing in harmony with the existing heritage of a unique northern Michigan village seems to have occured to no one. Indeed it seems an attempt in poor taste at the sophistication of the "alpine-chalet village" nonsense that has been assulting our cedar forests and sensibilities in recent years.

We have all the props necessary for this charade: Our two lakes may play Atlantic and Mediterranean, a casino on the river...we got, the auto dealers will sell only foreign imports, more exchange students will be requested and hired to walk the streets, "long hairs" will be encouraged to hand around to create an "arty" atmosphere, the dog catcher will be instructed to allow poodles to roam free, the police force will don berets and become incompetent, two-piece bathing suits only will be allowed on all beaches, a coat-of-arms must be designed and streets will be rue-d. The Dairy Queen will just have to go and the Palace will begin showing those subtitled movies.

If we all co-operate maybe we can begin to create the proper atmosphere and save tourists a trip abroad.

Hopefully we'll ignore it and it will go away.

Fritz Dodge

Clockwise

The Good Old Depression

By BOB CLOCK

Do you feel like bawling like a calf every time you walk past the meat counter in your favorite grocery store"

I do.

In fact any kind of grocery shopping puts me into a catatonic shock that sometimes lasts for hours.

Hamburger, one of the mainstays of the Clock's diet for years, has reached 99 cents a pound – a jump of 26 cents a pound in about three weeks.

T-bone steak, which we used to enjoy every once in a while when it cost 89 cents a pound or even $1.29 a pound, climbed to $2.08 cents a pound last week. It dropped back to $1.99 a pound a few days later, but I still have nightmares about that little steak lying there under the glass of the meat counter proudly proclaiming that it cost $2.08 a pound.

For all it knew, it could have been one of the crown jewels, a rough-cut ruby perhaps.

Although I abhor the idea of a consumer boycott of any kind, I can well understand why families across the country are participating in the so-called "Meat Moratorium", which started last Sunday and will continue through next Sunday.

Born on Drummond Island, the moratorium is designed to beat down the price of meat by creating meat surplusses – at least temporarily.

However, I'm awfully afraid that the hastily organized moratorium won't do much good. In the first place, one week isn't really long enough to effect much of a surplus (and lower prices.)

In the second place, I am sure that many families, like the Clocks, have been cutting down their meat consumption gradually ever since the price of beef and pork began to rise more than a year ago.

We have now reached the point where meat is more of a flavoring for other foods, rather than a mainstay of the diet.

For a while, we relied on chicken and fish as tasty protein supplements. Now chicken costs 65 cents a pound or more and most fish is right up there with red meat in the price-per-pound department.

The only other high protein foods on the market are cheese, eggs and beans - - and the only one of those that is still within easy reach of most budgets is beans.

But kids, at least my kids, aren't all that nutty about beans. And their old man has gout and shouldn't touch a bean with a soup ladle (but he does.)

Some old timers who remember the Depression can't understand what all the excitement is about.

One woman told me the other day that during the Depression her husband earned $12 a week as manager of a creamery and hamburger cost about nine cents a pound, or three pounds for a quarter.

I felt better for a while after talking to her until I sat down and worked a little algebra on comparative salaries and the price of hamburger. The results were frightening. Unless you have a take-home pay of more than $132 a week, you would be better off buying hamburger at Depression prices on Depression salaries than you are today. And there are plenty of folks in Charlevoix today, including many retired people, who are trying to make ends meet on a lot less than $132 a week.

But goodness knows we're not in a depression. At least no one has called it that.

If it Fitz

It's a Pistol

By JIM FITZGERALD

If I ever shoot some guy who bugs me, the first question I'll ask myself, as I step over the dead body, is this:

If I hadn't had a gun, would I have bitten him to death?

This is an important question, as any member of the National Rifle Assn. can tell you.

Everytime someone shoots a big shot, such as Bobby Kennedy or George Wallace, there arises a great wail for gun controls. And then, quick as an echo, the gun people answer:

"Guns don't kill people, people do. If the murderer hadn't had a gun, he would have stabbed the guy to death with his swizzle stick."

Certainly.

There is an interesting paradox in the gun controversy. Most lawmen, especially in big cities where the blood spurts regularly, are strongly in favor of gun controls. And their strongest opposition comes from law 'n order people who usually wear love notes to cops on their bumpers.

I have a friend who automatically snarls "Love It or Leave It" everytime he sees a boy with long hair. Naturally, I call him Archie. He thinks all policemen are marvelous people. It's not their fault the commie judges turn all the crooks free.

But Archie owns 12 pistols. He has them stashed, always loaded, all over his home. These handguns have only one purpose – self defense. Archie uses rifles and shotguns to kill animals. The pistols are for killing any unwelcome person who might invade Archie's castle. He also keeps the shotguns loaded, in case of an aerial invasion by pheasants.

One of this nation's hardest-nosed cops is Detroit Police Commissioner Nichols. He is one of Archie's biggest heroes, ranking right up there with Spiro Agnew and John Wayne. But everytime a policeman is gunned down in Detroit, Nichols renews his fervent plea for a ban on handguns.

"Hey, Archie," I tell him, "Commissioner Nichols wants your pistols."

"He don't mean me. He means the crooks who go around robbing and shooting people," Archie says.

"He means you, Arch. Nichols says most shootings result from family arguments. The husband gets drunk and shoots up his family. If he didn't keep a gun under his pillow, he'd just sock them around. Everyone would be sore the next morning, but they'd be alive. It should be against the law for anyone except a cop to own a handgun."

"Watch it, Archie. Now you're on the Judge's side and against the police commissioner. You are being a traitor to your bumper stickers."

"I don't care," says Archie, "if anyone wants to take my guns away, they'll have to do it over my dead body."

Yeah.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Whoever coined the expression 'dumber then a mule' was simply inflating his own ego by assuming human intelligence to be of a higher level. Not so with Uncle Charlie. He and Jenny regarded each other with mutual esteem although at most times their opinions differed as radically as their physical characteristics.

The original misconception stems from sheer stupidity on the part of the man, not the mule. Upon inventing the wheel, prehistoric man originated the IQ rating to elevate himself above an animal, who obviously would not have devised wheels with which to haul his master's worldly goods hither and yon.

In fairness, let us compare their IQs with a simple example. Harness up Jenny, after a two hour chase, and hook her to a log with a pair of tongs. The driver commands "Gid-yap," and then repeats it dozens more times while Jenny studies the length and diameter of the log. She must also determine whether or not it is frozen to the ground or anchored by hidden stubs of branches.

These calculations require a half hour. Next, an imperceptible tug against the harness establishes the proper multiple for determining the number of foot pounds necessary to carry out this silly "Gip-yap" business. If the effort demands more than 65 percent of her mule power, the operation must be reprogrammed with a canthook and crosscut saw.

Our advanced technology has put four wheels under a metal cubical, enabling us to lead an airborn life. These wheels have the annoying habit of becoming mired in mud or stuck in snow, thereby acquainting the drivers' shoes with the novelty of earthly contact as he stumbles in unaccustomed fashion to the rear of the car.

In a split second, his brain tells him to grasp the bumper firmly, back up against the trunk, and plant his feet at an angle for maximum leverage. Then, with wheels spinning furiously in a cloud of smoking rubber, he attempts to lift and push two tons with a boyd conditioned by hoisting martinis.

None too soon, four more wheels arrive on the scene to bear Hercules, on a stretcher to the nearest hospital, where he is offloaded onto a portable bed which is also on wheels. Hopefully he will depart in a chair on wheels.

It took genius to invent the wheel, but the mule was farsighted enough to leave well enough alone.

Last Gunpowder Maker Goes Out of Business

Daniel Boone and his Kentucky rifle today might not be able to get off a shot.

America's powder horn is empty.

Black powder production has been stopped by the last American factory to make it. Not enough business from fireworks makers or the 30,000 or so muzzleloaders marksmen in the United States, says the Du Pont Company, and modern explosives have taken over blasting and military uses. Now black powder is made only abroad.

Without black powder, much of the world's more spectacular history would have fizzled. For 600 years, until smokeless powder and dynamite became available in the 1800's, black powder was man's only explosive, the National Geographic Society says.

STUMP LIFTING

It smashed down castle walls and with them the Age of Chivalry. It provided new might and menace to warring armies and wandering marauders alike. And, in the New World, black powder lifted stumps and split rocks by the millions as the new nation cleared the wilderness.

No one knows who invented black powder, or gunpowder as it was soon called. Some believe the Chinese thought it up, or more likely, got it from early European visitors and then invented the firecracker.

Berthold Schwartz, a German monk who lived more in legend than in recorded history, has been called the father of gunpowder. But most think it was Roger Bacon, the 13th-century English genius.

Bacon was the first to come up with the precise proportions of saltpeter, charcoal, and sulphur to make a real explosion.

Early gunpowder was ground almost to a floury dust. Cannoneers commanded high pay for knowing how to pack it into a gun barrel: too tightly and it would burn without exploding; too loosely and it would merely toss the cannonball out the muzzle.

Bringing up the rear of an army, powder wagons were likely to be enveloped in a cloud of explosive dust that required only a roadside campfire to accelerate wagons and soldiers to ultimate destinations.

EXPLOSIVE WINE

Wetting down gunpowder with wine or other fluids, packing it into cakes, then breaking up the dried cake into coarser grains provided a much more reliable and safely handled explosive.

But accidents still happened. Early Du Pont powder mills along the Brandywine River in Delaware were walled in stone, but had special blow-off wooden roofs.

Gunpowder balsted out the Erie Canal and other waterways, then helped railroaders dig tunnels and cut down mountains. Irish and Chinese working on the railroad used 200 to 300 kegs of blasting powder a day as they pushed toward a meeting of iron horses at Promontory Point, Utah.

On Bunker Hill, "Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes" was an order aimed at saving gunpowder as much as assuring a telling toll among the attacking Redcoats.

In the War of 1812 during the British attack on Baltimore, black powder produced "the rockets' red glare and bombs bursting in air" that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem.

Her Assessment Jumped 800 Percent in 4 Years

Att. Board of Review

Gentlemen:

Your notice of reassessment of our property value mailed February 28 reached us March 5, giving us 6 days to research and review and present our case to your board.

In 1968 lots 10-11-12 of block 2; Pine Point were assessed at 250.00. Now they are assessed at $2100.00. There has been NOTHING done to them. No improvements whatever. That's over 800 percent increase. Granted some for inflution, but 800 percent in four years??

In 1968 lots 7-8-9 were assessed at $3000, with a house. We have improved the house and yard, but $10,100 (In '71 the assessed valuation was $4800 and in '72 $5700.

Taxes on 7-8-9 have gone from $90.14 in 1968 to $240.90 in 1972, a 267 percent rise in four years. Assessed valuation increased 336 2/3 percent.

I can't see anything to equal anything here. If OUR property values have risen 336 2-3 percent on improved property and over 800 percent on unimproved land, we'd like to know examples of property that has DECREASED enough in value to EQUALIZE this.

Nearly $200 of our $287 taxes last year went for schools. Shall we bring our grandchildren to Charlevoix schools to get something for our dollars?

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carl M. Gunn

Zoning Foes Lose Lawsuit on Election

Circuit Judge Harold von Domelin of Hart ruled Monday that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners acted "with discretion" in setting a date "on or before Sept 3" for a referendum vote on countywide zoning.

Judge von Domelin refused to grant injunctive relief to Willis Peters and Karl Waldner, arch opponents of zoning, who claim that the county board has stalled in calling for an election on the issue.

Peters and Waldner represented themselves in the courtroom. The county was represented by Attorney Donald Berlage.

Peters and Waldner represented themselves in the courtroom. The county was represented by Attorney Donald Berlage.

Peters and Waldner, representatives of Citizens Information Service, initiated the suit after their group submitted petitions containing 1,100 signatures to the County Board last year asking for a referendum election.

They also sought to have implementation of the zoning ordinance set aside until the election is held.

Harry Griffin, vice chairman of the county board, told the court that the September deadline was set in anticipation of another state election on school financing.

Judge von Domelin said that arguments presented by Peters and Waldner favoring an earlier election did not apply to referendum elections below the state level.

it seems to us to be an untimely and unhappy decision.

"We know that being principal of Charlevoix Middle School is one of the toughest jobs in town. But somehow, in spite of the ancient, over crowded building; equipment that continually breaks down; mud, dust, leaking roof and falling plaster, Max has managed to keep the morale of the staff high. He is firm but fair with the students. None of us ever doubts for a moment that Max has things under control.

"We want the board to know of our unanimous desire that Mr. Novak remain as our principal. We urge the board to postpone action on his resignation until it can determine if there are conditions under which he might reconsider."

The letter was signed by the entire faculty and staff.

However, after hearing the letter, the board unanimously voted to accept the resignation.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kenifeck

William Kenifecks Buy Staley Hardware Store

William and Terry Kenifeck of Charlevoix Township have purchased the Staley Hardware business on Bridge-st from Clare and Anne Staley.

The Kenifecks also have a five-year lease on the building, with an option to buy.

The business had been in the Staley family for 47 years.

Clare Staley will work with the Kenifecks for the time being to assist with purchasing and help get the new owners started in the retail business, which is new to both of them.

For the past year, Kenifeck has been parts and service manager for Erber Auto.

A native of Waterford, he graduated from Waterford High School in 1955 and worked at General Motors' Fisher Body Division in Pontiac for 12 years before moving to Charlevoix in 1972.

Mrs. Kenifeck (the former Terry McMaken) was born in Lima, Ohio, and graduated from Martin County High School in Stuart, Fla.

They have two children, a son Steve, 8, in the second grade, and a daughter, Kelly, 6, in Kindergarten.

Kenifeck says he doesn't anticipate changing the name of the store, one of Charlevoix's oldest businesses.

Mrs. Eleanor Schultz and Mrs. Helen Scott will continue to work at the store as salesladies. Mike Mol will join the sales staff this summer in the fishing gear department.

County's Jobless Rate Hit 12.1 Pct. in January

Charlevoix County's unemployment rate for January stood as 12.1 percent, according to Leo Kelly, director of the Michigan Employment Security office in Petoskey.

The percent was 1.8 percent below January, 1972, but was 5.4 percent above the 1972 low of 6.7 percent in October.

Kelly said the potential Charlevoix County workforce in January totaled 6,175 -- of whom 5,425 were working and 750 were unemployed.

January is the most recent month for which figures are available.

Kelly said a sizeable percentage of those listed on the Charlevoix County unemployment roles actually should be counted with counties in southern Michigan.

"Quite a few people engaged in road work and other seasonal occupation in the southern part of the state come home to northern Michigan to spend the winter once they are laid off," he said.

The figures also include Great Lakes sailors whose boats have tied up for the winter.

He said Charlevoix County's December unemployment was 11.6 percent, compared to 11.5 for Emmet County, 10.5 percent for Otsego County and 9.9 percent for Antrim County.

Following is a tabulation of unemployment percentages for 1972, reflecting seasonal fluctuations;

Willis' Home From India

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willis returned over the weekend from a three-week trip to India.

Accompanying them on the trip were their sons-in-law and daughters, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Pomeroy of St. Paul, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lennox of Avon, Conn., and three grandchildren.

Leukemia Claims Life Of Keely Ann Smith, 13

Funeral for Keely Ann Smith, 13, daughter of Chief and Mrs. Robert J. Smith of Charlevoix, was held March 19 at St. Mary's Church, the Rev. E. Francis Denay officiating.

Fr. Denay also officated at the rosary service held Sunday evening at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Keely, who had been ill with leukemia for five years, died early Friday morning at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey. She had been hospitalized 10 times in the past year for treatment of the disease.

She was born in Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 17, 1959. She was an eighth grade student at the Charlevoix Middle School and was a member of St. Mary's Church.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by a brother, Douglas G., at home, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mae Smith of Antigo, Wisc.

The family suggests that persons wishing to honor Keely's memory may make contributions in her name to the Michigan Children's Leukemia Foundation.

Three weeks ago, a Keely Smith benefit potluck was held at the American Legion Hall to help defray the cost of Keely's many visits to the hospital. Almost $1,000 was raised.

Clean-Up Idea Wins $10 Prize

The second winner in the Charlevoix Courier's Community Improvement Contest is Jim Berlage, 407 Michigan-ave. Ten dollars is awarded to one winner each week. For instructions and this week's entry blank, please turn to Page 5.

Here is Berlage's suggestion:

"My idea is not a very big one, but I think that it would beautify Charlevoix very much and I think many people would appreciate it.

"Why not one day in early April or late March have a Charlevoix-Hose-Down? Take a Saturday when lots of participation is available and get students, adults, area businessmen, the Charlevoix Fire Department, other city officials - everybody - to get out and hose down the streets and sidewalks of Charlevoix, and get rid of all the dirt, dust, and grime from the winter months. Give everybody brooms, shovels and wheelbarrows and really give Charlevoix a thorough cleaning.

"I think everyone would appreciate walking and driving on clean sidewalks and streets. I know that during the summer the sidewalks in front of vacant lots usually have maybe a half an inch of dirt on them from over the winter. Since they are in front of empty lots nobody feels it's their responsibility to clean them.

"Well, come on everyone, let's get out on one of these next Saturdays and give Charlevoix a good cleaning. I'm sure that with the support of the city officials and all of the townspeople we can do it.

"Let's keep "Charlevoix the Beautiful" beautiful!

Southern Storm Traps Travelers From Charlevoix

While Charlevoixans staked out garden plots, counted crocuses and waited for the first robin, residents of southern Michigan were busy digging out of the winter's first blizzard St. Patrick's Day weekend.

Heavy snow driven by high winds clogged highways, stranded thousands of motorists and brought land and air travel to a virtual standstill in a broad swath across the state from Detroit to Grand Rapids.

Aside from high winds, Charlevoix missed the brunt of the storm. The only inconvenience was an hour and a half long power outage from 5 a.m. until 6:30 a.m. Sunday when most folks were still asleep. There was no snow locally.

Although snow depths ranged from about 10 inches at Detroit to 17 inches at Jackson, mountainous drifts reared up across main interstate arteries faster than they could be removed.

The massive storm howled in shortly after dark Friday on the heels of a northeast wind which forced brim-full Saginaw Bay, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River over their banks.

At one point Saturday morning about one-third of Bay County was under water, along with vast areas of East Detroit, the Grosse Pointes and other north Detroit suburbs.

With Great Lakes levels at their highest in more than 40 years, winds of even medium velocity create flood conditions in low-lying lakeshore communities.

Among the Charlevoix travelers stranded in the snow belt was William Wilson of Consumers Power Co. who flew to Grand Rapids Friday morning to attend to company business. His return flight to Traverse City Friday night was cancelled because of the storm, as were all north-bound flights on Saturday.

Wilson said bus runs also were scratched and a rent-a-car agency refused to lease him an automobile because of extremely hazardous driving conditions.

Wilson finally secured a seat on a Chicago-bound flight Sunday morning and was able to make connections for another flight to Traverse City Sunday afternoon.

Another stranded traveler was Charlevoix Courier Advertising Manager David Sheppard who, with his wife Brenda and son Eric, had driven to Battle Creek Friday evening to visit relatives.

Sheppard said the only way to keep ahead of the heavy, wet snow was to "keep shoveling."

The Sheppards were snowbound in Battle Creek Sunday, but managed to return to the snowless north Monday morning.

Jelly Week? You Bet! It's Almost Here

Bill Murray, a teacher at Charlevoix High School, has been named chairman of Charlevoix's first annual Jelly Week by Mel Renaud, president of the Charlevoix Area Jaycees.

Youth Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children and the Senior Class of Charlevoix High School have joined the efforts of the Jaycees to insure the success of the First Annual Jelly Week for handicapped children during March 26 through April 1.

Bill Murray welcomed the group's help and stated that "with this kind of assistance we are sure to reach our goal."

Volunteers will canvass Charlevoix and other cities across the state during Jelly Week to raise funds to support organizations that give assistance to handicapped children. Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children has been chosen as the recipient of the money raised in the Charlevoix area. Some 150,000 containers of jelly are expected to be sold in Michigan, 540 of them in Charlevoix, Bill Murray said.

Charlevoix Area Jaycees will make Saturday, March 31, the day of their main effort with volunteers of the Y.C.A.R.C. and the CHS Senior Class.

Ray Kipke Wins Niche in State 'Hall of Fame'

Former Coach Honored

Retired Charlevoix High School Head Coach Ray L. Kipke will be one of five Michigan coaches inducted into the Coaches Hall of Fame in ceremonies at Michigan State University's Kellogg Center March 24.

Kipke, who coached football and basketball at Charlevoix from 1928 until his retirement in 1950, is presently in Arizona but is expected to be back in Michigan in time to attend the banquet.

Tickets for the banquet may be reserved up until Thursday of this week by contacting Barry Anderson, present CHS basketball coach and vice president of the Michigan High School Coaches' Association.

A "Hall of Fame" plaque will be presented to Kipke by Hal Schram of the Detroit Free Press. Banquet speaker will be Bob Devaney.

Awards also will be presented to "Coaches of the Year" in football, basketball and wrestling.

The banquet and presentation ceremony will be held about 2 p.m. between morning and afternoon games of the State High School Basketball semi-finals.

Upon his retirement in 1950, Charlevoix sports fans designated the present football field south of the high school as Kipke field.

At the dedication, former High School Principal Harry Bingham hailed Kipke for producing both "scholars and athletes."

"Coach Kipke has been well-known for instilling good sportsmanship in his boys," Bingham said. "He has been a great fellow with whom to work. It has been a great pleasure to have been associated with him in every way."

Before coming to Charlevoix, Kipke taught at Williamston High School for one year.

Bill Carey Averages 27 Points a Game

It may have been a long season for the won-8, lost-9 Harvard freshmen basketball team, but for Charlevoix's Bill Carey it wasn't long enough.

Carey was a season-long standout for the Yardlings, but in his last five games he was more than just that. During the final stretch Carey averaged nearly 27 points per game, including a pair of 30 point efforts against Merrimack and Ivy League rival Brown.

Carey was his squad's leader in both scoring and rebounding, averaging 16.6 points and 11.2 rebounds per game for the year. In addition Carey led the Harvard freshmen in field goal accuracy, hitting on 56 percent of his shots, and tied for the team lead in free throws percentage at 75 percent. Carey's high rebounding total was 17, achieved against both Tufts and Boston University.

Freshman Coach John Harvey calls Carey "one of the players who developed most as the season progressed. Bill is strong, runs well, is a good shooter and led us on the fast break. I'd say he has great varsity potential at forward."

Fire Victims Need Clothes

The Marcella Murdick family of 406 W. Hurlbut-st., burned out early Sunday morning, is badly in need of clothing, according to friends of the family.

Boys' trousers, size 14 slim (waist 27-28), are needed, along with boys' shirts, sizes 12, 14 and 16.

Also needed are girls' garments size 5 and 7 (junior petite).

Mrs. Murdick also lost all of her clothing. She is a size 12.

Donations are being accepted at the Ed Bouday home, 104 Robinson-st.

FIRE AT the home of Mrs. Marcella Murdick, 406 W. Hurlbut st., early Sunday morning gutted the first floor and did extensive damage to upstairs rooms. The fire was extinguished by the Charlevoix Fire Department. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Murdick's son, John, 19, who found the utility room ablaze when he went to investigate wisps of smoke. John was watching television in the living room with his brother, Jerry, 12, and sister, Kathy, 16, and their guests, Mark Castro and Laurie Heeres. Mrs. Murdick and her daughters Julie, 7, and Becky, 4, were asleep upstairs. All escaped without injury. Members of the family are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Hamlin and other friends.

"SLEEP that knits up the raveled sleeve of care, the death of each day's life, sore labor's bath, balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course." William Shakespeare said it well, but so did East Jordan photographer Sam Carlisle when he snapped this picture of two-year-old Michael Root grabbing 40 winks. Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Root of East Jordan and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Root of Charlevoix.

MEA's Terry Hernden Named Chief of NEA

Terry Herndon, 34-year-old executive secretary of the Michigan Education Association, has been selected executive secretary of the National Education Association. Herndon will succeed Sam Lambert, who announced his resignation in Sept. 1972. Lambert's retirement is effective April 1, 1973.

Herndon became executive secretary of the Michigan Education Association in July, 1969, after speeding two years with NEA as an assistant director of the field service division in Washington, D.C.

From 1962 until he joined the NEA staff in 1967, Herndon was a mathematics and science teacher in junior and senior high schools in Warren, Michigan.

Herndon is the youngest man ever named to the post of NEA executive secretary. As such, he becomes the chief executive officer of the largest professional association in the world, with 1.1 million members in the United States and overseas.

Herndon was born in Russellville, Ky., but grew up and received most of his education in Michigan. He earned B.A. and M.A. degrees at Wayne State University in Detroit, and has done additional work at Albion College and Morehead College in Kentucky. He is presently a doctoral applicant at the University of Michigan.

Herndon, his wife, Mary, and their two children, are residents of Lansing.

Library Notes

It's time for a review of some of our latest non fiction, and we begin with "Soldier," an outstanding new book which is bound to become an American saga. The author, Tony Herbert, one of three boys in a Lithuanian immigrant family struggling to survive the Depression, enlisted in the Army at the age of 17.

He achieved a remarkable proficiency in every possible military skill and became the most decorated man in the Korean War. After completing his formal education, he returned to military life and by the time he arrived in Vietnam, he was a lieutenant colonel destined for the top levels of Army leadership.

And then it happened! And it became a familiar pattern of our times—a dedicated individual trying to fight the corruption of an honorable profession. As Inspector [illegible] the 173rd, he [illegible] watched the leadership of that service deteriorate into a careerist establishment riddled with negligence and interested only in protecting its public image and power interests. He reported what he saw; he pressed for investigations; he tried to instigate reforms. But the establishment prevailed. In the spring of 1971, he filed formal charges against his superiors, accusing them of covering up U.S. war crimes. His charges were dismissed and, after humiliation and harassment, he took what he saw as his only alternative and retired from the Army at the age of 41. Page 240 presents an example of the outspoken and forthright accusations which Anthony, Lt. Col. Rtd., has had the courage to speak of in this serious and revealing new book. It should be read by everyone who has lived thru the past tragic war years.

"All Creatures Great and Small" by James Herriot, is a very different kind of book. It contains the warm and delightful memories of a still practicing veterinary surgeon. Since almost everyone has had some sort of pet sometime and loved some little creature somewhere, this book will appeal to readers of all ages. The author was always aware of the wild beauty of Scotland and his beloved Yorkshire. The sunlit fields became his operating table, and his patients—from kittens to race horses all filled him with fascination. And to top off this beautiful book, he falls in love with the farmer's daughter!

Our patrons have been waiting for "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye"--the memories of John Kennedy. The two authors, Dave Powers and Ken O'Donnell, were known by the White House [illegible] the "Irish [illegible] Mafia". They were President Kennedy's devoted friends and confidantes for over 15 years, and they avoided the limelight so successfully that they were usually mistaken for Secret Service Agents.

According to Ken O'Donnell, John Kennedy had only one close friend, except for his brother, Bobby, and that was Dave Powers. He was not a political advisor but simply someone whom Kennedy liked to have around as much as possible. O'Donnell was Kennedy's political right hand--trouble shooter, expediter and devil's advocate. Together these two men have put together an informative and humorous narrative from hundreds of hours of taped interviews and personal conversations. This book of reminiscences reaches the inside of the man as none other has before.

Ironton

Mrs. Ross Alexander

Mary Carol Nielsen was a guest organist Sunday morning for the Methodist Church services in Charlevoix.

The girls from the Ironton School were invited to the Sternberg Beauty Shop in Charlevoix Monday to have their hair done with a lesson of proper grooming by Roberta Whitley and Katie Curtis.

Mrs. Durinberger of Charlevoix and Mrs. Arther Thompson of East Jordan took the girls from school to the Beauty Shop.

The spring birds are arriving. We had two robins in our front yard Tuesday morning, so it is now time to get the bird houses ready for our feathered friends.

Chester and Leona Nietupski, new owners of Scotts Marina, have built a new boat dock and are raising the present docks. They also will raise the gas pumps 14 inches because of the high water level. The road in front of the ferry ramps is covered with about five inches of water.

William LaValley has started his spring yard cleaning.

After rain last week the temperature dropped from 52 degrees to 30 degrees. The rain turned to a very light snow Friday morning, but it disappeared fast. Cooler weather is much better for the fruit and shrubs as the buds have been developing much too early. We surely have had a most unusual and unpredictable winter.

Graduates

Navy Fireman Mark S. Blanchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Blanchard of Route 2, Charlevoix, graduated from the basic Enlisted Submarine School in Groton, Conn.

The school trains selected candidates in submarine escape, safety, systems and operating principles in preparation for assignment to submarines in the Pacific and Atlantic fleets.

Matmen Elect Linse Most Valuable Wrestler

By Norm Probert

Senior wrestler Pat Linse, who broke almost every record on the books, ended his season with a 27-2 win-loss record and helped the Charlevoix matmen to a successive 8-7 dual meet record.

Linse's two-year record stands at 47-6. He was pinned only once in his high school career. He lost his last two high school matches to Don Bullard of Shepard, who took third place in the state, and Hank Elzinga of Wyoming, state runner up in the 138-pound weight class last year.

For his outstanding record, Linse's teammates elected him the most valuable wrestler of the year.

Runner-up honors went to Sophomore heavyweight Phil Christ who led the team with a record of 18 pins. Overall, he had a 22-5 win-loss record.

Winning the scholastic award was Senior Butch Klooster. Klooster ended his year with a creditable 18-5 record in the 145-155 weight class. Klooster lost his last three matches to the state champion, placing him fourth among Michigan wrestlers in his class.

Both Linse and Klooster qualified for the state meet recently at Lansing Waverly, along with 75 other wrestlers from Class C and D schools. It was the second year both boys had qualified.

Charlevoix wrestlers had 194 wins, 193 losses and five ties in the season just ended, showing considerable improvement over last year's [illegible] wins.

Although the season is officially over, High School wrestlers will be assisting in a Middle School wrestling program which starts Wednesday right after school. The program includes a "take down tournament" with different weight divisions for each grade. The tourney should end before the Middle School track practice begins.

On the ballot filled out by the wrestlers, Tom Mort won honors as the "most improved wrestler" with Pat Whitley runner-up.

Dan Key was judged the "most determined wrestler," followed by Jim Borths.

Scholastically, Butch Klooster took the honors, with Tom Mort as runner-up. Pat Whitley was selected as [illegible] sparkplug with Terry Drew coming in second.

In the "Lighter Half" category, Tim DeYoung came in first, followed by Butch Klooster.

In the "Legman" department, Linse was first, followed by Marc Custer. Phil Christ was elected "Hot Dog", with Pat DeYoung second. The "Bone Head" crown went to Pat DeYoung, with Brian Warner in the runner-up slot.

Terry Drew was elected the "most outstanding" freshman, with Dane Whitley second. Among Sophomores, the honors went to Phil Christ and Dan Mort; among Juniors, Bill Thorp and Tom Mort tied for first, with Pat Whitley runner-up. Linse and Klooster copped the honors for the Seniors.

The boys decided that Traverse City, [illegible] City and Petoskey (in that order) were the toughest teams they faced in the past year.

Lakes to Peak Early

The levels of all the Great Lakes will be higher this year than they were in 1972 except for Lake Superior. Most of them will also peak earlier than normal but be somewhat lower than originally expected.

The reason for this, according to Dr. Frank H. Quinn, Chief of the Lake Hydrology Branch and expert in hydraulic and hydrologic matters at the Lake Survey, is the fact that unusually mild weather in January caused early runoff of precipitation received on the basin in November and December of '72.

Instead of receiving winter-stored water in March or early April, the Lakes began receiving supplies in January, thus spreading out the normally heavy spring runoff. This has a dampening effect on levels.

Lake Survey Center is a U.S. Department of Commerce unit under NOAA's National Ocean Survey and is responsible for charting, collecting and reporting water level information and conducting fresh water oceanographic studies of the Great Lakes.

Using a mathematical model and Lake Survey's computer, Dr. Quinn's latest forecast, prepared March 1, calls for Lake Superior to peak in September about four inches below last year; Lakes Michigan and Huron to peak in July about four inches above their [illegible] highs; Lakes St. Clair and Erie to continue setting records and peak in May approximately four inches and eight inches above last year respectively; and Lake Ontario to reach its [illegible] high in June at seven inches above last season's high.

Quinn cautioned that the danger still exists and that the number and intensity of storms in '73 will determine how much damage by flooding and erosion will be experienced. Lake Survey Center specialists will continue to monitor the situation closely, reporting on unusual trends or situations.

Ruppe Fighting to Keep OEO Programs Going

Cong. Philip Ruppe, R-Mich., has co-sponsored a Joint House-Senate Resolution calling upon the President to continue the funding for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"The Office of Economic Opportunity must be reformed, not abolished," Ruppe commented on his action. "In many instances OEO has become a vital tool in helping the poor to help themselves. Community Action Agencies, the local units maintained by OEO funds, also play an important role in assisting in the development of rural America."

President Nixon has proposed that the Office of Economic Opportunity be dismantled at the end of Fiscal Year 1973 -- July 1st of this year. Under the Administration's proposal a number of OEO programs, including Headstart, would be transferred to other governmental agencies. Community Action Agencies -- the local delivery units of OEO funds and other federal grant programs -- are not due to receive additional federal operating funds after this fiscal year.

"Poverty remains one of the chief social ills of our nation, and it exists primarily in the inner cities and rural areas," observed Ruppe. "I know that in the 11th District of Michigan, the OEO-supported Community Action Agencies are for the most part working effectively in fighting poverty and in building better communities for all citizens. Whether it be education programs such as Headstart, services to senior citizens, health programs, providing jobs, or helping to develop housing and other public facilities with federal funds, Community Action Agencies have been an effective [illegible] of federal assistance in Northern Michigan.

"It is essential that they services be continued," [illegible] Ruppe concluded. "I am therefore prepared to work as hard as I can to see that the Office of Economic Opportunity survives."

A two-day Estate Planning short course has been scheduled for April 3 and 5 in the First State Bank Building conference room in Charlevoix, according to Ed Rebman, County Extension Director. These will be day time sessions starting at 9:30 p.m. and running to the middle of the afternoon.

"Most people are very hesitant and don't have much information on estate planning," Rebman says. He has arranged for specialists from Michigan State University and local attorneys to participate in the program.

Some of the questions to be answered are: What is an estate? Why develop a plan? Who gets what? What is probate? And How to transfer your estate? More details of program will be presented next week.

Everyone is welcome to attend. Rebman urges both husbands and wives to come to the sessions.

School Chiefs Discuss Money Woes With Dems

By Margaret [illegible]

Barbara Sawyer of the Democratic State Central staff, who was expected to be the main speaker at the Charlevoix County Democratic monthly meeting was unable to attend the March 15, East Jordan meeting. However an interesting discussion of school financing problems was led by Superintendents Dave Fultz, Twin Valley Districts and Bob Miller, Charlevoix District.

Miller opened the discussion with a quick review of state action and inaction regarding education finance since the early 60's. According to Miller, there have always been divisions of interest between rich and poor districts and between urban and rural districts. These divisions have seemingly paralyzed the legislature or resulted in a patchword of legislative compromises.

Fultz explained the present Milliken-Bursely bill as a power equalizing approach which would guarantee a definite number of dollars behind each pupil in the state, regardless of the wealth of the district, provided the district levies the required millage. A district would have to levy 22 mills in 1973-74 and 25 mills in 1975 to get full state aid. This bill has just been reported out of committee to the senate.

Failure of Proposal "C" to pass last November is interpreted by the state administration as public support for maintaining a property tax as the primary method of financing education. Consequently present administration proposals make receipt of state aid dependent of the extent to which a district is willing to tax itself.

Faced with a nation-wide taxpayer revolt, it is evident that the only way people can protest high taxes is at the local level. They have no chance to vote directly on federal or state income taxes, but they do vote on school millages. Thus, at a time when people are most apt to vote against a local millage, the legislature is likely to make receipt of full state aid contingent on passage of 22 mills or more in taxes, on property that has already sharply increased in assessed valuation.

Thus school boards, already operating on tight budgets, have the impossible task of persuading taxpayers to approve high millages, or of losing not only local tax revenue but also state aid revenue.

[illegible] Democrats on [illegible] to obtain a May 15 referendum on a constitutional amendment that would place a limit of 15 mills on local property taxes for education.

Some such limit is necessary, and can only be achieved by a constitutional amendment. The legislature already has a constitutional obligation to provide equal education for all children. With a limit on the amount that can be levied locally, the state obligation to equalize the amount of tax dollars behind each pupil would be clearly defined.

Miller also mentioned a little publicized bill introduced by Rep. Dominic Jacobetti (D-Negaunee) which would allow teachers with 35 years teaching completed, to retire at age 55 with full retirement benefits. This would ease school budgets by reducing the number of teachers at the top of the pay scale and opening up jobs for new teachers.

Martin Paul, county Democratic chairman, announced that the next meeting would be a potluck dinner on Sunday, April 15, at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix. Details regarding the program will be announced later.

Coffee and cookies were served by the Democratic Womens Club, with Mrs. Janis Dietrich in charge.

Fish Shanties Must Go: CG

The U.S. Coast Guard reminds the owners of fishing shanties that they must be removed from the ice before the ice becomes unsafe, which is already the case in the Charlevoix area.

If the shanties are not removed and fall into the water, they are considered flotsam and constitute a violation of the refuse act of 1899.

The act is enforced by the Coast Guard and the violator is subject to a fine of up to $10,000 or up to one year in prison.

Hearing Set March 21 On Housing of Retarded

A public hearing on community placement of former residents of state facilities will be held Wednesday, March 21 in the Civic Center, Lansing. The hearing will begin at 9:30 p.m. in Prudden Hall.

The hearing was called by state mental health director E. Gordon Yudashkin, M.D., and state social services director R. Bernard Houston.

In a joint statement, the two directors said:

"The state departments of Mental Health and Social Services are engaged in joint effort to improve and maintain high standards in community homes where people from state mental health facilities are placed.

"This statewide public hearing is being called to clarify the Department of Mental Health's program of releasing patients to the community and the relationship between DMH and DSS placement program.

"The hearing will provide an opportunity for any public or private agency, or other interested party, to present views on placement programs."

Chairing the session will be John T. Dempsey, Governor Milliken's director of state programs and budgets.

Both Dr. Yudashkin and Houston will make brief presentations designed to explain the current policies, standards and plans for further development of community placement programs under the two departments.

More than 30 persons representing themselves or various organized groups have indicated they will make presentations at the hearing.

Included are representatives of the legislature, several community mental health boards in Michigan, the Michigan Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children, the Michigan Society for Mental Health and several chapters of Michigan Association for Mentally Retarded Children.

A number of private home operators have also indicated they will make presentations at the hearing as well as representatives of Michigan Association of Community Residential Facilities, Inc., Community Living Centers, Inc., the Statewide Home Owners Association, and Effort, Inc., of Detroit, and Citizens for Better Care.

Dr. Yudashkin and Mr. Houston have said they will consider any and all proposals received at the hearing in developing further plans to improve placement programs and standards for community homes serving patients from state mental health facilities.

Currently, there are nearly 2,000 former residents of state mental hospitals or state institutions for retarded living in community facilities operated under contract with Department of Mental Health agencies. An additional 7,000 are on convalescent status with their own families or in other community homes.

"The needs of these people can best be met in community [illegible] placement programs [illegible].

"We are well aware, however, of the necessity of continuing to maintain reasonable standards and of the need to work closely with home operators to resolve potential problems."

Houston said his presentation will include comments on DSS programs for the care of other persons in the community who have never been in state institutions."

Mental Health Unit Hears Report on Intensive Care Unit

The Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board held its March meeting at the Middle School in Gaylord. The following items were acted upon by the Board.

1. A resolution was passed to reply to Dr. Philip D. Arben's committee to revise the mental health statutes. This Board is concerned about five areas in Dr. Arben's revision of the current mental health statutes.

2. The Finance Committee and the Administrator said they would meet March 5 to finalize the Board's 1974 request to the County Commissioners for all agencies in the four-county area, con[illegible] Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Otsego Counties.

3. A report was heard from Russ Wood, acting director of the Area Mental Health Clinic, on the status of the Intensive Psychiatric Care Unit that the Board is hoping to fund beginning the new fiscal year July 1, 1973. Wood reported that Lockwood-MacDonald Hospital is now certified by the State to receive psychiatric patients.

4. Chairman of the Board Ronald Ramsey of Cheboygan was directed to write a letter to Dr. Yudashkin, with a copy to Sen. Robert Davis, on patients returning from mental institutions into the community without any warning to the agencies and or communities that they are returning to.

5. Several board members indicated they would be attending a one-day conference being held March 28 at Michigan State University dealing with community placement needs of the mentally retarded, being supported jointly by the Department of Public Health and the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The next meeting will be held at the First State Bank of Charlevoix on Thursday, April 5, 1973 at 8:00 P.M. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A Too Early Spring Could Hurt Growers

Charlevoix County's recent spring-like weather has fruit growers worried, according to County Extension Agent Ed Rebman.

Rebman said the recent spell of warm weather has caused buds on cherry trees to swell and it's way too early for them to blossom.

If they get too far along, and a deep freeze sets in, the 1973 crop could be ruined.

Growers are hoping for either a few more weeks of chilly weather to retard blossoming, or else continued warm weather without a freeze.

In Charlevoix, crocuses and tulips are well above ground in many gardens, thanks to the unseasonably warm weather.

OEO Is No Answer For America's Poor

Republican Cong. Philip Ruppe from the 11th Congressional District is the co-sponsor of a joint House-Senate Resolution calling upon the President to continue funding for the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

The OEO, you'll remember, is one of the federal bureaus slated to get the ax under President Nixon's austerity program on the home front.

Although we admire Cong. Ruppe's derring-do in standing up the President, we don't share his enthusiasm for the OEO, which he says is a "vital tool in helping the poor to help themselves."

This, of course, is why the OEO was organized in the first place. But from where we sit, it appears that the chief success of the OEO has been in supplying jobs for OEO staffers.

Despite the efforts of the OEO, unemployment in Northern Michigan remains dismally high, even in the summer months. The jobless rate in Charlevoix County was 10.8 percent last June, 8.3 percent in July and 7.2 percent in August -- the months we should achieve full employment, if ever.

We are afraid that Cong. Ruppe's well-intentioned efforts to revive the OEO are something akin to kicking a dead horse. The OEO has had its chance and the results are hardly worth crowing about.

Instead of pumping more tax dollars into the OEO and its myriad Community Action Agencies, which seem to do little more than create more government jobs, we would like to see the federal government come up with a substantial tax break for businesses and industries which strive to put more people back on the payroll. The tax relief would act as a subsidy to help pay the salaries of additional workers, who, in turn, would be adding to the nation's gross national product.

If the federal government is truly interested in helping the poor, it must provide the incentives for creating more jobs in the private sector of the economy. But the private sector cannot grow without the capital to expand, the same capital that is now being siphoned off by the Washington bureaucrats.

The Emergency Employment Act passed a few moons ago sounded good in theory. But the only jobs it created were government jobs. And goodness knows we don't need any more of those for the time being.

Does Charlevoix High Need Smoking Lounge

Dear Editor:

This concerns my opnion of the invasion of smoking privileges and the consideration of a smoking lounge at C.H.S.

In reference to a recent article published in the school newspaper by Shannon Ratigan, he stated "For you non-smokers who are so concerned with our health, why don't you consider the possibility of the smokers catching pneumonia standing out in the cold at the end of each hour and lunch time? Who wants to go outside and freeze?"

I think the school is no place to smoke. It not only pollutes the air within the school, but it also pollutes the minds of the students (smokers and non-smokers).

I am sure many of you are aware of the immense smoking in the bathrooms and elsewhere. As a result Charlevoix High School broke the record in cases of tardiness last year. Many parents aren't aware of the times their kids skip class to go out for a smoke, only to return with a fake excuse and the heavy, laden, pungent smell of smoke.

As Shannon says, many parents do permit their kids to smoke at home, but they are probably not aware of the reasons the kids smoke and what a health hazard it is.

This leads to the question, why? I have come to the conclusion that the smoking problem begins in the home with the standards of the bringing up process. I think that parents of younger children should consider this increasing problem and try to rehabilitate the older kids while taking precautionary steps to prevent smoking of the younger ones. I realize many kids smoke because it is the "In" thing to do and they think it is cool. Others use it as a crutch to lean on and an escape from the reality of the obstacles they must face.

Everyone is aware of the health hazard of smoking but few seem concerned only for themselves and the majority of non-smokers are left to suffer. As a result of the increase of smoking the number of deaths resulting in the devastating disease of lung cancer has steadily risen.

The school is a place to get an education. This is why I object very much to the consideration of a smoking lounge. The school is a place to learn knowledge not how to skip class, rip off one admission slip from the office, or sneak off to the bathroom, parking lot or pines to smoke.

The school's appearance is slowly deteriorating because of the cigarette butts being dropped around, and the stench of the destroying little white monsters.

As you might have read on the package, "Warning...The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is harmful to your health."

Remember this when you are about to take a drag!

Sincerely yours,
a very concerned citizen

Questions and Answers On Countywide Zoning

Q. My property values were raised this year. Does the Zoning Ordinance have anything to do with this? W.G.K.

A. No. Zoning does reflect how land is used, but, in terms of the value of the property, zoning has no affect.

Q. Somebody told me that the County Zoning is more restrictive than my Township's zoning. Does this mean the County Ordinance is in effect in my Township? D.A.R.

A. No. The law governing Township Zoning clearly states that Township Zoning supersedes County Zoning. This holds true whether the Township is more, or less, [illegible] the Township Ordinance is adopted before or after the County Ordinance is in effect.

Would Like City Lamps Repaired

March 19, 1973

Dear Sir:

I think it would be so nice to see again the lamps lighted in the Park, the ones on the corner of Belvedere and Bridge sts. I have recently seen a picture of the lamps when they weren't broken, and they were certainly a very pleasing sight at the park.

If the cost wasn't too prohibitive, the cement pillars could be repaired or replaced and new globes put on them.

If repairing them is not feasible, the broken pillars should be removed.

Charlevoix is such an attractive town, with its East Park and boat harbor right in the heart of town. I feel by fixing the lamps and pillars it would be [illegible] one more small way to keep Charlevoix [illegible].

Thank You,
Sincerely,
Mrs. Charles V. Clifford

Q. I have always wondered where state tax money comes from? K.C., Cheboygan

A. Citizens Research Council of Michigan has just produced an exhaustive study of this subject and its findings are interesting.

For instance, in the last fiscal year (1971-72), the personal income tax produced more than $655 million for the State's General Fund and $71.8 million for local units of government for a total of almost $727 million.

The sales tax - another big producer that everyone contributes to - yielded $440 million to the school aid fund, $110 million to local units of government, and more than $330 million for the General Fund for a total of more than $880 million.

The use tax - a sort of extension of the sales tax, produced more than $107 million, including more than $22 million from telephone and telegraph use and almost $22 million from automotive sources.

Cigarette taxes produced more than $105 million for the General Fund and $23 million plus for the school aid fund, or a total of almost $129 million.

Beer drinkers poured almost $41 million into the State's General Fund followed by about $30 million for liquor and more than $1 million for wine.

If you are a motorist, you helped contribute about $322 million in gasoline taxes and $135 million for such things as license fees, all of which went to the motor vehicle highway fund.

If you inherited a substantial sum of money last year, you contributed to the $35,244,879 in taxes and if you had substantial investments of such things as interest and dividends you may have contributed to the $39.9 million realized from intangibles taxes last year - of which cities, villages receives $14.5 million as well as part of the surplus over that figure.

The Queen's English

By BILL CLOCK

I might as well admit it. I can't understand English. At least the Queen's English, as she is spoken today in Old Blighty.

Friday night, Judy and I secured the services of a baby sitter and had ourselves a night on the town. We walked down to the Palace Theatre to see what promised to be a delightful movie entitled "Travels With My Aunt." It was the first movie we had seen since "Hello, Dolly", and you know how long ago that was.

I halfway expected something akin to "Auntie Mame", but poor Auntie Mame would have been as puzzled as I was by this British import. The lead role was played by charming creature named Maggie Smith, who undoubtedly had some pretty witty lines to say but you could't prove it by me.

She spoke with an unbelievable British accent that left me scanning the bottom of the screen for sub-titles. I missed a good 90 percent of what she said, and her British co-stars were almost as bad.

When the action moved from London to Paris, I felt better. The cast spoke impeccable French, which came through much clearer than Miss Smith's foggy English.

Then when Miss Smith and her stuffy English banker nephew boarded a train for Istanbul and ran into an American teenager I was on home grounds again. I still couldn't understand what the British were saying, but I could follow the drift of their conversation from Miss America's answers to their questions.

Years ago, George Bernard Shaw, an Irishman who spent most of his life in England, upbraided the British for their wholesale slaughter of the English language. You'll remember the song "Why Can't the English learn to Speak" from "My Fair Lady." The musical was based on Shaw's play "Poygmalion."

The song points out that although people of other lands take pride in speaking their native tongues correctly, the British don't give a hoot. The song also notes that there are places where English "completely disappears," namely America.

If the truth were known, the English we speak in the United States today is probably a lot closer to 16th and 17th Century English than the gibberish that presently passes for English in Great Britain. As a general rule, colonies tend to stick a lot closer to the language of their founding fathers than does the land where the language originated.

In Quebec, for example, the French-speaking populace takes great pride in the fact that their language has not changed in 300 years. Their motto is "Nous n'avons pas change."

European French, on the other hand, has undergone drastic mutations through the years so that the French spoken in Canada bears little resemblance to the French spoken in the salons of Paris.

When I was in high school, students were often forced to listen via the P.A. system to long, history-making speeches by British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Now Sir Winston was perhaps one of the last great masters of the English language. He had a way with words that frightened his enemies and gave heart to his constituents. I shall never forget the long, thundering cadence of his sentences.

But I'll have to admit I never understood a word he said. Like Maggie Smith, he always sounded as though the dentist had left a wad of cotton in his mouth.

All of which is a shame, because English is a beautiful language and deserves to be spoken correctly. By correctly I mean the language that is spoken within a two-mile radius of downtown Charlevoix and not a step beyond.

Factories Don't Make Nuts

By JIM FITZGERALD

UAW President Leonard Woodcock is so right. I suspect he used to recite Shakespeare while working on the assembly line.

Woodcock recently expressed anger at "academics" for writing "elitist nonsense" about the blue collar blues.

A lot of chrome domes claim factory work is so boring it is driving the workers buggy. Woodcock doesn't buy it. He says the chrome domes don't know what they are preaching about because they "have never done any real work in their lives."

What do the factory workers say? I'm glad you asked. I worked a total of several years in the factories of Mueller Brass, General Motors and Chrysler (even then, Ford had a better idea). And I remember the work as far from boring.

On the contrary, it was often entertaining. Sometimes it got exciting.

The beautiful thing was that you could do the work without thinking about it. This left plenty of time for thinking about other things. You not only could whistle while you worked, you could lead the band and tap dance.

Fur instance, I spent one summer counting MoPar fan belts for Chrysler. This was called "taking inventory." I counted millions of belts as I transferred the, one by one, from one bin to another. But I wasn't bored. I simply shoved the bins 15 feet apart and played belt basketball. I got so I could throw a belt into the bin with my eyes shut, between my legs, standing on one foot, while a co-worker poured Coke in my socks.

Then, at Mueller Brass, there was the infamous water test about which I have written previously. The assignment was to discover if there were any holes in various plumbing parts. I did this by fitting the parts into an air machine and then dipping the machine into a tank of water. I would then pull a lever which sent air shooting into the part. And if there was a hole in the part, I would get a face full of water. Or maybe the water would hit me in the pants depending on the locations of the hole. You never knew. It was exciting.

Also educational. Because at the next-door air machine there was a worker named Jake Jacobson who aspired to become an actor. He, like me, appreciated that factory work leaves the mind free for more interesting things. He constantly recited passages from Shakespeare in a magnificent baritone that quivered the water. Today Jake is a famous sports anouncer on Channel 5 in Saginaw. Everytime I hear him declaim a baseball score my pants feel soggy.

Any repetitious job can become boring if you don't use your imagination which is another word for daydreaming. If a guy grows weary of talking football with co-workers he can always just shut up and think about Sophia Loren or even his wife. I used to daydream a lot about the day I would own Mueller Brass and would construct an air machine big enough to test foremen for holes in their heads.

Leonard Woodcock is right. It is insulting to say factory workers are so dumb they can be driven nuts by a ho-hum job. All they have to do is think about something else. (Don't tell me, I know I just left a big hole that Ralph Nader could drive a busted truck through.)

Anyway, my old friends tell me I'm a lot nuttier now than when I worked in facturies. Onward and Upward?

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Although salt was priceless to the early settlers as a preservative when sprinkled on meat, its value today when sprinkled on our highways is beyond belief.

In Detroit alone, they stockpile 70,000 tons annually for this purpose!

We shall be forever indebted to a few turn of the century visionaries in the auto industry for their foresight which now supports the major share of our economy.

They viewed the old Tin Lizzie as no belle of the ball, a fact which even the most loyal old timer is hard pressed to contradict. She perched awkwardly on 30-inch wheels, as graceful as a teenager in her first high heels. The tires were as prominent as buck beeth beneath long sloping fenders which stood out like cauliflower ears on an ungainly body which was more angles than curves.

Its black skin (they came in only one color) was the thickness of a cast iron skillet. A pair of frog like eyes stared without blinking, except at night when stumbling and wobbling down a corduroy road. She doddered from maturity into senility with her valves clicking audibly like false teeth under her hinged bonnet.

These early prophets gave us our sleek cars of today which seem to be doing 60 MPH standing still. While improving the transportation they redesigned public thinking to camouflage their real motive which was to bring the undercarriage closer to the road. This prevented the snoopy owner's periodic inspections as he crawled on hands and knees twisting grease sups.

Left to their own devices, they designed parts to deflect salty slush into hidden pockets which defied spray from the most inquisitive hose. After a period of chemical reaction, coinciding generally with the length of the warranty, the solution made a rusty exit through metal scarcely thicker than its covering of paint.

The designer was worth his salt, as the colloquial expression goes. Assuming 50,000 tons is provided in Detroit for two million cars to splatter through, this is roughly 50 pounds per vehicle. This is a calculated overdose to assure each auto receiving at least 20 pounds, which may require applications in cases of doubtful need to maintain the quota.

The economy booms and industry hums as billions are invested in cars each year, with but one minor inconvenience: buyers are unable to salt away anything for a rainy day. Declining to rest on their laurels, they also envisioned a related machine just recently put into operation. It is the giant hydraulic trash masher which compacts the worn bodies into manageable cubes to be recycled into a self sustaining assembly line.

In appreciation, our ecology minded society contributes free labor as a civic responsibility. Their early Buck Rogers' predictions were taken by many skeptics with a grain of salt, which is most unfortunate. These grains could have been put to more profitable use today.

What Happened To Tom, Dick and Harry?

Not every Tom, Dick, or Harry bears a simple name, but in some strongholds of tradition two long-time favorites – James and Jane – still lead the popularity polls.

Among names given the children of Britons who announce their offspring in the London Times, James was the most frequently chosen name for boys in 1972 – the ninth successive year that James led the list. And Jane, says a Middlesex man who keeps tabs on such matters, has been first for girls since 1957.

But if current trends hold in the United States, says the National Geographic Society, it may be so long James and Jane and hello Jason and Jennifer, the two latest nominal rages.

FRENCH NAMES

As Englsih words and American expressions creep into the French language, French feminine names have invaded the United States in force. A recent poll of pediatricians and hospitals turned up these current favorites, after Jennifer: Danielle, Gabrielle, Michelle, Renee, Nichole, Yvette, and Suzette.

For boys, the most-selected names after Jason were Zachary, Aaron, Jeremiah, Adam, David, and Michael.

"Today there is a tendency to be gimmicky to some degree," said one physician. "Everybody is trying to be different. They want their child to stand out a little bit."

SO LONG, GEORGE

This trend toward different, and even fanciful, names has nearly eliminated for the recently born such once-fashionable choices as George and Linda.

Some favorites continue, however: A study a few years ago turned up more than 4,000,000 Marys and 6,000,000 Johns of all ages living in the United States.

A child's name, often selected to please grandpartents or to impress friends and neighbors, preoccupies many parents for days and even months before a decision is reached. The procedure undoubtedly was simpler in the 14th century, when an estimated 64 percent of all men in the English-speaking world born one of five names – Henry, John, Robert, William, or Richard.

Some parents seek a name that won't easily be corrupted later into an unattractive nickname. The effort usually proves futile.

One mother chose "Eric" for her son's name, thinking "Rick" wouldn't be difficult to live with when he reached the age of nicknames. In time the boy became known throughout the neighborhood as "Ear-ache."

Parents in a small West Virginia town, apparently unconcerned about nicknames, has reasons of their own for the names they selected. Their sons are Early and Late.

In Texas a well-known Governor, James Stephen Hogg, named his only daughter after the heroine of a Civil War poem written by her uncle. She grew up to become a respected philanthropist despite her name, Ima Hogg.

And in Sacramento, Calif., an attractive young medical center receptionist had to get an unlisted telephone number a few years ago. Callers rang, laughed, "Ho, ho, ho," and hung up, Miss Merry Christmas complained.

City P.O. Seeks Carrier Applicants

Applications must be submitted before April 10, 1973 for an examination for a substitute rural carrier of record for the Charlevoix Post Office, according to Rex Davis, postmaster.

Application cards PS Form [illegible] are available at the post office and must be filled out and returned to the postmaster.

Substitute rural carriers of record are assigned to perform the duties of the regular rural carrier during his absence. Such absences may occur as the result of scheduled days off, leave, illness, military service or other reasons.

Salaries of substitute rural carriers range from $26.80 to $36.90 per day, depending on the length and character of the route.

They must furnish and maintain at their own expense a vehicle for the prompt handling of mails. However, they will be given an equipment maintenance allowance based on the daily mileage scheduled, or a minimum allowance per day, whichever is greater.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens and must have reached their 18th birthday on the date of filing application.

For further information regarding the examination contact Postmaster Davis.

Bands, Vocal Group Give Concert

The Charlevoix High School Music Department held its annual Winter Concert Tuesday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the High School gymnasium.

Presenting the program was the Charlevoix High School Symphony Band, the Concert Band and the newly formed Girls Vocal Ensemble.

The Symphony Band and the Concert Band, both of which received First Division ratings at the recent District Band and Orchestra Festival, were to play selections from the festival and other numbers.

The balance of the program included everything from serious compositions to contemporary music.

The Vocal Ensemble was scheduled to sing a wide variety of selections, including some contemporary numbers.

Band members handled ticket sales.

Ramp Work OK'd

Charlevoix County Commissioners last week told the Road Commission to take all the necessary steps preparatory for the rebuilding of ramps at the Ironton Ferry, up to but not including the awarding of contracts.

The work has been necessitated by the continuing high water level in Lake Charlevoix.

Commissioners were informed that the Department of Natural Resources is studying a request by the Sheriff's Department for $3,760 to fund a Snowmobile Safety and Enforcement

Court Denies Injunction In Plutonium Lawsuit

U.S. Federal District Judge Albert J. Engler of Grand Rapids Friday refused to grant injunctive relief to the West Michigan Environmental Action Council which had sought to block the addition of plutonium to the fuel bundles at Consumer Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

The environmental group sought the injunction on grounds that Consumers had failed to file an environmental impact statement on addition of plutonium and had not complied with hearing requirements under the Atomic Energy Act.

Judge Engler's decision allows Consumers to continue with its present refueling operations, which include the addition of plutonium to some fuel rods.

William Wilson, a spokesman for Consumers, said the new addition of plutonium will still be under the 50 kilogram limit OK'd by the AEC in a permit issued in 1969. A second permit issued by the AEC in 1972 will permit the plant to use up to 150 kilograms of plutonium in the fuel bundles.

Wilson said that with the addition of plutonium, Consumers is changing the configuration of the fuel load from 81 fuel rods in a 9 by 9 pattern to 120 smaller fuel rods in an 11 by 11 pattern. He said the new arrangement will reduce the heat in the reactor by 400 degrees, giving the plant an added safety margin.

At the show-cause hearing, Consumering offered to invite representatives of the West Michigan Environmental Action Council to a "discretionary hearing" on plutonium as a fuel in atomic reactors, in light of apparent interest in the subject.

Consumers said it also will give notice when it exceeds the 50 kilogram limit on plutonium approved in the 1969 permit.

The controversy over plutonium was fanned by an article in the Detroit Free Press which called plutonium "fiendishly toxic" and asserted that thousands of tons of the element were to be used at Big Rock Point.

Since then, Glenn Seaborg, the discoverer of plutonium, has denied ever calling plutonium "fiendishly toxic."

Consumers engineers have estimated that when plutonium is added to each fuel rod in five years, the total amount will not exceed 300 pounds.

Plutonium actually is a by-product of plant operations. Plutonium added to the fuel charge will be recycled plutonium produced by the plant itself.

Robert Miller Resigns

MRS. MARY SINCLAIR of Midland told members of the Democratic Women's Club of the dangers of atomic radiation at a meeting of the group last Thursday at the community room at the City Hall.

Board Expresses Regret at Move

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night accepted, with regret, the resignation of Robert L. Miller, superintendent of Charlevoix schools for the past three years.

Robert Miller

The resignation will be effective June 30.

Miller said he was accepting a similar position in southern Michigan, but didn't specify the location.

He came to Charlevoix in 1970 after five years at Hartland. He also had served as administrator of schools in Centreville and Tustin.

A native of Hudson, Mich., he is a graduate of the University of Michigan and has a masters degree in education as well as an education specialist's degree.

He is past president of the Northern Michigan Superintendents Association and is presently a member of the Michigan Department of Education's committee on objectives.

In other business, the board approved a preliminary budget for the 1973-74 school year of $1.56 million for submission to the Allocation Board in April. The new budget represents an increase of $112,000 over this year's $1.45 million budget.

The preliminary budget will require 22 mills on the county's new State Equalization Valuation figure of $64.5 million. This year's budget required 20 mills on a valuation of $59.5 million. The proposed new budget is based on an enrollment of 1700 students. This year's was 1,671.

Revenues will include $1,348,000 in property taxes; $50,000, delinquent taxes; other taxes, $1,000; sale of property, $35,000; Investments, $5,000; miscellaneous, $5,000; State Aid, $60,000; Drivers' Education, $3,000; Vocational education, $40,000; P.L. 874 $5,000 and Special Education, $10,000.

Expenditures will include $1,113,700 for instruction; $64,000, administration; $5,000; Health, $86,700, transportation; $130,300, operation; $34,300, maintenance; $65,000, fixed charges; $55,000 capital outlay; $3,000 outgoing transfers and $5,000, community service.

Principals were offered one year contracts with Vane H. Smith, high school principal, receiving $18,200, an increase of $1,040, and Glenn B. Snider $15,965, an increase of $465.00.

The board, on the recommendation of the transportation committee, approved specification for three new buses. Two will be replacements and a third a bus required "because of crowded conditions on existing buses. Bids for the vehicles will be accepted until noon on Apr. 19.

Claims A-Plant Waste Demands Vigil Forever

If Mary P. Sinclair of Midland had her way, the nation's growing number of atom-powered electrical generating plants would close their doors and go out of business – now, before it's too late.

The wife of Midland attorney William Sinclair, Mrs. Sinclair has cast herself in the role of devil's advocate against the giant power companies using atomic reactors.

She was speaker last Thursday night at the city hall at a meeting called by the Charlevoix County Democratic Women's Club to discuss the introduction of plutonium fuel to the atomic reactor at Big Rock Point. Thirty attended.

Officials of Consumers Power Co. will have their say on the issue this Thursday night at 8 p.m. at the same place.

The biggest problem Mrs. Sinclair sees in the proliferation of atomic plants is the disposal of atomic waste.

She says the nuclear waste products, particularly those resulting from plutonium fission, will remain radioaction for 500,000 years, necessitating a constant vigil over their repositories for 25,000 generations.

She said the present generation is faced with the awesome decision of whether future generations should be charged with such a responsibility.

Mrs. Sinclair says the introduction of plutonium as a fuel charge in atomic reactors in the first step is what she calls "the plutonium economy."

Turning to the Big Rock Point plant specifically, Mrs. Sinclair cited a study by the Department of Natural Resources which shows a build-up of radioactivity in microscopic plant and animal life in the immediate vicinity of Big Rock Point where Consumers discharges cooling water into Lake Michigan.

Although background radiation throughout the area has decreased since the cessation of atomic weapon testing, the radioactivity in biota near the discharge point has "gradually increased to near or slightly above the preoperational peaks caused by weapon testing."

Mrs. Sinclair says such radioactive biota eventually effect the entire food chain. (Consumers officials disagree. They say it stops with crayfish and clams and is not passed on to fish.)

Mrs. Sinclair said the least the people of Charlevoix should demand is that contaminant discharges be

Rowdy Kate Ropes Mate In 6th Grade Melodrama

By BOB CLOCK

There was a wedding in town last week that you didn't read about in the Courier.

The bride was a gun-toting filly from New Paducah, N.M., by the name of Kate Millionola who was hitched to a hard-riding Western conman and outlaw by the name of Tricky Pete Porter.

Lynn DeMoor -- as Kate

The double-ring ceremony (the rings were a pair of handcuffs) was performed in the Greasy Gulch Saloon by Parson Everready in an atmosphere more redolent of gun powder and rot-gut hooch than orange blossoms and baby's breath.

It wasn't exactly a shotgun wedding, but every member of the bridal party packed a pistol.

If you're thinking you missed the wedding of the year, you did – unless you saw Vince Chew's Sixth Graders from the Middle School present their version of a musical melodrama entitled "Rowdy Kate – or the Taming of the Shrew, Western Style."

The play was presented for parents at a walk-through at the school Monday night and was repeated twice on Wednesday for youngsters at the Elementary School.

Language arts instructor Chew provided background music on the piano and accompanied the singers. A sign on the piano read: "Don't shoot the piano player." No one did.

The play centers around Kate Millionola (played by Lynn DeMoor), a rough-and-ready frontier gal who refused to allow her sister Blanche (played by Diane Johnson) or any other woman in town to marry until she herself finds a husband.

Her frantic papa, Big Bart Millionola (played by John Tabor), offers $10,000 to the man who marries Kate, an offer eagerly accepted by a stranger in town, Tricky Pete Porter (played by Mike Keller) who intends to grab the dowry and run. But Kate discovers Pete has a price on his head and gives him the options of either marrying her or facing the gallows. Pete chooses wedlock.

The cast includes four dusty cowpokes, Chuckawala, Bronc, Piggy and Crowbait (played by Mark Smith, David Britton, Dennis Whitley and Joe Herriman) and four pretty school marms, Annabelle, Clarabelle, LuluBelle and Daisybelle (played by Shari Mol, Janeen Boal, Lori Fels and Kathy Cook).

The school marms are hired to teach in New Paducah, but when they arrive in town they discover there are no children. So they agree to teach the three-R's to the cowpokes.

If you missed "Rowdy Kate", you missed one of the most entertaining stage presentations ever performed in Charlevoix. The audience had as much fun as the cast, and that was considerable

Steffes Loses Permit

Circuit Judge Harold von Domelin ruled Monday that Ron Steffes does not have a valid building permit for construction of the Dunes Condominium on Michigan-ave.

Judge von Domelin agreed with attorneys Donald Berlage and Thomas Pointner, who challenged Steffes' permit on grounds that it was granted by 2-2 vote of the council, with Mayor Edward casting the deciding vote.

Under the Fourth Class Cities Act, such actions must be approved by a majority of the elected aldermen.

However, Judge von Domelin said the height of the 32-unit building is compatible with the city zoning ordinance. Height of the condominium also was challenged by the two attorneys.

City Buys 2 Fords From Erber Auto

The City Council Monday night agreed to purchase two 1973 Ford police cars from Erber Auto, including a replacement for the patrol car totaled on U.S. 31 South Sunday morning.

One car will cost $3,342, with trade-in of a 1971 Ford valued at $330. The second car will cost $3,672.

Other bidders were Kusina Motors, Matador, $3,654.79; Charlevoix Oil, Belair, $3,833; and Parsel Olds, Delta 88, $4,290.

In other business the council:

–Set a public hearing for April 23 for rezoning of 100 feet of Pine River Channel property (the Mildred Campbell frontage) from residential to commercial. Realtor Jim Corbin said he made a non-refundable down payment of $500 on the land without realizing it was zoned residential. He plans to build an office building on the site. Mrs. Campbell offered to sell the land to the city as a scenic reserve, but the best offer they could come up with was $3,000. The land is on the tax roles for $5,600.

--Told Ormiston Bergeon that the May-st. sewer might be completed this year. Bergeon plans to build a house on Hampton Court and wondered whether he should put in a septic tank.

–Agreed to split lots 21 and 20 at Sherman and Hurlbut-sts. at the request of Roy Lockwood.

--Passed a resolution commending Aldermen Robert Gill (10 years) and Clifton Sundberg (five years) for their service to the city. The meeting was the last for both men.

PATROLMAN PATRICK Martin escaped serious injury when he piled the city's new patrol car into an Antrim County roadblock on U.S. 31 South during a 100-mile chase with Virgil Williams, 26, of Charlevoix Sunday morning.

City Patrol Car Totaled In Chase with Fugitive

Virgil Amos Williams, 26, of Charlevoix demanded the services of a court-appointed attorney Monday when he was arraigned in District Court on charges of evading police officers and drunk driving.

District Judge Arthur Reibel ordered him returned to the county jail when he was unable to post $1,000 cash bond.

Williams was picked up near Kewadin early Sunday morning after Grand Traverse County deputies shot out one of the tires on his white Mustang, ending a 50-mile chase which started in Petoskey at 1:10 a.m. when Williams failed to stop after being involved in a property damage accident.

Charlevoix Police were alerted that Williams was headed south and Patrolman Patrick Martin intercepted the car in the 500 block of Petoskey-rd. Martin made a U-turn and gave chase, rounding the bend at the foot of Ainslie-st. at 70 mph.

Martin had alerted Patrolman Sam Alexander who blocked the southbound lane of Bridge-st. in front of the Hess Furniture Co. with his patrol car. Williams swung onto the sidewalk in front of the Hess store and barreled south out of town on U.S. 31 at speeds exceeding 100 mph with Martin in pursuit.

Antrim County sheriff's deputies set up a roadblock one-half mile north of Eastport, positioning their patrol car across the southbound lane. As Williams was approaching, the drivers of two northbound cars stopped to see what all the excitement was about, blocking the entire highway.

Williams veered off the east side of the road, dropped down a 10 foot embankment, circumvented a large tree and climbed back on to the highway south of the roadblock without stopping. The Antrim deputies fired two shots but missed.

Martin, meanwhile, approached the roadblock but was unable to see the blinker on the Antrim patrol car because he was blinded by the lights of the two northbound autos.

When he was able to size up the situation, one Antrim deputy was on the right shoulder and another had crossed the road to tell the northbound motorists to proceed.

Returns Tow Truck Despite Bad Burns

Clarence (Shorty) Archer, 43, an employe of Russell's Gull Service, is being treated at Little Traverse Hospital for severe burns to the face, neck and one hand suffered Sunday morning when gasoline he was using to start a car engine exploded.

The accident occurred at the garage of the Ski & Shore general office on Michigan-ave., where Archer had been called to help start a car owned by Richard Georgi. Georgi threw his jacket over Archer's head to smother the flames and then the two men tried to put out a fire in the garage before calling the Fire Department.

Although badly burned, Archer drove the wrecker back to the garage where Charlevoix Police picked him up and took him to Charlevoix Hospital. He was later transferred to Petoskey by ambulance.

Q. What has happened to the Governor's environmental reorganization proposal? M.F., Ossineke

A. Because of strong opposition from many legislators reflecting public feelings toward Governor William Milliken's proposed government reorganization plan, several important changes have been made in the proposal.

Acting on behalf of farm groups, municipal officials and aviation groups as well as others, legislators put up a strong coordinated front against the governor's drastic reorganization proposals and, in order to save some of his program, the governor agreed to several important modifications.

If the governor had not agreed to the modifications, the proposal would have had little chance of acceptance by the full Legislature.

Basically, the governor's plan would have grouped environmental controls from four existing state departments into an enlarged Department of Environment and Natural Resources.

He also proposed to transfer the Municipal Boundary Commission from the Treasury Department to the Department of Natural Resources and to downgrade the Department of Aeronautics and the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

Faced with the prospect of legislative rejection of the plan by this week's deadline, the governor backed down on several major issues.

He agreed to retain the drainage regulation in the Department of Agriculture and not to downgrade a watershed development program by not insisting that these two important projects must be subject to final review by the Department of Natural Resources.

Under the compromise, the membership of the drain commission remains unchanged and drain boards' decisions would continue as final orders as they do now.

Under the new plan, the Aeronautics Commission and Department will retain final authority over such things as licensing of pilots, layout of airports and regulation of airfields but will relinquish functions only directly related to an over-all transportation policy.

Instead of being downgraded as the governor has proposed, the Water Resources Commission will continue to authorize use permits, enter voluntary compliance agreements, and order compliance and enforcement of Commission orders. The Commission also will advise the Department of Natural Resources on planning and establishment of comprehensive environmental policy.

The same status was given to the Air Pollution Commission, which also had been slated to have a more minor role under the governor's proposals.

The governor's original order transferring the Municipal Boundary Commission from Treasury to the Department of Natural Resources was recinded completely.

Results of the compromise demonstrate once again the importance of having checks and balances in state government.

Your questions and comments are always welcome and may be addressed to: State Sen. Robert. W. Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48902.

Students Lay Plans For Trip to Rome

Forty-five students going to Rome and their parents met with Mrs. Novak recently to set up transportation to Detroit and back.

Rules for the students were read and discussed. Students were advised to get American Express Traveler's checks in small denominations ($10.00).

The group will be leaving Detroit on Saturday, April 14th at 2:30 p.m. via New York, Amsterdam, and arrive at the airport in Rome April 15 at 10:50 p.m.

According to Mrs. Novak, the group will be staying in the Marcella which is about eight blocks from the famous Via Veneto.

After arrival at the hotel, they will walk to Trevi Fountain and Spanish Steps.

Dr. Custer volunteered to supply the group with pills in case they are needed for dysentery.

Recalls How Veenstras Arrived in Atwood in '13

Although the number of natives of The Netherlands living in the Atwood-Ellsworth area grows smaller with every passing year, Mrs. Henry (Flora) Burns, the Courier's Atwood correspondent, has vivid recollections of her family's journey to the United States 60 years ago.

Mrs. Burns says the Veenstra family arrived in Atwood March 13, 1913, from their home in Ureterp, Friesland, The Netherlands.

The family included the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Veenstra and seven children - Wesley, Oscar, Jacob, Flora, Gerrit, Andrew and Paul jr.

They left their home in Ureterp the latter part of February and traveled by train to Rotterdam where they boarded their ship, the New Rotterdam. The trip across the Atlantic took 11 days.

"We stayed in our cabins aboard the ship at Ellis Island and the next morning we all had examinations and our baggage was checked and inspected," Mrs. Burns recalls.

"The first thing we saw from a distance was the Statute of Liberty. We sure were happy when we arrived at the harbor in New York that day and set foot on the soil of the United States of America.

"We boarded a train in New York and after a couple of days and nights traveling we arrived at the Ellsworth depot," she says.

Their first stop in Ellsworth was at a store owned by the late George Klooster. There, a sleigh from the Moblo Livery Stable picked them up and took them up hill and down dale to their destination in Atwood.

"Due to the bad roads, the horses went up to their bellies through water and mud, a trip we will never forget," Mrs. Burns says.

Their guide and interpreter on the trip was John Van Houten of Atwood, with whom they had become acquainted in Ureterp while Van Houten was visiting his father.

The Veenstras all became farmers, although Joe, Louis and Gerrit later moved to Grand Rapids. Jacob is still living on his farm. Oscar died Oct. 20, 1970, and Gerrit March 7, 1970.

Andrew and Paul have sold the family farm, but are living in a modular home on a two-acre plot which they kept for themselves.

Brain Surgeon?
Not exactly. But she's working on minds.
She's a highly trained professional, doing an extraordinarily sensitive job.
She and 80 thousand other Michigan teachers are helping to develop the minds of some 2.3 million public school children.
That's a mighty big operation. A delicate one, too.
In fact, education is probably the biggest operation in your community. More than one of every four of us in Michigan is a public school student.
And each one needs special treatment... each has a mind of his own. A major operation? You bet.
It's great to be a teacher.

Debris Burners Warned Of Forest Fire Danger

The first forest and grass fires of the year in the northern Lower Peninsula touched off a warning against the careless burning of debris.

The fires broke out in the Gaylord and Cadillac districts [illegible] in early March and were caused by people who failed to observe precautions while burning debris.

This is the single-most common cause of Michigan's fire losses, according to Charles Bonmaster, Sr., Roscommon, Regional Fire Supervisor for the Department of Natural Resources.

He pointed out that a burning permit is required for all burning except that which is done in approved containers. These are barrels having holes in the side no larger than one-half inch in diameter. The barrels must be covered by screens with mesh no larger than one-half inch.

Burning permits may be obtained by contacting any Department of Natural Resources district office or field office. The permits are issued only when proper weather conditions for burning prevail.

The public can help hold fire losses to a minimum by obtaining burning permits and by exercising care in all burning operations, Bonmaster said.

MICHAEL BLASCIUC, 4, of Sterling Heights, offers a reminder that 1973 license plates must be affixed to passenger cars by April 1. Secretary of State Richard Austin estimates that about one million of the state's 4.4 million auto owners will be involved in the annual deadline rush.

DNR Will Cite Powell For Record 8-lb. Splake

The Department of Natural Resources will inaugurate its Master Angler Award program in the northern Lower Peninsula on April 3.

At that time two record-breaking fishermen will be presented with framed certificates attesting to their catches, according to C. Troy Yoder, Roscommon, Regional Manager for the DNR.

The awards will go to Oliver I. Dewey of Bellaire, who holds the Michigan record for splake, and to Joseph Powell of Charlevoix, holder of the state splake record until it was broken by Dewey last month.

Dewey landed his prize splake while fishing in Lake Bellaire in Antrim County on Feb 11. It weighed nine pounds, 11 ounces.

That broke the record of eight pounds, 12 ounces for a splake caught by Powell in Lake Michigan off Charlevoix last Oct. 28.

Presentation of the certificates to Dewey and Powell will be made by John M. MacGregor, Roscommon, Regional Fisheries Biologist for the DNR, in brief ceremonies at the Department's Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix at 7 p.m. on April 3.

It will make the first presentation in the northern Lower Peninsula under the Department's new Master Angler Award program for giving recognition to fishermen who make outstanding catches in Michigan.

Starting this year, Master Angler Awards will be presented to every fisherman who make a state record catch of any of 27 species on the awards list.

In addition, the Department annually will present awards to the fishermen landing the five largest trophies in each of the 27 species categories during that calendar year.

In order to be eligible for an award, a trophy catch must be made by legal sport fishing methods. The catch must be authenticated by a DNR fisheries biologist.

Species for which Master Angler Awards will be presented include lake sturgeon, Great Lakes muskellunge, tiger muskellunge, northern muskellunge, carp, lake trout, channel catfish, chinook salmon, northern pike, coho salmon, brown trout, rainbow trout, (steelhead), sheepshead, walleye, largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, splake, brook trout, black crappie, yellow perch, sauger, rock bass, bluegill, white bass, Atlantic salmon, kokanee salmon, lake whitefish.

Central Lake Hosts Char-Em, Ellsworth School Officials

The Central Lake Board of Education hosted an informal discussion session with board members and administrators of the Ellsworth District and the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate District Boards on Tuesday evening, March 20, in Central Lake.

The meeting was the second held in the two and one-half county Charlevoix-Emmet area for the purpose of acquainting board members and administrators with educational programs and problems at both the local and intermediate district level.

Superintendent K. Scott Bothwell of Central Lake provided the visitors with a tour of their newly constructed elementary school.

Clayton Healey, Intermediate School District board president, opened the discussion which centered around the upcoming Mandatory Special Education Act and future programming for Vocational and Career Education.

The Intermediate School District Board of Education will meet with members of most local boards of education throughout the area during the coming months to discuss current and future educational programs for the area, according to Jim Shepard, intermediate superintendent.

Smelt Dipping Season Starts Early in State

Michigan's 1973 smelt-dipping season has been opened early on all Great Lakes streams.

Discounting the old warning about the "Ides of March," the Department of natural Resources moved this season's opener ahead from April 10 to March 15. Its special action was prompted by reports that heavy smelt runs had already started surging into the St. Clair River near Port Huron.

With all signs pointing to an early spring last Thursday, DNR fisheries men also looked for migrations of the silvery fish to start storming other Great Lakes streams weeks ahead of the usual schedule.

Rev. George Burrows of Alpena will be our guest minister at the morning service Sunday.

Jim Gallagher, chief operator on the ferry, and Mike Harrington, assistant operator, are busy getting the ferry in readiness for its first run of the season April 1.

Mrs. Mary Bennett has returned home after spending 10 days as a medical patient in Little Traverse Hospital.

Ivan Parsons is busy making maple syrup even though the weather has been so unusual, he reports that with the cool nights the sap is running well.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nielsen and daughter Mary Carol had a stormy experience this past weekend having left home early Saturday morning to spend the weekend with their daughter, Sharon, and son-in-law, James Huff, in Durand. They started running in the southern Michigan blizzard near Clare. Thinking it would not last they continued on their way, but the storm got worse. They finally abandoned their car, hitched a ride into St. Johns and found lodging on the third floor of the local hotel. They never did make it to Durand. They returned home Sunday night and were surprised to find the ground was as bare as when they left.

County road men are removing dead elm trees and grading the bank on the south-west side of the Orchard Hill road on M-66 toward East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harrison have returned home after spending the winter in Stuart, Fla., and visiting other interesting places.

In spite of our beautiful sunshine during the day, the temperature drops from the 40's into the 20's at night and freezes a thin layer of ice over the lake. There are still piles of drift ice in places along the shore. Many are raking their yards but it is still too early to uncover those tender perennials. Many spring birds have arrived and are looking for nesting places.

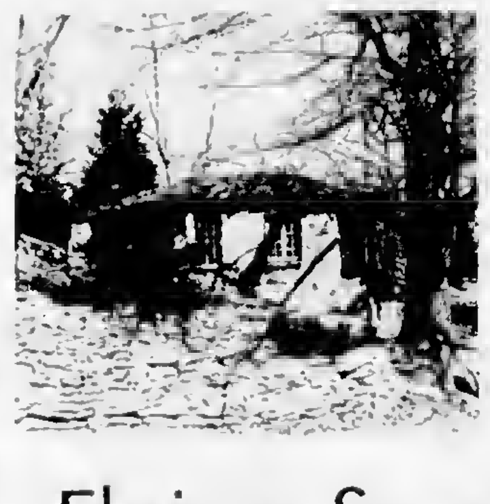
Earl Young to Mark No. 84 on Saturday



Architect Earl Young, a man who has devoted a lifetime and then some to keeping Charlevoix beautiful, will celebrate his 84th birthday Saturday, March 31.

Mr. Young's unique architectural accomplishments, from the turreted Weathervane and Lodge motels, the rustic Weathervane Inn on the channel, and his story-book homes on Round Lake, Park-ave., and in Boulder Park, represent a school of architecture unto themselves.

There have been many imitators over the years, but their creations lack a certain something -- call it whimsey if you must call it anything -- that is unique with Earl Young.

Although his eyesight and hearing are not what they once were, Mr. Young still manages to spend several hours each day in his office at the Weathervane Inn. He presently is putting the finishing touches on a history of Charlevoix, which, judging from our sneak previews, will be the most informative and entertaining book ever written about our much-written-about community.

A photographer in his youth, the book will contain many pictures taken by Mr. Young more than a half-century ago.

Although small in stature, Mr. Young stands tall in the eyes of everyone who loves Charlevoix. We wish him a happy 84th --- and many more to come.

Flying Saucers Haven't Changed in 26 Years

There's one thing about the folks who report "unidentified flying objects" to the authorities: They have been consistent over the years in their descriptions of the inexplicable "spaceships."

When "flying saucers" first made big headlines in 1947, viewers invariably described them as "disc shaped" with pulsating windows or portholes around the edge. Some folks called them "flying pinwheels."

Judging from last week's sightings in Missouri and Illinois, our extra-terrestrial visitors haven't changed the design of their aircraft a great deal in the past quarter century.

One recent viewer described them as "flying gyroscopes." Another said the UFO he sighted was a 25-foot-wide oval with "red pulsating lights around the edge."

That one was sighted by an operating engineer for the Central Illinois Public Service Co., Oscar Wills, 57. Wills said he saw it hovering over a 66,000-volt transformer yard at a height of about 1,500 feet. When Wills went to investigate, the object skimmed silently away.

Others were seen in the vicinity of the lead-rich Ozark Mountains in southern Missouri, raising speculation that the craft might have been on a mining expedition from outer space.

Regardless of their source, there is some solace in knowing that the saucer people haven't abandoned us in favor of a more exciting planet.

But we are afraid our space visitors haven't learned the value of an occasional model change. Can you imagine what Mainstreet, U.S.A., would look like if the auto makers hadn't re-tooled since 1947?

Ask The Governor

Question: I keep hearing you and other people talking about a tax decrease in Michigan this year, but that's all I see — talk and no action.

Governor: The tax reduction I have asked for is the largest ever recommended by a Michigan Governor. It is a tax cut program that will provide some measure of relief to virtually every taxpayer in the state.

My recommended tax cuts for individuals in Michigan include a $500 increase in the personal income tax exemption. This is an increase of 42 percent, and would give Michigan families the highest level of personal exemptions in the United States. This was passed by a 97-4 vote of the House of Representatives March 13.

My property tax relief program for homeowners and renters will provide significant relief for those taxpayers who have an excess burden of property taxes in relation to their income.

I am firmly committed to this tax reduction program, but in order to achieve this objective, I need the help from the citizens of Michigan. We need to make sure that the Legislature holds the lid on spending, and that my tax reduction bills receive prompt attention. I urge citizens to contact their state legislators, and urge support for the tax reduction proposals I outlined in my state of the State message this year.

Question: The early spring this year has caused havoc with the gravel county roads in our area, and they weren't much to begin with. I know you are interested in transportation and the highways, but what is being done to improve the county roads?

Governor: Very often, when I discuss highways, people think of freeways primarily. But the fact is that day to day, Michigan drivers depend most on those roads maintained by counties for getting from home to work, and to the market.

A recent highway needs study showed how massive the need for improved county roads is by indicating that more than $13 billion might be needed for county road outlays between 1970 and 1990.

My transportation package, which passed the Legislature last year, will increase funding for Michigan's county roads by more than $40 million per year during the first full year under the new program. Additionally, the allocation formula in the new transportation program recognizes the importance and needs of county roads by increasing the proportion of the funds which go to that road system. This proportional increase, combined with a larger total amount for transportation, will result in greatly improved county roads in both our rural and highly populated urban areas.

Questions & Answers On Zoning

..Q. Does the Zoning Administrator inspect my building for electric and plumbing before I move in? J.D.

A. No. What you are referring to is a building code. The Zoning Ordinance regulates land use, not structural items.

Q. When does the Zoning Administrator inspect the building? J.D.

A. Inspection of the premises by the Zoning Administrator takes place when the foundation or building is completed to a point to allow measurement of side, rear and front yard distances. This inspection is to guarantee compliance with the figures as submitted in the permit application.

Clockwise — The Energy Crisis

By Bob Clock

There's no doubt about it. The energy crisis is upon us.

Sen. Robert Davis reported to Charlevoix civic leaders Friday noon at the Weathervane that the fuel shortage is "very real." He said the East Jordan Co-op has received word from Sunoco that it no longer can supply fuel oil for the co-op's customers — both residential and industrial — after the end of the present heating season.

This is a blow not only to the co-op, which distributes about four million gallons of fuel oil a year, but also to the co-op customers who are waiting in limbo for a solution to the problem.

Davis is hopeful that "something can be worked out," but he hastens to add that Sunoco is a privately-owned company and cannot be dictated to by government.

He said he understands that Gulf Oil Co. is anticipating a similar move at the end of the 1973-'74 heating season, but there is nothing definite on that yet.

It seems that the profit on fuel oil is marginal at best, and it is reduced even more by the high cost of transporting oil from the refineries to the wilds of northern Michigan.

Gasoline is a different story. The markup on gasoline apparently is sufficient to offset transportation costs.

Like Davis, we are confident that "something can be worked out" before the deep chill moves in again next November.

Although other fuel suppliers are reluctant to take on new customers, it is inconceivable that any northern Michigan residents will be left without fuel for their furnaces next winter. Things like that just don't happen in this land of plenty.

Sen. Davis lays the fuel shortage on three factors:

Increased use of fuel of all kinds.

Growing concern for the environment, and —Failure to anticipate our future needs.

Certainly it is no secret that we are using more fuel, notably gasoline. The one-car family has suddenly become the two car family. We have more different types of vehicles than ever before, witness the emergence of the snowmobile, the increased number of motorcycles and all-terrain vehicles and the proliferation of power boats, garden tractors, power lawn mowers and you name it. The number of gasoline-operated gadgets on the market stuns the imagination.

Furthermore, the federal government has decreed that the gasoline engine has befouled the atmosphere long enough and has insisted on the development of no-lead gasolines. Which is fine. Our cities, must have relief from noxious auto fumes. The only hitch, according to Sen. Davis, is that it takes far more crude oil to make a gallon of antipollution gasoline than it does a gallon of the stuff we are used to. And the fuel shortage worsens.

Environmentalists have further complicated the fuel picture in other ways. The pipeline which was to siphon an untold wealth of crude oil from the Alaskan wastes into the domestic economy is at a virtual standstill because of objections raised by the environmentalists.

Sen. Davis says the United States can't even benefit fully from oil reserves elsewhere in the world, since there is not a seaport in the country capable of accomodating the new super tankers, which are three times larger than their predecessors.

Even if we could secure more crude oil, we couldn't refine any more than we do today. Sen. Davis said that because of concern for the environment there is not a single new refinery under construction in the United States.

"No one wants to live next door to a refinery," he said.

Of course it is no secret that Americans waste more fuel than they actually need. Our big five-passenger automobiles roam the highways more than half empty. More often than not only the driver's seat is occupied.

We seldom perform a task by hand when there's a power-driven appliance handy to do it for us.

We use more starter fuel when charcoal grilling a hamburger than an Asiatic family uses in a week for all of its cooking and heating.

We equip our houses with every labor-saving device that comes down the pike, unmindful that the electricity to run them is further depleting our dwindling supplies of fossil fuel. To date, only from one to two percent on the energy produced in the United States comes from nuclear reactors. And unless we can find an adequate method of disposing of radioactive waste, the atomic era could just die aborning.

I don't pretend to have any answers to the present energy crisis. But like the high cost of living, I'm afraid it is going to be with us for some time to come.

If it Fitz — Red Eyes

By JIM FITZGERALD

Cry along with the clown....

It was a TV commercial, for gosh sakes. For Polaroid cameras. It gave me what my kids call "red eyes." That means Dad is not actually sobbing behind his newspaper but his control is shaky and better not jiggle him.

The Polaroid pitch shows an old man being visited by his son and grandchildren. Or more likely it's his grandson and great grandchildren. This guy is really old. It appears he lives in some sort of a "home" in the country with other old men. He doesn't get many visitors.

One of these Johnny Cash (pre-Standard Oil) voices is singing mournfully in the background. He sings about how the old guy used to think he could "hold time still in his hands," something like the All-State man. But suddenly time passed him by, whoosh, and here he is in the December of his years with no earthly plans for New Year's Eve.

But Old Gramps has a Polaroid camera. When the relatives come calling, he snaps like crazy. If they never come back, he will have their pictures to remember them by.

Not only that, but Old Gramps can also show the photos to his fellow residents at the home and brag a little. That's what he does in the commercial. His photos, in color, are perfect. You can count the freckles on the noses.

Which is enough to make me cry right there. I've had a Polaroid for several years and I never get pictures like that. I'm lucky if I can count the noses on the faces. What does the old man know that I don't?

But it really wasn't my camera disability that made my eyes red. It's simply that I'm a sucker for the problems of old people and I'm often ashamed of how younger people treat them. As you grow old, you do not automatically grow less human and less sensitive. I mean, old people care too. Like the old guy with the Polaroid. Or like this:

My wife's 86-year-old aunt dropped dead the other day. A widow, she shared her home with her 82-year-old brother. When he got up one morning, he couldn't find her. She wasn't at her usual post in the kitchen, fixing his breakfast. She wasn't in the living room or in the bathroom. Fearing the worse — she'd recently suffered a severe heart attack — he checked her bedroom.

She was dead on the floor beside the bed. In death, her face was cruelly distorted. The sight made her brother physically ill. He later told us what he did.

With tender fingers, he changed the expression on her face until she looked at peace. Then he put a pillow under his big sister's lifeless head. Then he made the necessary phone calls.

That night, the 82-year-old man went home with his son. He said he could never sleep in his sister's house again.

Cry along with the clown.....

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Sixty years ago, remote areas of northern Michigan were dotted with nondescript hunting cabins which were usually owned cooperatively by local hunters. The decor was rough wooden bunks, straw mattresses, a crude table and a couple benches. A cast iron range filled one corner and a horizontal oil drum heater dominated the center of the scarred wooden floor.

These early structures have improved as they multiplied, with most having fireplaces and indoor plumbing. At the close of the season, security measures were carried out but for exactly opposite reasons. Today doors and windows are sealed to thwart thievery and malicious destruction while in the early days measures were taken to provide security for others.

A refuge was insured for any unfortunate lost in the trackless wilderness by piling wood near the stove and leaving an ax handy. Matches were placed in a tobacco tin and stored, along with canned goods and coffee, out of reach of any stray porcupine which might intrude. Some kerosene and a lamp were cached in the range oven and stovepipe dampers were jammed closed to keep out mice and squirrels. A couple blankets were left draped over a wire and the door was 'locked' with a few turns of the wire around two nails.

The contrast between a frozen starving wanderer and a well clad snowmobiler is an interesting reflection on our changing times and behavior. One came thankful for a haven and the other comes as a calculating tresspasser intent on plunder.

As society changes, laws are modified to suit a more relaxed standard. Ignorance of the law is never an excuse especially on the part of a judge. Perhaps we can excuse it on the part of the magistrate in the day when a cuspidor graced every courtroom.

Since the law was unwritten they saw no need to deliberate the difference between a 'misdemeanor' and a 'high misdemeanor', and without a by-your-leave they tried all violators for illegal trespass. Unaware of their constitutional rights culprits were incarcerated forthwith. Maybe, just maybe, ignorance of the law on the part of both parties contributed to the efficiency of law enforcement.

California Celebrating Gold's 1245th Birthday

California is celebrating its 125th anniversary of the discovery of gold this year – but the celebrating could be years overdue.

The forty-niners wouldn't have cared a hoot, but gold was discovered in California a long time before they got there.

Jim Marshall gets the credit for the gold rush that changed the world. On Jan. 24, 1848, he found some color glinting in the South Fork of the American River while building a sawmill for John Sutter.

END OF RAINBOW

The word raced like fire in treetops, and by 1849 thousands of forty-niners, mostly men, were on their way to California and the end of the rainbow they were sure awaited them.

Many found it. Like countless more, Marshall died without ever making a real strike, the National Geographic Society says. But gold was where you found it, and even though they did not trigger a gold rush, sketchy accounts of discovering the precious yellow metal stretch back into early California history.

Gold may have been found in California as early as 1579 when Sir Francis Drake first explored the coast. One of this captains, Francis Fletcher, recorded:

"There is no part of earth here to be taken up where there is not a reasonable quantity of gold and silver."

No one knows how much of his report was inspired by talkative Indians flourishing a little dust, or how much was imagination.

On Aug. 19, 1606, the King of Spain issued a decree based on accounts of one of his California coast explorers, Sebastian Vizcaino. Said the king, "Everyone is informed, and everyone says, that the land inland has large populations, and silver, and gold."

Historians think the first Franciscan missionaries in the 1700's actually saw Indian gold, but ignored it in the interest of saving heathens instead of making fortunes.

WILD ONION BONANZA

The first California gold received at the Philadelphia Mint arrived at least six years before the gold rush. Digging wild onions, Francisco Lopez found nuggets on March 9, 1843, and eventually his Placerita Canyon mine near today's Newhall may have turned out gold worth $100,000.

History finds the years before the rush full of gold strikes, but on Dec. 5, 1848, President James K. Polk confirmed Marshall's discovery, starting an eventual 100,000 argonauts on the way west.

Some voyaged for months around the tip of South America. Many who did not brave sailing round the horn risked greater peril sailing to Panama, crossing the jungles of the Isthmus, then waiting for a ship to ferry them to the California El Dorado.

For most, the route to the gold fields lay overland by Conestoga wagon, ox train and foot. At the peak of the gold rush there were 120,000 moiling for gold, placer and hard rock miners alike. By 1873 gold fever infected only about 30,000.

Before the day of reliable records, rough estimates suggested 30,000,000 ounces of gold, then worth $600,000,000, was found between 1848 and 1880 — including one nugget weighing 81.9 ounces, or more than five pounds.

County Goal of $9,700 Set in Cancer Crusade

Charlevoix County's goal in the 1973 Cancer Crusade is $9,700 according to Mrs. Albert Seger, chairman of the drive for the city of Charlevoix and outlying areas.

Mrs. Seger has lined up a full staff of volunteer solicitors who will be canvassing the entire area in the next few weeks. (See list of volunteers on Page 6 of this week's Courier.)

Mrs. Seger reports that as the work of the American Society becomes known, the task of rounding up solicitors becomes easier.

This year many workers volunteered their services without being asked.

"I'm sure that with this kind of cooperation, our goal will be reached," she said.

Although some of the money collected will be used for cancer research, other funds will remain in the area to provide three annual nursing scholarships of $150 each.

In addition, the local chapter of the American Cancer Society furnishes drugs, dressings and dressings and transportation wherever needed.

The chapter also maintains a "loan closet" stocked with wheelchairs, walkers, bedside comodes, hospital beds and controls for oxygen tanks.

Loans of such equipment can be arranged by telephoning 582-7653 in Boyne City. The number is listed in the Charlevoix telephone directory.

C of C Directory Is Off the Press

A new Membership and Classified Trade Directory published by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is off the press and ready for distribution, according to Tom Merta, C of C executive director.

The directory is free to chamber members. Cost to non-members is $1.

In addition to a categorized listing of all Chamber members, the director contains a run-down on all Chamber-sponsored activities during the summer months, starting with the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament in June and ending with the Autumn Ball in October.

Included on the list are the Spring Dinner Dance June 2, a Harborside Fleamarket June 9, Hobby craft Show July 14, Venetian Festival July 27-29, Sidewalk Days Aug. 3-4, Waterfront Art Fair Aug. 11, Lakeside Bicycle Tour Sept. 8, Harborside Fleamarket Sept. 22 and the Color Cruise, Oct. 14.

A foreward to the directory lists Charlevoix's 1973 goals. They include:

–A tree beautification project downtown.

–Increased use of the French fishing village motif.

–Attraction of non-polluting industry to the area.

–A solution to the downtown parking problem.

–Making Charlevoix's business community as prosperous as any in the north, and –Working with investors to make known the goods and services Charlevoix has to offer.

St. Marys Invites Public

St. Marys School is celebrating "Catholic Schools Week" this week with hall displays of artwork expressing Catholic concepts, according to Sister Ann, principal.

Also on display are essays by St. Marys youngsters on what a Catholic education means to them.

Catholic Schools Week is sponsored by the U.S. Catholic Conference and the National Catholic Education Association.

contained.

Because of the popularity and economy of atomic fuel, Mrs. Sinclair says the nation has fallen behind in the exploration of other fuel sources, such as geophysical heat from the core of the earth and the production of coal gas.

Furthermore, she can't see why the big utilities are so all-fired worked up over atomic energy. She said the maintenance costs at a nuclear plant are astronomical when compared to a fossil fuel plant.

A technical writer, Mrs. Sinclair said she became alarmed about the dangers of nuclear plants after Consumers announced plans to install a reactor in Midland. She said the information disseminated by the company didn't jibe with what she had been reading in technical journals.

Since her involvement (she belongs to the Saginaw Valley Nuclear Study Group and is a co-director of National Intervenors) Mrs. Sinclair has started work on an M.A. degree in Environmental Communications at the University of Michigan. She is a graduate of St. Catherine College in St. Paul, Minn., with majors in English and chemistry.

Chase

Police Chief Jack Mol, Martin had no choice other than to ram the Antrim patrol car, which he did at a speed estimated at between 70 and 80 mph.

Charlevoix's new 1973 patrol car was totaled and the Antrim County patrol car was badly damaged, but Martin miraculously escaped serious injury.

Antrim Deputy Ronald V. Crandell and his partner jumped in the damaged patrol car and gave chase, alerting Grand Traverse deputies that Williams was off and running.

Just north of Elk Rapids, Williams turned east where he was overtaken by Grand Traverse deputies who shot out one of his tires. They had to break one of the car windows to get Williams out of the car. He later was returned to the Charlevoix County Jail.

Use of Plutonium Defended by CP

Consumers Power had its turn at bat last Wednesday night in the continuing debate over the introduction of plutonium to fuel rods at the company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

William Wilson, field information specialist at the plant; Michael Sewell, who does liaison work with the AEC on licensing; and Ernie Murri, a health physicist with Consumers, addressed a meeting at the Charlevoix City Hall called by the Charlevoix County Democratic Womens Club.

In large measure, they responded to issues raised the week before by Mrs. Mary Sinclair of Midland who believes introduction of plutonium fuel at Big Rock Point is another step toward what she believes is a highly dangerous "plutonium economy."

Sewell, a former Charlevoix resident now living in Jackson, said Consumers had sought permission from the Atomic Energy Commission to add small quantities of plutonium to its fuel rods at Big Rock Point for three reasons:

–Conservation of relatively scarce uranium.

–It is an element already at work at Big Rock Point, since plutonium is one of the by-products of the present reactor.

–Plutonium is an energy asset only if it can be re-used in a light water reactor.

"There is no readily available and booming market for plutonium," Sewell said. "It is used in small quantities in other devices such as pacemakers for heart patients. If we do not re-use it, it will have to be stored indefinitely, which changes its nature from an asset to a liability."

Sewell said that plutonium has been re-used at Big Rock Point for approximately four

Engineer To Inspect Medusa

The Charlevoix Township Air Quality Control Board has arranged to have Dr. Thomas Sweeney of Ohio inspect the Medusa Cement Plant at Charlevoix to determine if it is in compliance with the township's air quality ordinance.

Dr. Sweeney assisted the township in drawing up the ordinance three years ago.

A registered professional engineer and an expert in the field of pollution control, Dr. Sweeney will report back to the Air Quality Board after his inspection and make recommendations to assure continued compliance. His inspection will take place in late April.

Members of the Air Quality Board are Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, chairman; Plant Manager E. Kaiser and Cal Gould.

State Asks Review Of A-Plant License

The State Health Department has asked the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) that a new license be required for the operation of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant in light of the addition of fuel rods enriched with plutonium oxide.

In a letter to Dixy Lee Ray, chairman of the AEC, Maurice S. Reizen, M.D., director of the Health Department, said the new license should necessitate a complete health, safety and envrionmental criteria review.

"The request is based upon health and safety issues for persons offsite in event of incident and such concern, in our opinion, lies within the state jurisdiction," Dr. Reizen wrote.

The AEC in December authorized Consumers to increase the amount of plutonium in the reactor from 50 kilograms to 150 kilograms. However company officials say they will not exceed the 50 kilograms permitted in the 1969 license in the present refueling operation.

Dr. Reizen takes issue with statement issued by the AEC in December in connection with the granting of the new license to the effect that the increase in plutonium in the reactor "does not involve significant hazard considerations different from those previously evaluated."

"The department questions this statement since the amendment permits an increase in plutonium inventory from 50 kilograms to 150 kilograms and constitutes the first licensure for significant plutonium fuel usage in commercial reactors," Dr. Reizen wrote.

"Plutonium fuel is more toxic than the conventional uranium core composition," Dr. Reizen continued, "and its physical properties make it one of the most difficult elements to control. It could, in our opinion, not only change the public health and safety criteria for normal operation but could also materially increase the potential public hazard in the event of an incident."

Dr. Reizen also said the AEC's Hazards Summary Reports did not consider the use of plutonium fuel and an environmental impact statement has not been submitted for the operation of the Big Rock Point Plant.

Only 8.5 Pct. Turn Out For City Election Monday

In a no-contest election Monday, Charlevoix City voters returned Mayor Edward P. Hansen, Clerk Ida Heise and Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham to office for another year.

Also elected were First Ward Alderman Richard Fochtman, Second Ward Alderman Jeannine Wallace and Third Ward Alderman George W. Plumm.

Only 186 of the city's 2,110 registered voters showed up at the polls or cast absentee ballots, for an 8 and ½ percent turnout, one of the smallest in the city's history.

Leading vote-getters were Mrs. Heise and Miss Cunningham, who polled 183 votes each. Mayor Hansen trailed with 168.

In the wards, Fochtman garnered 41 votes, Mrs. Wallace 70 and Plumm 73.

In the Third Ward, one write-in vote was cast for Condit Drury who opposed Plumm in the primary in February.

Plumm had almost as many absentee votes (32) as votes cast on election day (41). Mrs. Wallace had only five absentee votes and Fochtman four.

Mrs. Wallace, proprietor of The Shop of the Gulls on Bridge-st., will succeed Robert Gill, a 10-year veteran on the council, at the next meeting Monday, April 9.

Born in Grand Rapids Feb. 1, 1932, Mrs. Wallace is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Loop, who now make their home in Charlevoix. She attended South High School and took education courses for three years at Michigan State University.

Before moving to Charlevoix as a permanent resident she was a regular summer visitor at Oyster Bay.

She was married in 1962 to Lawrence (Larry) Wallace, a beverage systems distributor. They have two daughters, Maurine, 17, and Rebecca, 4.

Although she has been active in the business community since 1964, Mrs. Wallace is also a member of the board of directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and has served as secretary of the Community Chest.

In her campaign before the primary, Mrs. Wallace promised to be at the city hall one-half hour before the beginning of each council session to meet with her constituents.

The Wallaces live at 301 Clinton-st.

Plumm also is a newcomer to the council. He will succeed Third Ward Alderman Clifton (Kip) Sundberg who is stepping down after six years.

Born in Bellaire Dec. 6, 1926, Plumm moved to Charlevoix with his parents in 1931 and attended Charlevoix schools until the 11th grade when the family moved to Brimley in the Upper Peninsula. He graduated from Brimley High School in 1944.

He served 18 months as an MP in the Army, returning to Charlevoix after his discharge to marry the former Maxine McKenzie.

They have two children, Mrs. Fred (Jane) Wabininkee and Patrick, 16.

Plumm was employed by I.T. Quarnstrom in the Charlevoix area until Mr. Quarnstrom's death in an airplane crash near Charlevoix Airport in 1966. Since then he has continued to work for the Quarnstrom family as manager of the Water's Edge Resort on Lake Charlevoix.

Township Sponsors Junked Car Pickup

At its annual meeting Saturday, the Charlevoix Township Board agreed to pay for the cost of removing all junked cars from the township while the "crusher" is in the area.

Township residents with a junked car on their premises are asked to call Russell's Gulf Service at 547-9246 and give the location of the car.

The rest will be up to Russells, the township and the "crusher."

Township Clerk Virginia Cunningham said township officials are attempting to contact the owners of junked cars by telephone, but since the crusher will be leaving the area at the end of the week they are afraid some cars will be missed.

The crusher, which is operating at the junk yard on M-66 at Loeb School-rd., compacts the cars into neat bundles of scrap metal. Then they are trucked downstate to steel fabricators for recycling.

District Sewage Plan Proposed

Winner of this week's Community Improvement suggestion contest is Rod Stebbins of Lakeview Court.

"The City of Charlevoix and certain high-intensive-use land areas in the adjoining township desperately need extension of sewage lines. To accomplish this, construction and financing of a Metropolitan Sewage District is probably the proper vehicle. This is high priority. Rod Stebbins, 11 Lakeview Court, Charlevoix.

The Courier will pay $10 a week for your ideas on how to best improve the community in which you live. See suggestion blank on Page 12.

Draft-by-Mail Test Is Underway in County

The Cheboygan Selective Service area office will test a "draft registration by mail" project during April in counties like Charlevoix where there is no draft board, according to Mrs. Shirley Barrette, executive secretary.

During April men of draft age will be able to pick up an application form in their local community and mail it to the draft board. The board will then send a registration form and instructions to the applicant. The completed registration card is then returned by mail to the draft board for normal processing.

The Selective Service Act still requires young men to register at age 18 or within 30 days before or after that date. The law also requires Selective Service to maintain an active standby organization with a completed registration and classification structure capable of immediate operation in event of a national emergency.

During April, applications for registration by mail may be picked up at most high schools, college and other community offices.

In Charlevoix, applications will be available at the high school, at the city clerk's office and at the county clerk's office.

In East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls, applications may be picked up at the respective high school. In St James they are available from the township clerk.

Officials See Hope In Fuel Oil Shortage

State Sen. Robert W. Davis has joined with State Reps. George Prescott, Ralph Ostling, Mark Thompson, and Raymond Baker and representatives of the Michigan Department of Commerce and the Public Service Commission in reassuring several Northern Michigan fuel oil distributors that the problem of supplying fuel oil is "not insurmountable."

The threatened shortage of industrial and residential fuel oil in several Northern Lower Michigan counties can be "positively averted" with the help of state officials and distributors.

The legislators and state officials, including Richard Helmbrecht of the Department of Commerce and James C. Woodruff of the Public Service Commission said they would use all the authority at their command to see that a serious fuel oil crisis would be avoided.

The conference resulted from a recent announcement that the Sun Oil Company will not renew its present fuel oil contract with numerous distributors throughout the State.

"This action poses a serious threat but is no cause for panic," said Sen. Davis.

The distributors were assured by the state officials present that means definitely will be found to provide the fuel oil.

Two Updated Charts Ready

New nautical charts for the St Marys River and Les Cheneaux Islands, Michigan, were announced today by the Lake Survey Center, a Commerce Department unit under NOAA's National Ocean Survey.

Chart 61 shows St. Marys River from Lake Huron to Lake Munuscong at a scale of 1:40,000. It also features Worsley, Potagannissing, and Sturgeon Bays, together with parts of the North Channel. Some of the topographic areas outlined are a portion of St. Joseph Island, Ontario, and Drummond Island, Michigan. Its one inset provides details at a larger scale, 1:20,000, for DeTour Passage, Michigan.

Chart 601 portrays the Les Cheneaux Islands area at a 1:20,000 scale. These islands include Marquette, Little LaSalle, LaSalle, Government, and Coryell Islands. Also, the chart has hydrographic data for the channels in this part of Lake Huron, such as Cheneaux and Moscoe.

To purchase either of the charts listed above or to request a free catalog showing all charts and publications available and including a list of sales agents, write to the Lake Survey Center, 630 Federal Building and U.S. Courthouse, Detroit, 48226. Mail order must be prepaid and should include a check or money order made payable to the U.S. Department of Commerce - NOAA.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL WEEK MAR. 25-31
SAVE A LIFE TO-DAY

St. Marys Kids Tell Why They Like Their School

As a part of Catholic School Week (March 25-31), youngsters at St. Marys School were asked why they enjoyed attending St. Marys.

Here are the winning answers from each grade, as selected by Mrs. James Driggett, language arts instructor:

David Umlor: Why I like my school. I like St. Marys School because we have church in the morning and we learn about God.

Erin Campbell: Why I like my school. I like my school because I like Sister Ann. And because Sister Ann teaches religion. And because we have art on Friday. And most of all I am going to make my First Holy Communion. That is why I like my school.

Brenda Wojan: I like St. Marys School because I think the children are nice and polite to the people. And the Sisters and teachers are nice to us.

Michael Coyne: I like my school because: (1) My future, (2) Knowledge to get a job, (3) The facts of life, and (4) When I grow up and have children I will be able to teach them.

Beth Begrow: What my school means to me: I feel as if this is a lovely school. The children try their hardest and are very polite. Everyone has a sense of humor, even the teachers.

Bob Newton: Whay My School Means to Me: I like school because I learn about my God and his son Jesus. I also have the privilege of going to church in the morning."

St. Mary's Celebrates Catholic Schools Week

St Marys School has wound up a full week of activities marking Catholic Schools Week, sponsored by the United States Catholic Conference and the National Catholic Education Association.

The program locally was coordinated by the Gaylord Diocese, which offered prizes for the best essay on the topic, "what My School Means to Me" and the best visual presentation on the meaning of a Catholic education.

The school judged to do the best of job of promoting and encouraging appreciation of Catholic schools will receive a 2,728 page Webster's Third New International Dictionary, library size, according to Sister Ann, school principal.

In addition to the essay contest (see winning class entries elsewhere on this page), the youngsters made banners, posters and craft projects with a Catholic education theme.

During the week, parent-teacher conferences were held, permitting parents to view the display.

Two evening programs were held, with Fr. James Suchocki of Manistee speaking on the subject of "foregiveness" and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Brody of Saginaw speaking on "Religion in the Home."

Mrs. Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix attended both sessions to discuss the Jewish Passover feast and its connection with the Last Supper.

Elementary Art Show Is April 11

The Elementary School will hold its third annual Art Show Wednesday, April 11.

Art work done by the youngsters will be on display in the C-Wing materials center from 6:30 until 9 p.m.

Children in all four grades and the kindergarten have submitted entries.

Coffee will be served.

MSU Honors Miss Durance

Miss Durance retired as receptionist at Wilson Halls in January after 15 years' service.

As one of 57 retirees, Miss Durance received a certificate of appreciation and an insignia pin.

More than 600 persons attended the banquet, which was held in the Holden Residence Hall on campus.

Robert Shackleton was master of ceremonies and MSU President Clifton Wharton was speaker.

Monopoly Tourney Slated at Inn April 7

Monopoly, the game that took the country by storm a generation ago, is coming back in grand style to Charlevoix.

Jim McKinney, PR man for Ski & Shore, reports that his company is sponsoring – of all things – a Monopoly tournament Wednesday, April 4, in the main dining room of the Weathervane Inn.

The tourney is expected to last from 7 p.m. until midnight.

Ski & Shore is providing approximately 40 Monopoly sets for players. The rules have been modified somewhat in order to work all of the game into a tournament schedule. At the onset, properties such as Park Place, Broadway, the four railroads, Connecticut-st., Vermont-st., etc., will be auctioned off by the banker to the highest bidder.

From then on, conventional rules will be followed, with players making orderly progress around the board, or going to jail, directly to jail, as the dice command.

There'll be a prize for the winner, although McKinney wasn't sure at press time just what it will be.

Bob Hamilton, Mrs. Empey Are Married

In a quiet ceremony solemnized at the First Congregational church Friday afternoon, Mrs. Roberta Empey and Robert Hamilton exchanged their marriage vows.

The Rev. F. Gordon Mitchinson officiated at the service in the presence of close friends.

The couple was attended by Dr. and Mrs. James Ray of Ann Arbor.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda and Nassau, the couple will be at home at their new home at Birchwood Farms.

Library notes

By ELEANOR RATIGAN

Since the recent Wounded Knee incident, there has been an increase in our patron's interest in books about Indians. Some of the new books on our shelves include "Custer Died for Your Sins", an Indian manifesto by Vine Deloria, Jr. This is the biting, brutally witty bestseller that massacres white America's murderous misconceptions about Red Americans. "Bury Me Not At Wounded Knee," the powerful Indian history of the American west written by Dee Brown. It is probably no exaggeration to call this one of the most important contributions to the history of the frontier every published.

"The First Hundred Years of Nino Cochise" was written by the grandson of the legendary Chief Cochise who recalls the fascinating and often bloody drama of his 98 years. His memories tell of Teddy Roosevelt, Pancho Villa, Porfirio Diaz with wonderful accounts of Apache customs of courtship and marriage, war and religion, victory and death.

"Indian Boyhood" is the amazing account of Hakadah, an Indian boy who spent his first 15 years among the Sioux. Later he was sent by his Christianized father to a mission school in Nebraska where he somehow managed to survive the brutal process of deculterization. Thousands of Indian children were totally unable to make the adjustment, but Hakadah, now known as Charles Eastman not only survived, he even prospered. He entered Dartmouth in 1883 and distinguished himself as both a student and a long-distance runner. It is an absorbing, long-neglected classic which will be read today with new interest and understanding.

"I Will Fight No More Forever" was chronicled by the brilliant historian, Merrill D. Bell. It tells of the last fighting days of a great people – the Nez Perce Indians. When Lewis and Clark reached the Northwest in 1805, they found this tribe to be friendly and cheerful; their land was beautiful, and the Indians themselves prospered. They welcomed the white men at first, but by the latter half of the 1870's, the permanent settlers on the lands of the Nez Perce had turned the peaceful nation's thoughts to war. Under the leadership of Chief Joseph they became involved in a series of skirmishes, victories and retreats known to history as the Nez Perce War and climaxed by one of the longest retreats in history. Chief Joseph's words: "Hear me, my chiefs, I am tired; my heart is sick and sad. From where the sun now stands, I Will Fight No More Forever."

Petoskey C of C Selling Trees, Shrubs

Seven years and 8,000 exotic trees and shrubs later shows what can be done when an idea is put into action.

Seven years ago, the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce started an area wide beautification program through the sale of exotic trees and shrubs. The success of the venture is more evident each spring when the plantings add their share to the spring kaleidoscope of color.

The year, the Chamber is offering swenty-seven (27) varieties of trees and shrubs – some new varieties as well as the old standby, "Flowering Crab Trees!"

Dick Sequin, chairman of the program, stated that all varieties offered are selected for their ability to grow well in our northern climate. Crab trees this year range in color from deep pink blossoms to white, rose, red, dark red and pink. These trees and shrubs are sold at extremely low prices to encourage the planting of an exotic tree in every yard.

The Harbor Springs, Walloon Lake and Charlevoix Chambers of Commerce are cooperating in the program to assure a complete sell out.

Orders may be made throughout the month of April by calling the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce. The sale will be on a first come, first served basis. Distribution will be made on "ARBOR DAY," Saturday, April 28, from the Parker Motor Freight Terminal, 126 Fulton-st., Petoskey.

Gardeners Learn About Doves, Shrubs and Trees

By Hilda Alexander

Members of the Garden Club met in March at the home of Mrs. Jeanne Michael with Mrs. Marge Saunders as co-hostess.

An interesting report was given by Mrs. Agate Santek on doves.

Some people may think mourning doves have nothing to do all day but bill and coo. On the contrary they are very busy birds. They raise not one but two or three families in one season.

All through the spring and summer one can hear the sorrowful mating call "coo coo coo" of the mourning dove.

They are very poor home builders because their bills and feet are not adapted to construction work. Their nest is a small platform of twings crudely laced together on horizontal limbs of pines and other trees and sometimes on the ground. They are fortunate that their two white eggs do not fall through the unlined structure. Their breeding range extends from Alaska through Canada and the northern United States. It is interesting to know that they are the only bird that the blue jay cannot buffalo, dominate or drive away.

Mrs. Nancy Fowler gave the lesson on "A Shrub Parade That Lasts All Summer."

Mrs. Fowler suggested making a map of one's yard and planting trees and shrubs with an eye toward their size, hardiness and time of bloom so that there is always a burst of color somewhere.

She also suggested planting trees which will provide birds with both food and protection.

Popular yard trees in northern Michigan are birch, mountain ash, hawthorne, flowering crab, Russian olive, redbud, sunburst locust and evergreens.

Among flowering shrubs, Mrs. Fowler suggested spirea, lilac, flowering almond, hydrangea, flowering currant, deutzia, flowering quince, tamarix, euonymus, beauty bush and the viburnums for their summer blooms and fruit for birds in the fall.

Next meeting will be with Mrs. Nancy Wood, 302 Michigan-ave.

Palace to Show 'Marjoe', A Revivalist Turned Sour

"Marjoe," a documentary movie about a revivalist minister who lost his faith, will be this weekend's offering at the Palace Theater. (See advertisement on Page 12.)

The movie, much of which was shot in color at various revivals meetings across the country before Rev. Marjoe Gortner succumbed to the skepticism of the skeptical age, won the Blue Ribbon Award for September from the National Screen Council.

A fourth generation preacher whose career began at the age of three when he was ordained in his father's church, Marjoe left the church in his teens in order to "find himself."

He eventually returned to the evangelism, although he no longer believed in what he preached.

The movie includes his dramatic confession of his true feelings at his final tent meeting.

Produced and directed by Howard Smith and Sarah Kernochan, the film is the first offering of Cinema 10, a new movie company.

The movie has given most reviewers a bad case of mixed emotions. The same critic who said it is "splendidly done" said she is also convinced it is "anti-religious."

Another said she loved "Marjoe," but wouldn't think of showing it in Tennessee.

Still another said he didn't care much for the movie's apparent ridicule of those who follow the evangelists' trail, but found the film strong and clear in meaning.

Marjoe, incidentally, was named after Christ's parents.

EMU Environment Grant Finances Dredge Study

The Department of Geography and Geology at Eastern Michigan University has received a $28,000 grant from the Environmental Protection Agency to conduct a study on dredging operations in the Great Lakes.

The grant was accepted by the EMU Board of Regents in February of 1972 but the allocated funds were not released by Congress until recently.

Purpose of the study, headed by C. Nicholas Raphael, is to examine past and present dredging operations in the Great Lakes and their connecting waters and to make a protection on the volume that will be dredged through 1983.

The project will also provide information on the type and amount of pollutants in the dredged sediments and will examine existing international, national, state and local policies regarding disposing of the sediments.

The report will be used by the Environmental Protection Agency and the United States Army Corps of Engineers to determine the best method to dispose of the sediments which now total 11 million cubic yards annually.

Preliminary work on the project has begun with full operation scheduled for summer. The finished report is due in December. Project team members include Daniel Turner, Carl Ojala, and Eugene Jaworski of the geography and geology department.

Coach Encouraged by Middle School Matmen

THE MIDDLE SCHOOL gymnasium was a frenzy of activity Thursday and Friday afternoons last week as more than 50 boys turned out to learn the rudiments of wrestling from Coach Norman Probert. Probert squeezed the workouts inbetween the end of the basketball season and the start of the track season.

Probert Sees Fine Teams in Future

The future of wrestling in Charlevoix looks promising, Coach Norm Probert reported last week at the close of take-down tournaments at the Middle School.

Probert says his two weeks working with Middle School boys convinces him that there is some fine material on its way up through the grades.

In the take-down tourney's Thursday and Friday, 30 boys competed for class championships and open division championships.

Fifty matches were run off during the two-day tournament. Ron Paul scored the most match points with a 15-0 decision over Dennis Whitley.

Gary Probert led with three pins. Tom Jones and Jeff Skleton tied for the fastest fall (.09 seconds). The high school varsity record in .15 seconds.

Two matches went into overtime and were decided by the referee. Gary Probert and Ed Bourke ended a 4-4 draw, tying for the 8th Grade unlimited championship.

Dan Monteith and Gilbert Nofrot wrestled a 5-5 draw and 2-2 overtime, with Monteith winning the decision.

A determined 6th Grader weighing only 78.5 pounds, Danny Monteith, won the outstanding wrestler award in the tourney. Danny won both the 6th Grade lightweight and 70-80 pound open invitational championship titles.

Runner-up to Monteith was a three-way tied between Jim Elzinga, Tom Jones and Gary Probert.

Assisting Coach Probert were scorer and timekeeper Jerry Puhl and Mike Way. Varsity lettermen Pat Linse and Rex Hodge acted as judges and official recorders.

What This Town Needs Is a Bicycle Club

The time is long overdue for the formation of an up-and-at-'em bicycle club in the city of Charlevoix.

Although the Chamber of Commerce has sponsored two highly successful bike tours of Lake Charlevoix, and there's a third in the offing next September, we still have no central organization to work out the details of such tours and coordinate other biking events for young people and adults.

And once again, Petoskey and Harbor Springs have stolen our thunder.

Already this year, the newly organized Emmet County bikers have held a big bicycle exposition at the Holiday Inn and their first tour of the season from Ellsworth to Bellaire and return is past history.

There is little doubt at this point that the lowly bicycle is in the middle of a new resurgence of popularity that knows no limits. Just ask any local bike dealer how his sales are going. Chances are, he's sold out and waiting for a new shipment.

Experts give you all kinds of reasons for the renewed interest in biking, ranging from an altruistic concern about air pollution to the fact that bicyclists make better time than automobile drivers in big city traffic.

But no one mentions the fact that bicycling is fun—pure and simple. It is one sport that has been relegated to the younger set for too long. But now adult America has re-discovered the bicycle and is making the most of it.

A bicycle club in Charlevoix could be the busiest group in town.

How about a limbering-up ride during April down to Bells Bay, with a picnic at the turn-around?

Or a tour of Mackinac Island in May when the lilacs are in bloom?

Or a tour of Beaver Island in June.

Or a junket in July around St. Joseph Island in the North Channel?

Such an organization could not only initiate local safaris but also could keep us abreast of biking events in other parts of the state.

If you are interested in forming a bicycle club in Charlevoix, Contact Tom Merta at the Chamber of Commerce office, 547-2101.

There'll be some work involved, but there'll be plenty of fun, too.

Spring is here. Let's get moving.

Cost of Meat Is Only Part of U.S. Dilemma

Like so many other of President Nixon's programs, the imposition of ceiling on meat prices is about three months too late.

The ceiling, if one were to be imposed, should have come the first of the year when hamburger still sold for 73 cents a pound and you could buy a plump fryer for about $1.

Our worry now is that the meat industry is going to interpret the ceiling, which was imposed at absurdly high levels, as a fair asking price for meat products.

From the farmer's side of the fence, the artificial ceiling also is unfair to our food producers.

Elton R. Smith, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, says the long-range result of the President's action will likely be a decrease in supply, and even higher prices.

"Because of the current supply and demand imbalance, the farmer's costs have been rising at an accelerated rate. When the market takes a severe drop like it did this week (last week), the price the farmer receives can be below his cost of production. Farmers cannot be expected to increase supply at a loss."

Mr. Smith said that retail food prices have increased only 33 percent in the past eight years, compared to a jump of 62 percent in per capita income.

He attributes the problem to inflation, which, he says, elected officials have failed to deal with effectively.

"The relationship of rising government spending, an increasing national debt, a rapidly growing money supply and irresponsible wage demands to a rising prices should be obvious by now," Mr. Smith said at a press conference last week.

Although the farmer is said to be the only producer in the country who is forced to buy at retail and sell at wholesale, we can't buy Mr. Smith's contention that the price ceiling may force them to cut back on production. Farmers, generally, are doing better than ever.

However, we believe Mr. Smith is right on target when he rips government spending, our scandlous national debt and irresponsible wage demands for our present dilemma. These are the areas that demand the President's prompt attention if the whole house of cards isn't to come tumbling down around our ears. It has happened before.

Can Judge Jail Elected Officials?

By Sen. Robert Davis

Q. What do you as an individual legislator think about Judge Sullivan's move to throw Wayne County commissioners in jail? M.F., Sault Ste. Marie

A. Can a judge throw elected officials in jail for not voting the way he wanted them to vote?

Worse yet, can a judge throw elected officials in jail because they wouldn't tell how they would have voted if they had been present to vote?

A recent spate of weird decisions, rulings and demands by Michigan judges of all levels has been capped by action of Wayne Circuit Judge Joseph A. Sullivan in ordering 17 Wayne County Commissioners to jail for contempt of court because they refused to vote "yes" to his demands for pay raises for 42 county probation officers. They could not vote "no", the judge ruled.

Not satisfied with that, Judge Sullivan called three other commissioners before him who had not been present at the commission meeting and demanded to know how they would have voted if they had been present.

When they refused to answer his hypothetical question, he ordered them to jail. That sort of thing boggles the mind and raises serious constitutional questions.

Behind the whole thing is an obsession of the courts, from Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh down, to be financially independent and operate without any of democracy's traditional checks and balances.

Temporarily, Judge Sullivan has deferred his jail sentences until pending appeals by the commissioners are settled. Since the Michigan Supreme Court obviously is working hand in glove with Judge Sullivan, it is a foregone conclusion that any appeal to that court would be upheld.

It is apparent that, unless Judge Sullivan and those in higher courts back down against tremendous public opinion pressure, the only relief the commissioners could get would be in the federal courts.

The Legislature has thrown its weight on the side of the commissioners but any laws it might pass to prevent such a bald judicial take-over of legislative functions obviously would be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, which has been leading the drive for absolute autocracy.

Early in the current session of the legislature, Chief Justice Kavanagh demanded that Michigan courts be completely financed by the state and that they have a set percentage of the overall state budget automatically turned over to them to do with as they will.

This year, Michigan's courts are costing $95 million to operate and Justice Kavanagh wanted that raised immediately to at least $112 million a year.

On legislator has described the whole squabble as "judicial tyranny."

Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix
Michigan 49720

To the Editor:

I am the former Margaret Howe, sister of Cora Clarke whose letter you published in the March 7 issue of the Courier. Like her I was reared in Charlevoix County but attended Boyne City Schools. However, I graduated in 1958 and remember the basketball game in which Boyne beat Charlevoix for the first time in many, many years (1957 or 1958 I think).

I am writing to comment on the letter from the gentleman who deplores the "French Village effect" in Charlevoix (I have misplaced the March 14 issue of the Courier and don't recall his name). My family and I made an auto trip from Hobbs to Charlevoix in Summer 1972 to visit my mother, Mrs. Sherman Howe. It was so depressing to see the shoddy, run down streets and signs of decay in so many of the towns we drove through. I would hate to think they were "Typical northern Michigan towns." What a thrill it was to drive into Charlevoix and see the evidence of much civic pride and interest in the future growth of the town. We also visited my husband's home town in western New York which is a classic example of public apathy; stores are either abandoned or badly in need of repair, no new industry is solicited, no encouragement is given to the young people to remain and keep the town going. So keep it up Charlevoix; you are truly a nice place to live and visit.

As secretary to the Superintendent of Schools in Hobbs, I read with interest the reports on Charlevoix Schools and the Board of Education. It appears that all school systems have the same basic issues to cope with. Hobbs is one of 5 school districts in the county; there are 15 schools and each school has a principal and if necessary an assistant principal; the superintendent is chief administrator. The other 4 districts are set up in the same manner; there is no county superintendent.

One final note: the Charlevoix bakery makes the best bread outside of homemade I have ever tasted. Looking forward to the next issue of the Courier.

Sincerely,
Margaret Howe Kilbourn

Bittersweet Days

By BILL CLOCK

Remember when you were young and the big, wide, wonderful world was waiting out there to give you a hug and a kiss?

But you couldn't go to meet life halfway because you had to learn your Latin declensions, wrestle with infinitive clauses and probe the mysteries of algebra and chemistry.

Those bitter-sweet days of growing up came back with a flood last week when I received a letter from a Charlevoix High School student who feels that the hours she spends in the classroom are a waste of time.

Although she prefers to remain anonymous, I want to share her letter with you because she expresses so well the frustration and yearning that most of us experienced on the threshold of majority.

"Why is it that every day I come to school and become a vegetable for the next six hours? Somehow it doesn't seem right.

"I can predict, day in-day out, everything that's going to happen in class. There's never any change, (except for brief breaks in the day, such as assemblies, which are all too rare).

"I'm sure people realize what schools seem to be doing. I constantly hear from friends how boring (among other things) school is.

"The problem seems to be the accepted fact that schools are supposed to resemble jails. Teachers don't teach; their time is taken up by being part-time guards and disciplinarians. And any energy there is becomes suppressed by the fact that no one is supposed to like school. So who learns anything?

"And while the teachers are making their 'rounds', each student has to make certain that at least one 'adult' knows where he is at all times.

"But we're all adults, it just depends on whose eyes you're looking through. Adults are just grown-up children.

"I guess my problem is that I don't see the purpose of school. I know I'm here to learn, but in such an environment I cannot.

"It's always, "Kids today cannot handle responsibilities," or, "They just don't care." This isn't true.

"Young people today are concerned about their world. More than ever they're discovering the truth: That the American Dream is not to go through school, get a money-making job, get married, and do the same thing for the rest of your life.

"I want to learn from life. I want to learn who I am and why I am. This is what helps you grow. If school teachers and students wake up and see what's going on around them, maybe then we'll have some change."

I remember what it was like, Ms. X.

Like most of us at that age, I am awfully afraid that you cannot see the puddles for the rain. The very fact that you were able to sit down and write the letter you did is ample proof that you have learned a little something during your long, "boring" years in school, whether you realize it or not.

That's the way it is with education. No one has ever been able to pick up a whole bundle of information in a single afternoon and then say to himself, "There, I'm educated."

Education, both inside and outside the classroom, is a long, slow, and often painful process. It doesn't pretend to be easy and it isn't.

Of course your teachers don't teach, Ms. X. They don't know how. I have taken years of education courses myself, and I never once had an instructor tell me: "Look, this is how you teach." Nobody really knows how it's done. What works for one teacher may not work for another. By the same token what works with one student may not work with another. Sometimes nothing works for anybody.

Just as teachers don't really know how to teach, students don't really know how to learn.

I remember the day when I could see no more logic or structure to the English language than I could see the Taj Mahal in a heap of bricks and mortar. Then suddenly one day – in Latin class of all places – English suddenly made sense. Subjects, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions – all seemed to fall in place. I never could figure out how it happened, and neither could my English teacher.

So take heart, Ms. X. I am sure you are "learning" a lot more than you realize at the moment up at Dear Old Charlevoix High. I also suspect that you are looking too far afield for miracles that will never happen.

The real miracle, Ms. X, is you, yourself: Your mind, your body, your compassion, your energy, your zest for living, your determination to drink hearty drafts of that exquisite liqueur called life.

I am afraid, Ms. X, that you are the victim of a common disease for which there is no cure other than time. It's called Youth.

The Grinch Stole Lent

By JIM FITZGERALD

The Grinch has stolen Lent. Father Robert Fox, a South Dakota priest who writes for the Catholic Weekly, said so in a front-page story.

People just aren't doing penance for Lent the way they used to.

The trouble started seven years ago when Vatican Council II said it would no longer be a mortal sin if Catholics didn't fast and abstain during Lent. The council didn't say they should no longer do penance in Lent. It simply gave them the element of choice without fear of being zapped into h— for eating meat twice a day.

Father Fox pointed out there are many ways of doing penance besides giving up martinis. You could give your time and money to helping a poor family, for instance. This could please God more than putting a black cloth over six bottles of gin on Ash Wednesday and then drinking every drop during the Easter parade.

Lord knows I'm no expert on religious matters (He knew before anyone else). But I think too many people grew up associating Lent solely with not eating as much as they ate the rest of the year. Or not eating what they like the most, such as on the old meatless Fridays (also stolen by the Grinch, according to Father Fox).

I remember my childhood Lents. No candy for almost two months. No ice cream. No swiping peanut brittle from Grandma's tin box.

But the Lenten penance I remember most had nothing to do with eating. I used to get up at 5 a.m. and go to early Mass and Communion every lousy day in Lent, even Saturdays. Wow.

It was awful getting up that early but the exalted feeling was worth it. Such exemplary behavior made me feel like Moses descending. Walking home, I would command the puddles to part.

It would sound great to say I performed this rugged penance for the glory of God. But it would be a lie. Actually, I did it to make the nuns proud of me. It was the only chance they got all year. I think they regarded my Lenten performance as a real miracle.

It wasn't just that I showed up at Mass. But I had to be in a state of grace to receive Communion. That meant there could be no sins on my soul. Confession was only once a week, on Saturday. If I did anything bad in school, the nuns would know I had fallen from grace, thus making Communion impossible unless I snuck off to another church and they'd never believe that story anyway. Besides, God sees everything. So I had to be good in school every day in Lent.

This was definitely not a normal state of behavior for me, but I did it.

And the nuns would sit in the front row at early Mass and glow in the candlelight as I walked solemnly back from the Communion rail. During classes, the nuns would give me warm looks and pat me on the head. This made me feel good. I was sure it made God feel good, too. Lenten penance was OK with me.

Today there are so many Catholic schools closed. There is a great shortage of nuns. I don't earn many pats on my head and I'd never expect a puddle to part.

The Grinch has stolen a lot of things. It is a shame.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Today anyone with access to $5,000.00 can Dare to be Great. In 1925 it cost 3 cents, the price of a postage stamp!

From those shoestring beginnings have sprung schemes ranging in scope from an auditorium packed with frenzied money wavers to the ignominity of a post office box.

Now, the degree of greatness is limited only by one's credit rating at the finance company or the amount of a homestead loan approved by the friendly banker. Like a thorn in the side, there is one group from which the Pied Piper in his air conditioned Cadillac is unable to attract many converts. This is the vanishing breed which recalls companies mailing prepaid merchandise to every kid from Potter's Crossing to Pine Junction, with only a scrawled name and address as a sales contract.

By return mail, the budding tycoon received either bright yellow cans of pungent Uca-Mentho healing salve or 48 packages of Ferris seeds depending on his chosen enterprise. Incidentally, at a quarter a can this patented salve cured everything from corns to dandruff.

Upon remittance of $6.00, the salesman received a Daisy air rifle. This practice of awarding a firearm as a sales incentive has been abandoned due to the possibility of a disgruntled investor lining his sights on a target more substantial than a tin can on a fence post.

Those with numerous relatives disposed of their inventory with minimum effort, but those of us forced to canvass strangers did a booming repeat business due to the undisputed healing powers of the medication we offered. When the franchise was literally outgrown, it was sold to a younger family member or a valued friend. Bargaining over the good will involved was generally resolved with a jacknife having one broken blade or a fishing reel in need of extensive repairs.

Salve and seeds made a profitable combination. After arthritic joints were limbered up with Uca-Mentho, the seed salesman would appear on a warm sunny day. With very little persuasion, the senior citizen would swap his wintertime cane for a summertime hoe to cultivate an assortment of seeds costing ten cents a packet.

Admittedly, three cents worth of greatness means little in an age when our courts are determining the struggle for 'greatness' in terms of millions of dollars conned from an increasingly gullible public. It is rather ironic that these same courts are being supported by an older, frugal sector of society living their golden years in modest financial comfort.

They are the ones who were, and still are, content with just three cents worth of greatness.

Zoning Questions

Q. From where do you measure front, side & rear yards? M.D.

A. The front yard is measured from the front lot line or at the edge of the road right-of-way (generally, the same). The side and rear measurements are taken from the side and rear lot lines.

Q. How long does it take to get a zoning permit? M.S.

A. If you are in compliance with the requirements of the particular zone district in which you are located, and have the Health Department approval, a permit can be issued at the same time you file your application. If not, the appropriate action from the Zoning Board of Appeals or from the Board of Commissioners (after public hearing) is necessary.

years pointing out that Consumers and the AEC have concluded that it is as safe or safer to use mixed oxide fuel as it is uranium fuel.

This safety analysis considered all hypothetical accidents as well as normal operation and handling of the fuel, he added.

Contrary to statements by Mrs. Sinclair Sewell said homeowners in the area to have insurance coverage on their homes in the event of a nuclear accident, provided by Consumers Power Co.

Sewell also corrected an impression that the AEC is financing at least a portion of the cost of light water reactor construction and operation. He said that the Big Rock Point and Palisades plants have been funded completely by Consumers as will be the proposed plants at Midland and Quanicassee.

"The AEC has provided no financial help," he asserted.

Muir responded to a statement by Mrs. Sinclair that low forms of life near the Big Rock discharge point have shown abnormal amounts of radiation contamination, according to tests conducted by the state. He said that such contamination is limited only to the very lowest forms of plant and animal life, but there is no further concentration to higher forms of aquatic life, such as fish.

Sewell admitted that disposal of waste radioactive products remains a problem. He said the federal government has several plans for a national repository which would provide long-term disposal of waste.

"These plans, I think, are an emotional issue at the time among some people and the government is coming forth with a plan to resolve the emotional issue," he said.

"Technology has a way of developing ways to use these things," he added.

Fuel Firms Won't Bid

THE FIRST Master Angler awards in northern Michigan were presented to Oliver L. Dewey (left) of Bellaire and Joseph Powell of Charlevoix in ceremonies Thursday at the Great Lakes Fishery Station in Charlevoix. Presenting the awards was John M. MacGregor, regional fish biologist from Roscommon. Powell caught an eight-pound, 12-ounce splake (a cross between a brook trout and a lake trout) off the pumping station in October. However Dewey bettered his record in February with a nine-pound, eleven-ounce splake caught in Lake Bellaire.

Can't Guarantee Gas, Oil Supplies

The city of Charlevoix may have to buy gasoline and fuel oil wherever and whenever it can after June 1.

A request for bids on the two items drew only telephone response and three letters of apology, the City Council learned Monday night.

The East Jordan Co-op submitted verbal bids, but said it couldn't guarantee delivery so it wouldn't put anything in writing.

An accompany letter signed by Jack Warner of the Sun Oil Co. said oil jobbers in the past have taken pride in being able to serve local communities. But in light of the present shortage of petroleum products in northern Michigan the company is unable to guarantee a continuing supply.

In the verbal bid, premium gasoline was 24 cents a gallon, regular gasoline 21 cents a gallon, No. 1 fuel oil 20.3 cents a gallon and No. 2 fuel oil 19.3 cents a gallon, excluding tax.

Standard Oil said it was unable to make a firm bid because of short supplies, as did Total Leonard.

The council agreed to advertise for new bids in the near future. Present gasoline and fuel oil contracts expire June 1.

In other business the council:

–Voted to grant Ron Steffes a building permit for construction of the Dunes Condominium, with only Alderman Sam Supernaw dissenting. Steffes' original permit approved last July 31 was declared void by Circuit Judge Harold von Domelin after attorneys Thomas Pointner and Donald Berlage challenged its legality on grounds that the full council wasn't present for a vote. Steffes indicated that he might reduce the number of units from 32 to 24. Pointner and Berlage hoped to hold him to 18 units because of the size of the property, 1.19 acres.

–Asked city attorney Robert Hoffman to draw up a resolution closing the alley between Upright and Lincoln-sts. east of Sherman as requested by Ken Whitley and Bill Brady. A hearing on the move will be held in either May or June.

–Told City Administrator Thomas Hanna to notify Theodore Sundquist that the council doesn't look favorably on his request for rezoning of 206 Michigan-ave. from R-2 to C-1 because of parking problems. Sundquist had requested a public hearing.

–Agreed to bill persons who hook onto the Taylor-blvd. water line $3.73 a foot.

–Asked the Corps of Engineers to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the sump where the city's drinking water is collected from the effects of high water and waves. The sump is located on the Lake Michigan shore in front of the pumping station. The Corps recently has been authorized to work on such problems because of record high water levels and resulting flood dangers. A seawall will be built at no cost to the city.

–Heard a report by attorney John Michael that Dick Broughton of Columbus, Ohio, may ask to hook his proposed condominium development at former Camp Charlevoix onto the city's sewage system. Michael said the Health Department is refusing to grant septic tank permits in the area because of poor drainage conditions. Broughton plans to build about 900 units on his 300 acres of property. Michael said McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor are doing a survey of sewer needs in the area. Broughton and Michael came to the council meeting after presenting the condominium plan to the Hayes Township Board. The project also will include some single-family dwellings.

–Learned that submarine veterans of World War II are ready to erect a memorial monument in East Park prior to the group's convention in Charlevoix this summer.

–Put the remains of the city's 1973 police car up for bids (minimum $950).

–Heard a warning by Hanna that Consumers will start billing the city 17 percent more for electric power on June 1. Although the increase has been contested, Consumers will put funds from the increase into escrow until a decision is reached by the Federal Power Commission.

–Turned down an offer by Erber Auto to exchange airport land for Erber's downtown property. Mayor Hansen said the city has been warned by the FAA not to sell any more airport property without its approval. Furthermore, proceeds from th sale would have to go into the Airport Fund.

Aid Cutbacks Whittle Away at School Funds

The Charlevoix Board of Education, meeting Monday night, heard a report on the district's financial situation to highlight the regular meeting. In addition, the board approved coaching and driver education assignments, heard reports on the building trades program by John Mills and on the recent AASA meeting in San Francisco and heard the criteria for the Earl W. Miller Opportunity Scholarship.

Supt. Robert L. Miller reported to the board that 1972 tax collections were down from previous years thus cutting back on anticipated revenue from this source. He said that current tax collections were 89.9 percent at this time and this, combined with the impoundment of P.A.874 (federal impact aid) funds, will result in an estimated loss of $41,500 in revenue.

Added to this, present expenditures are expected to top the present budget by $54,000 in funds spent for instruction, maintenance and capital outlay, leaving the district in a definite bind.

The board was also reminded that the reduction in the debt retirement has left this fund short of monies to meet its obligations as the result of the cutback in collections. This will necessitate increasing the debt retirement needs from 1.85 mills to 3.25 mills – where it was before – in order to meet current obligations.

The low tax collection rate, as compared with other years, and the fact that the board decided last spring to levy 20 mills, when 22.6 mills could have been levied, are also having a serious impact on the district's financial picture.

In board action at Monday's meeting, the following coaching assignments for the 1973-74 school year were approved: Norman Probert, wrestling; William Murray and Karen Hinds, skiing; Barry Anderson, head basketball; Don Carey, J.V. basketball; David Moyer, freshman basketball; Condit Drury, junior high basketball and Tony Felter, girls' basketball. All were re-appointments.

Driver education assignments for the summer of 1973 will be as follows: Dale Burge, Jerry Puhl, Raymond Carr and James Jensen.

Monies left to the school for a scholarship for a student interested in a trade or technical school by the late Earl W. Miller has been set aside in what will be known as the Earl W. Miller Opportunity Scholarship. The original monies will be invested and, beginning in June 1976, will be awarded to a deserving student in the amount of $100. per year. Details of how this is to be done has been spelled out by a committee composed of Robert J. Cook, Clement J. Wagner, Hope Ashbury and Oscar Erickson.

John Mills, who heads the building Trades program, gave a detailed report of the program since its inception three years ago and advised the board that a decision is how and where the program will go must be made this year.

FIRST PLACE winner in the Junior-Senior Science Fair April 5 at Charlevoix High was Mark (Barney) Way who assembled a complete automobile electrical system. For more Fair pictures, please turn to Pg. 10.

April Snow Storm Obliterates Spring

Yards had been raked and were beginning to green.

Crocuses had come and gone.

Onion sets had been planted. Window screens had been installed.

And then along came one of the worst snowstorms of the year Monday, April 9.

By late afternoon, Charlevoix streets had become so slick that the sand truck was called out. But it did little good. Snow driven by high winds ripped the city all night long, leaving an accumulation of from six to eight inches by dawn Tuesday.

School in Charlevoix was cancelled because of bad driving conditions.

Huge drifts blocked sidewalks and roadways and collected in the doorways of downtown business places.

One three-year-old looked out the window and asked her mother: "Are we going to have Christmas again so soon?"

The late-season blizzard was part of a massive snow storm which swept across the midsection of the country Monday, raising havoc with highway traffic from Iowa eastward.

Temperatures Tuesday night were expected to dip into the teens, meaning that the remnants of winter's last fling probably will be around for a while.

VOLUNTEER Fireman Doug Bergmann douses smoldering ruins of Fochtman Motor Co., building at the corner of Bridge and Upright-sts. The building was gutted by fire last Thursday morning.

Fochtman Motor Building Destroyed by Halocaust

To Rebuild On Site

An 70-year-old building housing Charlevoix's Fochtman Motor Co. store at the corner of Bridge-st. and E. Upright is a total loss after flames swept through the structure early Thursday morning. Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Half of the town was up half the night to watch flaming pressure canisters of ether and other inflammables rocket through the burning roof and explode against the night sky.

The fire was discovered about 12:30 a.m. by John F. Martin and Dan Genelt, volunteer firemen, who were returning home after an ambulance call. About 10 minutes earlier, a police patrol passed the store but the officers noticed nothing amiss.

Before the fire was brought under control, 20 volunteer firemen and most of the city's available fire fighting equipment was on the scene.

Five U.S. Air Force men who happened upon the scene also helped subdue the blaze, which was still smoldering long after daybreak.

Firemen said they were hampererd by the location of the blaze, which was in a dead space between the ceiling and the roof. The roof finally collapsed about 1:30 a.m.

Police Chief Jack Mol says that at one point the fire was so intense that a column of flames shot 15-feet out of a side door into the parking lot.

Another witness reported that an air vent on the south side of the building was "red hot."

Before the fire reached the rear of the building, volunteers removed tanks of acetylene and oxygen stored at the loading dock.

Mrs. Ice Chairman Of 'Breath of Life'

Mrs. Gilbert Ice of Charlevoix has been named local chairman of the 1973 Breath of Life campaign to fight children's lung diseases by State Campaign Chairman, Alex Karras.

The newly-appointed chairman will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support the research and care for children affected by Cystic Fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and other related lung-damaging diseases.

The 1973 Campaign will be conducted during the month of September which is C F Month across the nation.

Cystic Fibrosis, thus far an incurable disease, is inherited when both parents carry the defective gene. It is believed that one in 20 persons carries the C F gene, usually without knowing it. Because of improved therapy and constant research, many C F patients are living beyond infancy into their teens.

"Most people don't realize that there are six million lung-damaged children in the U.S., Mrs. Ice said.

"For these children, breathing is not an automatic function, but often a struggle."

How IRS Will Enforce Ceiling on Meat Prices

Cost-of-Living Council Director John T. Dunlop has announced that the Internal Revenue Service has started a nationwide surveillance effort to assure compliance by food firms with the meat price ceiling regulations.

"President Nixon has taken a dramatic step in the fight against inflation by establishing this ceiling," Dr. Dunlop said. "And we certainly expect the continued cooperation of the housewife, the farmer and the food industry in this joint effort to bring down the rising costs of food.

"However, any program such as this requires steps to assure compliance and we are again calling on the IRS to assist us in this area."

The IRS will have a 250-investigator force working on enforcement of the new rules. These investigators will supplement the regular stabilization staff of 2,500.

IRS and Cost of Living Council officials met March 30 with the heads of the major food trade organizations to review and explain the regulations.

On Monday, IRS District Offices contracted all the major food firms with corporate headquarters in their areas informing the firms of their obligations. Before the ceiling prices are posted as required April 9, IRS will review the major firms' method of computation and verify the accuracy of the ceiling prices.

IRS will make available to all food firms technical and interpretative assistance and a standard format for computing ceiling prices.

After posting, IRS routinely will spot check retail, wholesale and manufacturing firms for compliance with the ceiling prices. Monitoring will be done on an item basis (e.g., chuck roast, bacon, pork loin).

The new regulations requires retailers to have prices posted by April 9. Thereafter, consumers who detect counter prices exceeding posted prices should contact their local IRS office.

Library Notes

By [illegible]

We apologize for submitting a column this week because with spring clean-up just around the corner we should be suggesting that our patrons pick up a garden rake instead of a good book. However, we have so many new titles to introduce and recommend that we have decided to hide the rake and think about it some other time.

First there is "The Search For a Soul", the strange and totally captivating account of Taylor Caldwell's psychic lives. The author, Jess Stern, stands in the first rank of today's writers in the field of parapsychology and the occult. He has spent more than a decade, interviewing, researching and investigating psychic phenomena and consultants. It was this expertise, combined with his long-standing friendship with Miss Caldwell that led to the writing of this extraordinary book. Long a skeptic about reincarnation she agreed to undergo hypnosis in the interest of testing the theory of reincarnation [illegible]. Yet once in a trance, she lapsed into memories of other lives and other places, lives which provide the background for many of her novels and memories that suggest a wealth of experience of which she has no conscious memory or knowledge. No one who reads this book could possibly forget it.

It is merely necessary to mention that Pearl Buck has written a new book to draw the attention of readers all over the world. In an epilogue to this novel, Miss Buck said that she did not know why she had taken up this unfinished and incomplete book and decided to finish it, and then she tells us that she does know why. "It is because we have begun a new era! We are in communication with my other country, China and oh, what changes have taken place since I left it so many years [illegible] to my own country [illegible] every [illegible] readers. All [illegible] Pearl Buck's [illegible] book.

As if it weren't enough to mention a book about Taylor Caldwell and a new book by Pearl Buck, we want to boast about still another master storyteller. Daphne du Maurier has recently published "Rule Britannia" a disturbing, exciting and dramatic novel which involves a minor conflict which suddenly turns into a major tragedy. It would be unfair to reveal the plot, and it doesn't matter anyway, because this author's name is a magic word which means the finest possible entertainment.

"The Eiger Sanction" by Trevanian is a cliff-hanger in every way. The main character in this new suspense novel is Jonathan Hemlock. He has a renovated Gothic church on Long Island for his home, he teaches art, climbs mountains, and performs assassinations (sanctions) to get money to increase his fabulous collection of art masterpieces purchased in the black market. This new author is primarily interested in giving the reader a good time, and he succeeds extremely well in this book.

'Bows Biting In S. Arm, Fuller Says

Don Fuller of Ironton reports the rainbows are biting in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Over the weekend, Fuller caught a 12-pound 'bow which measured 32½ inches long.

Fuller won't pin-point the spot, but he says he was trolling with a spinner.

Fuller also has had some success with lake trout. He brought in three over the weekend, including a 7-pounder measuring 27 inches.

He says the rainbow carried two lamprey sears, one on each flank and both very old.

The World is their Classroom

Or should we say the classroom is their world.
An unbelievable number of things happen in it every day:
the interactions of thirty students, each with a different reading speed, different interest, different talent, different emotional make-up, and different background.

Who makes their world mean something? A professional, trained to deal with all students as individuals, to recognize their differences, and treat them accordingly. They fascinate us. We're teachers.

It's great to be a teacher!

18 Kids Ready to Leave For Holiday in Rome

Eighteen students at Charlevoix High School are ready to embark on an Easter vacation they'll never forget.

All members of the Latin Club, the group will leave April 14 for a week in Rome, Italy, with side trips to Naples, Pompeii and Sorrento.

The students will drive to Metropolitan Airport in Detroit and board a 2:30 p.m. flight to New York. From there they will make connections to Amsterdam, The Netherlands, and Rome, arriving at 10:50 a.m. Sunday.

The next six days will be spent sight-seeing, shopping and visiting the historic locations they have read about in Latin class.

The students will be accompanied by their teacher and Latin Club sponsor Mrs. Max Novak. Other chaperones will be Mr. and Mrs. Max Hosmer and Mrs. William Brady.

The trip-per-student will cost $479, slightly more than anticipated because of the devaluation of the dollar, Mrs. Novak said. Included in the price is round-trip air passage, accommodations and breakfast and dinner each day.

The group will leave for home on Saturday, April 21, arriving back in Detroit at 11:50 p.m.

"We should be home in time for an early breakfast Easter morning," Mrs. Novak said.

Although none of the students speaks Italian, Mrs. Novak has been coaching the students on Italian expressions to help them get along with their hosts.

E.J. Man Appointed To United Way Unit

Robert E. Koehs of East Jordan has been named to the Budget Committee of the United Way of Michigan (UWM).

William C. Crick of Flint, committee chairman, said that Koehs would be assigned to a panel at UWM's annual budget conference to be held April 16-18 at the Kellogg Center, Michigan State University.

Each panel will review the budget presentations at two or more UWM member agencies and then make recommendations for the funding of the agencies during 1974.

UWM has 26 health and social service agencies as members. It helps plan programs and provides budgeting services and financial support for them.

Funds for UWM come from [illegible] local united way campaigns conducted throughout Michigan. During 1973, UWM's member services are receiving $1,028 from the Charlevoix Community Chest, $1,930 from Boyne City and $1,465 from East Jordan.

Koehs, who lives at 109 Main St., is the owner of Bob and Jean's IGA Store. He is president of the East Jordan Community Chest.

Food Stamp Allotments Will Increase July 1

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced that food stamp coupon allotments will increase on July 1 for all participants in the food stamp program in the 48 contiguous states and the District of Columbia.

Separate allotments and eligibility standards for Alaska and Hawaii will be implemented when costs of the economy food plan in those states are available.

The Food Stamp Act requires that the value of the coupon allotment be adjusted annually to reflect changes in the prices of food published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The action also increases maximum income eligibility standards and changes purchase requirements for some households.

The cost of increased benefits will be approximately $140 million. Total food stamp benefits for fiscal year 1974 are estimated at $2.1 billion.

The allotment increases are based on the change in the cost of the USDA economy food plan between December 1971 and December 1972. Similar year-to-year changes were announced in April 1972 and 1971. The changes are announced at this time to provide states with time to implement them by the effective date of July 1.

The cost of the economy food plan for the base period was $115.90 for a family of four with school children. Accordingly, USDA raised the value of the coupon allotment from $112 to $116 for a family of four and made appropriate adjustments for other household sizes. Maximum income standard for the four-person household will increase from $373 to $387.

Maximum eligibility standards by family size starting July 1 are:

One	$183
Two	240
Three	313
Four	387
Five	$460
Six	533
Seven	600
Eight	667

For each addition household member over eight add $53 to the eight-person eligibility level.

53,000 Kids Study Snowmobile Safety

Michigan's new snowmobile safety program went "over the top" this past winter by successfully training 53,000 youngsters, thanks to the efforts of some 2,300 volunteer instructors certified by the Department of Natural Resources.

In mobilizing the program, the DNR had hopes to reach about 35,000 youths under the first year of training.

"This winter's effort was successful beyond our expectations, and the credit goes to the program's instructors who game so much of their time and talent to work with these kids," points out Frank P. Opolka, head of the DNR's snowmobile safety section.

The 2,300 volunteer snowmobile instructors came from the ranks of private citizens, county sheriff's departments, the Michigan International Snowmobile Association, and 4-H organizations, explains Opolka.

They taught the youngsters about the mechanical safety features of snowmobiles and the "rules of the road," as well as how to operate these machines safely. The instructors also gave youths lessons covering pre-ride safety inspection, basic riding positions, and snowmobile field safety, including first aid.

Ex-Con Turned Christian To Address Group

Gordon Outlaw, a former inmate of Marquette Prison—will speak to the public at a dinner sponsored by the Northern Michigan Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International. The dinner is scheduled for Saturday, April 14, 1973, at 6:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn at Petoskey.

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship is an organization of men dedicated to spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ and to bring speakers into the area who can tell from their own experience of the power of Jesus Christ to transform lives and who are experiencing the fullness of life in the Holy Spirit.

Outlaw was an alcoholic at the age of 21, began smoking marijuana, then went on to drugs and became addicted. He was a professional gambler and worked for the crime syndicate. At the age of 38, he became converted to Christ. Now he is in fulltime Christian work for Radio Station WBFG in Detroit (Call letters stand for "We Broadcast For God").

Tickets for the dinner may be obtained from Thomas Brown on Petoskey, 347-6416; James Bearss of Charlevoix, 547-4291; or reserved by calling Ron Bjorkman of Petoskey at 347-2728, not later than Wednesday evening, April 11.

Camp Fees Boosted at State Parks

As of April 1, overnight fees were raised by 50 cents for most of the 14,800 state park campsites in Michigan, reminds the Department of Natural Resources.

The new camping rates are being forced up by the rising costs of maintaining and operating these sites for nearly 500,000 camping families each season. They read as follows:

—$3 at all campgrounds featuring modern facilities including electrical service. (About 12,300 of the state park system's campsites will come under this charge.)

---$2.50 at campgrounds offering either flush toilets without electricity at sites or vault-type toilets with electricity at each site.

DNR May Release Trout Near Fox Islands

Department of Natural Resources workers and fish trucks are on the move to stock Michigan Great Lakes streams and certain off-shore waters with some 9.1 million young hatchery-reared trout and salmon this spring.

In the next several weeks, the DNR's planting program will send about 5,475,000 trout and salmon into Lake Michigan waters, 2,015,000 into the Lake Huron side, 1,530,000 into the Lake Superior region, and 360,000 into the Belle Isle area of the Detroit River.

The Belle Isle plant-outs, numbering some 300,000 chinook smolts and 60,000 tiny steelhead, will be made experimentally as part of the DNR's proposed five-pronged plan to boost sportfishing opportunities in the Detroit metro area.

On the strength of its big edge in salmon fishing returns, the Lake Michigan area will draw the DNR's largest releases of coho and chinook. Bound for its waters this spring are about 1,840,000 coho and 1,450,000 chinook.

In a major change from recent years, the bulk of the DNR's coho plantings will be shifted back to northern waters, notably the area between Ludington and the Platte River where fishermen have had the best success in taking these fish. About 1,640,000 young coho will go into the Platte River, Portage Lake, Little Manistee River, and Sable River.

Also standing out on the DNR's 1973 planting totals for Lake Michigan are 1,070,000 lake trout. In a new effort to re-establish natural reproduction among these fish, the DNR will make one or two lake trout releases in shoal waters off Leelanau County where lakers formerly spawned.

One of those plantings, totaling 75,000 young lake trout, has been targeted for offshore waters of Glen Arbor. The other possible release is being considered for the Fox Island area.

Lake Michigan's sport fishery will also receive a sizable shot in the arm this spring when the DNR stocks its waters with 515,000 steelhead, 445,000 rainbow trout, and 155,000 brown trout.

On the Lake Huron side, the big news this spring is that the lake trout program is being geared up for the first time since the fisheries rehabilitation program was launched there.

Approximately 190,000 fish produced from backcrossing lake trout with a super strain of splake (1-5) will be released before summer in the DeTour, Hessel-Cedarville, Rogers City, Harrisville, and Port Austin areas.

They will be planted from boats and, possibly, helicopters in offshore reefs which years ago were good producers of lake trout. As in Lake Michigan, the DNR hopes to bring back some natural reproduction in Lake Huron by stocking the fish on former spawning grounds.

This effort will be augmented in the fall when 350,000 "pure" lake trout are set-free in the Hessel-Cedarville, Cheboygan, and Hammond Bay areas. Those releases will mark the start of a full-scale program of planting "straight" lake trout stocks in Michigan's Lake Huron waters.

In a change of emphasis announced last year, the DNR this spring is scaling down its coho releases for Lake Huron to 100,000 smolts – all in the Cass River. At the same time, its major thrust to rebuilding the fishery fortunes of Lake Huron is keyed to stepped-up releases of steelhead (295,000), rainbow trout (350,000), and brown trout (155,000).

Rounding out the DNR's spring planting program for Lake Huron are 625,000 chinook salmon bound for the waters of the Au Sable River, Cass River, Harrisville area, Au Gres River, Thunder Bay, and Nagles Creek.

In continuing to put planting emphasis where it is expected to bring best results for sport fishermen, the DNR's '73 program for Lake Superior again gives major attention to lake trout (880,000). Compared with recent years, the DNR will also keep steelhead releases at a relatively high level for Lake Superior totaling 115,000 this spring.

The DNR's plantouts of chinook in Lake Superior will be down from last year's figure of 450,000. This spring, 375,000 of the young fish will be stocked in the Falls River, the Marquette area, and the Sucker River.

With coho fishing success having proved to be very limited on the Lake Superior front, the DNR this spring will hold its release of these fish to 100,000 – all in the Marquette area.

Also going into Lake Superior waters in May and June will be 15,000 brook trout, 35,000 brown trout, and 10,000 rainbow trout.

Big Brothers Needed to Help Fatherless Boys

Big Brothers of Charlevoix County is badly in need of volunteers, particularly in the Charlevoix and Boyne City areas, according to Bill Miller, director.

"It only takes a couple of hours a week to help a fatherless boy over the rough spots and take him fishing or to an athletic event," Miller said.

"There are no dues to pay except compassion for the little fellow and to give him a little more companionship," he added.

Adult men interested in becoming "Big Brothers" to fatherless boys should contact Miller at 547-2725 or Box 192, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. (See box in adjoining columns.)

Yes, I am interested in being a Big Brother to a fatherless boy. Send me (without obligation) more details on the program.

Until We Clean Up A-Waste, Moratorium Is Only Sane Solution

Since the first newspaper "scare" over the addition of plutonium to fuel rods at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant, literally pounds of informational material relative to atomic energy as a source of electrical power have crossed the editor's desk at the Courier.

Environmentalists, moralists, professional do-gooders, professional cranks and spokesmen for the company itself have gotten into the act.

Furthermore, the Democratic Women's Club has staged two presentations on the use of plutonium as a fuel in atomic reactors --- one for and one against.

The Western Michigan Environmental Action Council even took Consumers to court -- and lost --- over the introduction of plutonium at Big Rock Point.

We have digested as much of the material as possible, and have come to a couple of conclusions which may, on the surface, seem conflicting.

First, we are convinced that Consumers Power Co. has done everything and is doing everything in its power to make the Big Rock Point plant as safe as humanly possible. Certainly the young men and women who work at the plant must feel so, too, or they would not expose themselves daily to deadly radiation or allow their families to live in close proximity to a potential "bomb".

Secondly, however, we have been aghast to learn that neither Consumers Power Co., the Atomic Energy Commission or any of the high-powered brains at any of the nation's many nuclear laboratories has come up with an acceptable solution to the problem of atomic waste.

For all practical purposes, such waste must be stored FOREVER on this planet under eternal surveillance, while suffering mankind keeps its fingers crossed that the atomic garbage dump remains untouched by calamities man-made or natural for untold generations to come.

We do not believe that the present generation is in a position to place such an awesome responsibility on generations yet unborn. And until we can come up with a means of purifying and neutralizing atomic waste, we believe a moratorium on the construction of nuclear power plants is the only snae avenue open to the United States and other nuclear nations.

"The Case for a Nuclear Moratorium" is well stated in a booklet by that name published by the Environmental Action Foundation. Listen what the authors have to say:

Dr. Hannes Alfven, Nobel Laureat in Physics, writing in the May, 1972, Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists:

"Fission energy is safe only if a number of critical devices work as they should, if a number of people in key positions follow all their instructions, if there is no sabotage, no hijacking of the transports, if no reactor fuel processing plant or reprocessing plant or repository anywhere in the world is situated in a region of riots or guerrilla activity, and no revolution or war -- even a 'conventional one' --- takes place in these regions. The enormous quantities of extremely dangerous material must not get into the hands of ignorant people or desperados. No acts of God can be permitted."

John W. Gofman, M.D., Ph. D, professor of medical physics at the University of California and a research associate at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory: "Plutonium-239, the most poisonous element ever handled in quantity by man, is the very heart of the nuclear power industry, breeder or non-breeder. Dr. Donald Geesaman, an authority on plutonium hazard, has estimated that there will be one human lung cancer for every 10,000 fine particles of plutonium inhaled. Dispersed as fine insoluable particles (about one micron in diameter), one pound of plutonium-239 represents the potential for some nine billion human lung cancer doses. Given the 24,400-year half-life of plutonium-239, any plutonium dispersed into the biosphere presents a major carcinogenic hazard for more than the next thousand human generations. The annual handling of plutonium-239 in a fully developed nuclear power economy will be in the one-hundred-ton category, or some 200,000 pounds annually. Comparing this with the one pound that can provide an intolerable potential lung cancer burden, we estimate that better than 99.999 percent containment of plutonium-239 is hardly good enough to avert disaster."

Dr. Alvin Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory: "We nuclear people have made a Faustian bargain with society. On the one hand, we offer -- in the catalytic burner --- an inexhaustible source of energy....But the price that we demand of society for this magical energy source is both a vigilance and a longevity of our social institutions that we are quite unaccustomed to."

Mike Gavel (D-Alaska), a member of the U.S. Senate since 1968 and author of a nuclear power moratorium bill: "The nuclear power issue is essentially a moral issue, not a technical one. Radioactive nuclear pollutants which escape into the environment can kill and maim living creatures for centuries after we have enjoyed our electricity. One of the well-known effects of exposure to extra radioactivity is extra genetic injury. As John Francis of the Scottish Council of Churches has said: 'the minimum morality of man is to leave the gene-pool of humanity intact.'

"Nuclear power plants today are creating long-lived radioactive poisons which will have to be kept out of the environment for 100,000 years. Unless stopped, the plants in the U.S. alone will have produced enough radioactive garbage and plutonium in the next thirty years to kill or maim almost every living thing on earth. Will our generation make the future of life subordinate to the future of the nuclear power industry? Shall we make the future of life depend on the success or failure in containing the radioactive by-products of nuclear electricity? In effect, the nuclear power industry has started to use the entire planet as a laboratory for its radioactive containment experiment, and us as its involuntary guinea pig.

"The 150 nuclear plants already planned or operating will produce more long-lived radioactivity in this country every year than about 130,000 Hiroshima bombs. Ask any nuclear enthusiast what gives him such confidence that imperfect human beings will manage to keep 99.99 percent of that radioactivity under perfect and perpetual control and then evaluate the vacant answers carefully.

"When those in business understand that a single nuclear accident can do twice the property damage of Hurricane Agnes, totally ruin the economy of a huge region of this country, and lead to an unplanned nuclear shutdown from coast to coast, they may consider an immediate moratorium the only responsible position."

The authors of "The Case for a Nuclear Moratorium" point out that the world is still far removed from the point where nuclear energy is the only alternative to no energy at all. They point to coal reserves that will last several hundreds of years in the United States alone. They also suggest that our electric utilities are putting all of their eggs in the atomic basket, while other potential sources of energy such as geothermal and solar energy — have been ignored.

Don't get us wrong. We have no quarrel to pick with our good friends at Consumers Power. But we feel strongly that until the problem of disposing of atomic waste is solved, the United States and other atomic powers must declare a moratorium on the construction of new nuclear plants and a phase out of existing plants.

In the meantime, the know-how of our scientific community should be exerted in either finding ways to clean up atomic waste or researching alternate methods of power generation.

The risks involved in the continuous stockpiling of nuclear debris in hopes that a solution will be found at some future date are risks that mankind should not be forced to take.

We fully realize that billions of dollars already have been expended in the development of nuclear generating plants. But we also realize that billions of dollars mean nothing when weighed against the fate of the human race.

Wrong Kind of Dad

By JIM FITZGERALD

And then I wrote...

The right kind of a father spends his weekends doing jobs around the house and playing with his odd kids.

Or something like that. Sometimes it is difficult to understand exactly what my wife is saying, especially when she talks at the same time she is doing something else, such as hitting my ears.

Anyway. It was Saturday and the sun was shining and the air was warm. Perfect weather for outdoor athletics. And that's what I was doing – watching some outdoor athletes on TV.

"Come out and play basketball with me," my son Eddie asked.

"I'm too old for that game," I answered.

"Gee," he said.

"What kind of a father are you?" my wife asked. "Your only son asks for your companionship but you'd rather watch TV."

"Speaking of TV," I said cleverly, "I keep seeing these commercials where the mother and daughter are frolicking together and they are both so well stacked no one can tell which one is the mother until she opens her mouth and you see it is full of Grape Nuts. But you never see commercials where no one can tell the son from the father. The reason is that Dad works too hard to stay young and trim, with soft hands. He is too busy making money to buy jeweled indentification bracelets for his wife and daughters so they can tell each other apart. I think I'm going to cry..."

"If you don't play basketball with Eddie, you will have something to cry about," my wife said (or was it my daughter?).

Anyway, I played. And in only five minutes my weary legs buckled and I fell hard to the ground. I heard a rib crack. Every kid in the neighborhood was watching. I wanted to bounce right up to show them what a great sport the old man was: Except I couldn't move.

"Are you ok, Dad?" Eddie asked after he'd picked up the ball and made 2 points while standing on my hand.

I assured him I'd live. The only question was whether I'd ever get on my feet again. I kept hoping my moaning and screaming would bring my wife to the door, tears in her eyes. But she never showed. I finally staggered into the house and collapsed at her feet.

"The bulb over the sink in the bathroom just burned out," she said. "Change it."

"Don't you care that I have been mortally wounded while making my son my buddy?" I asked.

"Do you want to shave in the dark?" she answered.

I had to stand on the sink. A huge globe enclosed the bulb. It stuck. I jerked. The globe fell, breaking into millions of pieces and smashing a hole in the side of the sink.

I do not make these things up. Just stop by and ask to use our purple rest room. Move the soap dish a few inches and you'll see the hole which shall remain in our family forever as a reminder that the man of the house is not the right kind of father.

Onward and Upward and my ribs still ache.

Citizens Ask The Governor

By Gov. William Milliken

Question: Now that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that property taxes are not unconstitutional to pay for schools, is there still a need for a change in school finance like you have proposed?

Governor: Yes. The majority opinion of the court reflects what I have been saying for years – that, in the court's words, "the need is apparent for reform in tax systems which may well have relied too long and too heavily on the local property tax."

The Supreme Court's opinion underscores the critical need to adopt the plant I have recommended to the Legislature for school finance and tax relief. Even though the Court said that the use of local property taxes to finance public schools is constitutional, it also said reform is desirable and that it should be accomplished by state legislatures. The "equal yield" formula I submitted to the Legislature meets the test of the Court's ruling, and would move Michigan further along the road to quality and equality in educational opportunity for all the state's students.

Question: A new drug -- methaqualone – has been turning up pretty regularly in our city's high school. As I understand it, there are now no legal restrictions on its use. Is anything being done to end the abuse of this new drug?

Governor: On Jan. 16, I took several steps which I believe will help immensely in controlling the abuse of methaqualone. Among other things, I asked the Office of Drug Abuse and Alcoholism to undertake an intensified study of the severity of abuse in the state and to work in conjunction with the Department of Public Health in identifying effective treatment methods for those individuals who have abused this substance.

Additionally, I asked the State Board of Pharmacy to give consideration to assigning methaqualone to the list of regulated drugs under the Controlled Substances Act. The State Board of Pharmacy honored that request, and last week, I signed a "Certificate of Concurrence" with emergency rules adopted by the Board which assign methaqualone to the Controlled Substances Act. This classification increases the penalties for both sale and possession; and more importantly, gives the state additional authority in monitoring and controlling the diversion of this drug from the legal into the illicit market.

The emergency rules will take effect on April 26, sufficient time to notify law enforcement agencies, and drug companies, pharmacists, and others who handle this substance, about the new controls.

Solar Heat, Only Five Years Away?

Dear Bob:

Just reading your editorial about the energy crisis. Less than an hour ago I read in Science Magazine, Feb. 23, 1973, that S. David Freeman, former chief of energy policy for the White House Office of Science and Technology says "This winter energy shortage was manufactured right here in Washington."

It certainly stands to reason with John Connally, the leading spokesman and lawyer for the Texas oil industry being the right-hand man for both of the last two presidents, that it would be clever and politically possible to create an oil shortage when the special tax privileges the oil industry has so long enjoyed were being threatened.

It was also a good ploy to get the environmentalists to relent on putting through the Alaska pipeline. And it probably quiets some of the objections to the use of atomic power, too.

It has something to do with the fact that more money can be made from gasoline so that the oil companies are using as much crude oil as possible for that.

Science Magazine (Jan.) also says that "power gas and combined cycles can make clean power from coal" which has a 400-year supply. And most optomistic was the program on solar energy on the "Today" show this morning which says that solar energy is being used for homes now, will be generally practical in five years, and will mean no cost to power and heat our homes except the installation charges at an estimated cost of $2,000 when a house is built. Enough sunlight falls on Lake Erie in a single day to power the whole country for a year. And no pollution.

Thank you,
Martha Drake

AN ORPHAN orangutan clutches the gunwales of a dugout paddled by Biruté Galdikas-Brindamour, who is observing the great apes in Borneo's rain forest. The young scientist, with her photographer husband, is making the first long-range study of the apes, an endangered species.

American Woman Studying Borneo's Wild Orangutans

By Paul Sampson
National Geographic News Service

Washington — Orangutans are so intelligent that one, named Fu Manchu, escaped from his zoo quarters no less than seven times — each time by a different route.

Orangutans in the wild are so shy that a scientist spent two months looking for them and sighted just one.

Even though they are smart and elusive, orangutans face extinction. Only about 5,000 of the great red apes are left. All except those in zoos live in the rain forests of Borneo and Sumatra, where they are endangered by poaching and intensive logging.

Long-term Study

Mrs. Birute Galdikas-Brindamour, a physical anthropologist from the University of California at Los Angeles, is in the midst of a long-term study of wild orangs. The National Geographic Society helps support her work.

She is following in the footsteps of two other young women who researched wild primates under Society sponsorship: Jane van Lawick-Goodall, whose pioneering study of chimpanzees already is a classic, and Dian Fossey, who is observing mountain gorillas in Africa.

Mrs. Brindamour has had more success than many other orang researchers. In a year of field work in Borneo, she has observed wild orangutans more than 900 hours.

She and her photographer husband live in a hut on the edge of a rain forest and must cut trails through dense undergrowth with machetes to reach the animals.

Orang in Grass

While hacking through a swamp vine, Mrs. Brindamour cut her knee. Forced to return to her main camp by way of an overgrown rice field, she made a significant observation.

"There in the long grass 150 meters from the forest was an adult orangutan warily proceeding from one forest to the one on the other side of the field," she reported.

"It was drizzling rain and to me he looked like some very early primeval man venturing forth for the first time into the African savanna. The reason this observation is so startling is that orangutans are arboreal, and they rarely do come down from the trees."

The orangutan (Pongo pygmaeus) is the only living Asian great ape. An adult male may weigh 200 pounds and have an armspread of 7½ feet but stand less than 5 feet tall. It swings easily through the treetops, but walks clumsily on all fours because of its long arms.

Unlike the black African apes, orangs have reddish brown hair. Their flexible lips are remarkably expressive. Adult males have bulging cheek flaps and below them large inflatable air sacs capable of monumental belches that may serve as warning signals.

Lives Lazy Life

Hardly a go-getter, an orang builds a leafy nest in a tree, sleeps late, and spends most of the day eating unripe fruit. Unlike chimps, orangutans have not been observed eating meat or using tools in the wild.

In captivity, however, the intelligent orangutans are quick to learn tricks, and the escape artist Fu Manchu learned how to trip a spring-loaded lock in the Omaha Zoo.

Pet orangs are retrained for life in the jungle at an official Orangutan Rehabilitation Center on Borneo. One problem case was Winnie, who had developed a taste for cigarettes and beer and had to kick the habits before returning to the forest.

Fitzpatrick Draws 13-22 In Murder of Don Fettig

Larry Raymond Fitzpatrick, 24, of Boyne City was pale but unshaken Thursday when he heard Circuit Judge Edward H. Fenlon sentence him to between 13 and 22 years in Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson in the shooting death of Donald Fettig, 29, of Walloon Lake last Nov. 19.

Fitzpatrick, a building contractor, plead guilty last Feb. 22 to second degree murder in Fettig's death in a sparsely wooded section of Evangeline Township. The two were friends and hunting companions.

Fitzpatrick originally had been charged with first degree murder but the charge was reduced as the result of plea bargaining by Prosecutor Harvey Yarmun and the defendant's attorney, Jack Carpenter, of Petoskey.

Yarmun later told the press that all of the law enforcement officers who investigated the case agreed that it would be extremely difficult to secure a conviction on first degree murder.

A second charge of conspiring to commit murder against Fitzpatrick was dropped at the Feb. 22 hearing.

A conspiracy charge lodged against Fettig's widow, Lillie Lou, 23, was reduced at the same time to the lesser charge of failure to report a crime punishable by imprisonment. She also plead guilty.

Fitzgerald told the court that he called Mrs. Fettig after he shot Fettig and told her her husband was dead.

Mrs. Fettig, the mother of three, is free on $10,000 bond and is awaiting sentencing.

Under questioning by Judge Fenlon, Mrs. Fettig admitted that she had been "seeing" Fitzpatrick. She said she expected him to ask her to marry him if the crime went undetected.

Fitzpatrick will be credited with 135 days already served in the Charlevoix County Jail. His term at Southern Michigan Prison starts immediately.

Fire

Peterson said that no money was lost in the blaze and that all of the store's accounts receivable were at the main office in Petoskey at the time of the fire.

Fochtman has occupied the northern part of the building for about 10 years. However last summer the firm took over the southern half of the building which formerly had been used as a laundromat. The dividing wall was knocked out and the building remodeled.

Mrs. Mary Margaret Geiken believes that the building was constructed by her grandfather, S. Orlowski about 1900. Mr. Orlowski ran it as a grocery, feed and general store for many years.

Firemen who examined the ruins Thursday say that old charring on some of the timbers indicates that the building burned once before.

Fochtman Motor Co. reportedly plans to rebuild on the same site. In the meantime, Fochtman customers will be serviced in the Petoskey store.

Evian May Become Charlevoix's Twin

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, which has endorsed the policy of a French motif for the city, now is investigating the possibility of becoming "Twins" with a French community on the south shore of Lake Geneva called Avian.

Although the adoption of Evian as Charlevoix's "twin" is still in the talking stage, such a move would be possible under the auspices of a Paris-based organization called the Federation Mondial des Villes Jumeless-Cities Unies, or The United Towns Organization.

According to the organization, "Town-twinning...springs from the profound human conviction that if all men of good will were given a chance to come into closer contact, world understanding and cooperation would gain greatly as a result."

Spokesmen for the Charlevoix Chamber point out that Charlevoix and Evian appear to have much in common. Both are located on large bodies of water and both cater to winter sports enthusiasts, particularly

M.D. Idea Is Winner

Winner of the Courier's Community Improvement award this week is Miss Florence Garden, R-3, Charlevoix:

"Charlevoix's Achilles heel is its dearth of doctors. I believe a renewed, continued campaign and concerted effort should be launched to secure not one but several M.D.'s -- perferably general practitioners whose numbers are said to be on the upswing again. This would free us from dependence on one or two overworked medical men and place us in a better position to protect all our residents around the clock."

The Courier will pay $10 for every Community Improvement suggestion published. See suggestion blank on Page 12.

County Budget Set Tentatively At $1.1 Million

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners adopted a tentative 1974 budget of $1.1 million last week.

The budget, which is the highest in the history of the county, will require a levy of 5.2 mills on evaluation of $153,500,000.

The levy will bring in an estimated $813,000 in local property taxes.

Other revenue will come from a balance on hand of $136,000 and $217,010 from other sources, including income tax ($68,000), fines and penalties ($27,500), service fees, ($27,518) and reimbursements, $20,100.

Major expenditures include county government, $357,814 (up from $309,071); judicial, $104,201 (up from $75,212); Public Safety, $154,635, (up from $143,409); health, $71,328 (up from $56,250); and welfare, $9,700 (up from $9,379).

Other items are retirement, Social Security and special appropriations, $159,810 and capital outlay, $22,300.

The total budget of $1,164,318 is $166,183 more than the 1973 budget of $998,135.

Lee Moerland, chairman of the board's finance committee, stressed that the figures are tentative and some of them may be changed, particularly evaluation figures.

The board will meet Tuesday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss equalization.

Shamrock, Erin Motel Sold; Killarney Closes

The sale of the Shamrock Bar and the Erin Motel and the closing of the Killarney Inn are reported in the April edition of the Beaver Island newspaper, The Beaver Beacon.

According to the Beacon, Archie LaFreniere, proprietor of the Shamrock for 36 years, has sold the business to Barbara Becker Anderson of Grand Blanc and her cousins, Cyril and Vera Jean (Tim) Timsak of Muskegon.

Miss Anderson, is the daughter of Buzz and Bettey Anderson who moved to the island last year. Timsak is their nephew.

LaFreinere plans to keep busy running his motel and looking after the gift shop.

Perry and Henrietta Crawford have reportedly sold the Erin Motel to Terry Van Arkel of Chicago.

Since the Crawfords moved to Florida three years ago, the motel has been managed by their son, Pat.

Grace Cole also is reportedly closing the Killarney Inn, a favorite dining spot for island visitors and residents.

The Castaways (formerly the Beaver Tail) may open under new management during the coming season. At the newly remodeled Circle M. the Beaver Lodge and the Bee Hive it will be business as usual.

AEC Proposes Hearing On Plutonium at Big Rock

The Atomic Energy Commission has announced an opportunity for hearing on an amendment to the operating license of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

The amendment, which was approved by the AEC on Dec. 5, 1972, authorized an increase from 50 to 150 kilograms in the amount of plutonium contained in fuel rods in the 75,000 kilowatt plant.

Big Rock Point began operating in 1962 and since 1969 has used a small number of fuel rods containing plutonium for demonstration purposes.

In recognition of public interest in the amendment, the Commission announced that interested persons may file a petition to intervene and request a hearing on the amendment to the AEC license.

Requests should be filed within 30 days (by May 10, 1973) after publication of the notice in the Federal Register and should be addressed to the Secretary of the Commission, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D.C. 20545, Attention: Chief, Public Proceedings Staff.

Each petition, accompanied by a supporting affidavit, must set forth in detail the facts pertaining to the petitioner's interest, the specific aspects of the case on which he wishes to intervene, and the basis for his contentions. If timely petitions are received, a hearing will be conducted at a time and place to be announced by the Commission's Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

Correspondence and documents concerning the Big Rock Point Plant are available for public inspection at the AEC's Public Document Room, 1717 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Mental Health Board Unsure of New Funds

The Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board held its regular monthly meeting at the First State Bank in Charlevoix April 5. Items on the agenda were as follows:

A resolution was passed by the Board to participate in the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance Program (Social Security) directly through the State rather than through the County program.

The Personnel Committee of the Board reported on several personnel policies that they are recommending, and have directed the Administrator to revise some policies and the Board will act on them at the next scheduled meeting.

A report was heard from Charles Ramsey, regional executive of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, that the legislature and the Department of Mental Health presently are discussing the Department of Mental Health appropriations for the fiscal year 1973-74. Ramsey could give no indication as to what new monies would be available for the fiscal year 1973-74.

The board discussed the upcoming meeting of the Michigan Chapter of the American Association on Mental Deficiency, spring conference, to be held May 3 and 4 at the Chalet Motor Lodge, Gaylord. The theme of this conference will be "Community Placement Programming in Rural Areas". Many board members indicated their desire to attend this meeting.

Future meetings, with the exception of the May 3 meeting, will be held in the administrator's office at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The May 3 meeting will be held at the Chalet Motor Lodge in Gaylord, since most members will be attending the AAMD conference.
